Altogether, the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is above the average of the class to which it belongs, and is, without doubt, destined for a long run to good houses.

The Female Minstrels are doing well, despite the attractions elsewhere and the questionable character of the entertainment. The burlesque of the "Forty Thieves" continues the attraction.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

THE Sacred Dime Concerts at the Cooper Institute in New York are financial successes.

A CHICAGO critic calls Aimee "an evanescent solid," whose piquancy is one thing and whose decorum is another.

MISS EMMA THURSBY has organized a concert company, consisting of W. T. Carleton, baritone; Master Leopold Liechtenberg, violinist; A. H. Pease, solo pianist, and G. W. Colby, director.

MR. TENNYSON's youngest son, Lionel, is to be married at Westminster Abbey, during the first week in March, to Miss Eleanor Locker, the daughter of that writer of delicate and charming verses, Mr. Frederick Locker.

THEY have in preparation at Niblo's Garden a great attraction, the name of which the management at present decline to give; but Mr. T. G. Riggs, a famous Irish actor, has been engaged for an Irish character, and the Dizzy Four—Messrs. Lowe, Friend, Lache and Brinkerhoff—will astonish creation.

WHEN Salvini was acting in Paris the prices of seats were ridiculously high, but a concession was made in favor of any Englishman who was supposed to be a student in Paris. Such Englishmen, on making the representation, were admitted at a third of the price. It is astonishing how many Englishmen, studying in Paris, were instantly discovered. The house was three parts full of them, although they looked suspiciously like Frenchmen.

KATE CLAXTON evidently believes in realism. In enacting her role in the "Two Orphans," she has often stood in the wings with several pounds of pulverized ice hanging in bags around her neck, so that when she made her entrance, she shivered in reality. She has been known to go to the stage door of a cold Winter night, and stand in the open air bare-headed. If an inquiry as to her whereabouts was ventured upon during her absence, the invariable response was, "Oh, she's only outside, practicing her shivers."

ONE of the most successful engagements of the season has been played in Chicago by Messrs. Stuart, Robson, and Wm. H. Crane. Speaking of them and their play, "Our Bachelors," the Chicago Tribune says:

"Robson and Crane have attained such wide popularity here that any production with which their names are connected may be sure to command attention. It is an established fact that Chicago audiences are prone to stay away from the first night of a new piece—they like to consult the experts first, before committing themselves to the enjoyment of a fresh joy—and therefore we are bound to attribute to the personal magnetism of the "glue brothers" the presence of the very large and brilliant audience which welcomed the first representation in this city of "Our Bachelors."

THE Mirror has the following very just remarks:—McKee Rankin, in his indignation at the appropriation of his play of "The Danites," makes a frantic appeal to "all reputable managers" for protection. Curses, like chickens, they say, will come home to roost, and we suppose the same is true of the play-appropriating business. Mr. Rankin evidently believes in Hamlet's advice to the Queen: "Assume a virtue, if you have it not!" and hence is grandiloquent in regard to his own wrongs, whilst he totally ignores the fact that he himself unblushingly appropriated Shook & Palmer's "Two Orphans," and started with it throughout the country, to the financial injury of the New York managers. Surely, Mr. Rankin has no right to complain if other people follow the example he has set them, and steal "The Danites," as he took unto himself "The Two Orphans." Consistency, Mr. Rankin, is a jewel.

JOAQUIN MILLER, who is wintering in New York, is a peculiar man in some respects. He has a very valuable umbrella, which he always carries with him, rain or shine. The handle is made from a slip of a tree once planted where Byron was buried at Newstead Abbey, and elaborately ornamented with a horse and bear's heads. As most people lose umbrellas, the poet of the Sierras did likewise, and was soon in a fair way of spending a small fortune in advertising for it. All efforts to recover it proved fruitless; when strolling up Fifth Avenue one day, he espied an illustrious son of Africa coolly flourishing the Byronic umbrella as though it had been destitute of associations or human interest. Ye gods! With a wild bound Miller snatched his Newstead Abbey slip from the despoiler's hand, and it was some moments before the unfortunate darkey could explain that one of the guests at a reception the other night left the precious article there. Still he tempts fate by carrying that umbrella.

OUR Sacramento correspondent sends us word that in his letter reviewing the Kiralfy ballet, our compositor set up "thin dancing" instead of "their dancing"—we make the correction with pleasure to keep peace in the family.

A FURNITURE dealer on Third street taking advantage of a hill in the rain storm, placed on the sidewalk in front of his store—with an eye to business—a Latin bedstead with a nice new and clean mattress on it. One of the boys in blue, coming from his headquarters at the Presidio, by way of the Barbary Coast, where he had rested himself and taken a short nap in the mud, happened along, and seeing so inviting a chance to lie down, with much apparent pleasure, extended his muddy exterior on the clean bedstead. The owner came out in a hurry, and the way he twisted that servant of the people from that mattress and fired him out on the street, will forever remain green in that soldier's memory.

An addition has been made to the number of the Footlight by the house of B. LEVY & CO. who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St. between Post and Third. Their principal office has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacture of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made, gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and making a third of a newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

Fresh Eastern Theatricals

The Philadelphia Musical and Dramatic Mirror of the 9th has the following:

Di Mirska is spoken of as the great contract fracturer.

Frank I. Frayne's professional tour through the interior of California was not a financial success.

It is said that it is Mrs. D. P. Bowers' present ambition to wear the mantle of the late Lucille Western in the role of Nancy Sykes.

A Cincinnati local editor has written a play, in which twelve canal boats are introduced on the stage in the first scene, at least so says one of the Porkopolis journals. These Cincinnati jokes, journalistic and otherwise, are growing somewhat monotonous.

Mr. Boucicault says the Augustin Daly version of the "Dead Secret" was contemptible. We do not agree with him fully, for if the present hash of Boucicault's is elegant, then Daly's play was refined gold, for where Daly ostracized material Boucicault heaps up filth.

If Jos. K. Emmet would only stay in the West, where he appears to have been moderately successful, our Eastern theatergoers would have reason to be profoundly grateful to him. Emmet's Dutch comedy is good of its kind, but the kind is so wretchedly poor, that we can well afford to do without it.

The New York Dispatch thus speaks of Alfred Dampier: "His manner is quiet and serious; he has a rich, sweet voice, and is striking in appearance, and graceful in action. In his acting he strives with success to be natural; there is no effort observable, and the actor somehow succeeds entirely in giving full reality to his role, and carrying the audience with him."

Says the Norristown Herald: "The coming dramatic critic must be able faithfully to describe all the stage wardrobes the female star is capable of putting on and off during a three hours' performance, or he will not prove a success." Which causes the San Francisco Footlight to ask: "How about the critic of the Mazepa business?" Such a question must be a power, even for the funny man of the Herald.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouse opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

HOFFMANN'S AUCTION HOUSE, 308 Market street, Ladies' and Gents' goods sold at sacrificing prices.

REMOVAL OF BAZAAR PATTERNS AGENCY to 873 Market st., in the Howe Sewing Machine office. Fall and winter patterns received.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELLRY is his everything else. It will be constant need of repair, and unless placed in the hands of an artist, who meet with a return in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICCO, at 20 KEARNY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that as a skilled artist in his special line of repairing Gold Jewelry, he cannot be equaled by any in this city, and the excellent Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most exquisite character, and styles of finish variety and as perfect as the quality of every piece.

The latest fashions of Hats, Feathers, and all kinds of Millinery Goods, at the lowest prices, are to be prepared at THE WESTERN MILLINERY STORE, 111 Market Street, opposite FINE.

OLD FASHIONED N. O. MOLASSES CANDY, Maple Wax, Imitation Canada Ball Flavoured, Fig, Brazil Nut, Walnut, Filbert, and Almond Fruit Cakes, at TOWNSEND'S STEAM CANDY FACTORY, 127 Market Street.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Palmer & Oppenheimer, has removed to 270 Post Street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Preparations are being made to exhibit the Works of our Local Artists Free to all. November 1, 1891.

Those who have tried our uniformly pure, medicinal and invigorating, are respectfully invited to try our Pure Compressed Article. We desire that the proof of its quality be a trial. Ask your grocer for A. P. ADAMS' PURE COM-pressed COFFEE, which is a home production, and for sale, in lots to suit, by A. P. ADAMS, No. 51 FRONT STREET, CORNER OF MARKET, SAN FRANCISCO.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of watershed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 133 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICK'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land, to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required, in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines square) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. Description of Scenery and Incidents

ACT FIRST.—SCENE 1.—The Fallen Angels. Borders of Bitumin Lake—Satan Chained. "Vanquished." The Spirit of Forgiveness. "I read thy Soul! I have touched thy Heart!" "Repeat, Satan, it is yet time." Appearance of Gabriel. "Thy Mission is at an end! Mine, about to commence." Satan breaks his chains, and summons Belzebub and Moloch to his aid. SATAN, KING OF EVIL. SCENE SECOND.—PANDEMONIUM! Satan in Council. Rejoicing of the Fallen Ones. Introducing the Entire Corps de Ballet. The Conflict and Fight. Death and Sin. On to my new found Kingdom! Satan's Curse against Mankind.

ACT SECOND.—THE GARDEN OF EDEN! Adam and Eve. Eve, my Sweet Companion. Forbidden Fruit and Tree of Death. The Serpent! Satan and Eve. "We are lost—it is the angry voice of Heaven." Demons, take your prey. Back, Repentance is still left to them." Adam and Eve banished from Paradise. Tableau.

ACT THIRD.—THE DEATH OF ABEL. "The abode that we have lost, it was perpetual Spring. An Autumn Glade. Abel's Dream; Cain reproaching his parents. "Thou art my first born." Cain weeping. "But Abel was not born then." "Can there be more tortures?" "There are!" Eve and Satan. "It is not thy beauty, it is thy soul I want. Thou shalt suffer in thy children." The Sacrificial Altars. Cain and Abel. Jealousy. Death of Abel. Adam's curse upon Cain. Tableau—Vengeance and Justice.

ACT FOURTH.—TEMPLE OF ENOCH. Bacchanal Chorus. "Song. "Tubal." Gorgeous Pageant of the People of Enoch and Sons of Cain. Noema tempted by Satan. The Jewels. "I have seen thee weep and I love thee." "Noah constructing the Ark." Prayers of Noah's Children. Threatens from Heaven! "Let us drink to the Gods we worship." Grand Divertissement. LES FILLES D'ÈVE. Composed and Arranged by Bolossy Kiralfy.—1. Bacchanalian Dance, by the Coryphees. 2. Variations, by De Rosa, Palladino and Arnold Kiralfy. 3. The Dew Dance—Rubys and Emeralds, by the Corps de Ballet; 4. Pas Neuve, by the Principals; 5. Pas Evantelle, by the Secondas; 6. Grand Ensemble. The Glory of the New Divinities. Heaven's Anger. The Destruction. The Flood.

ACT FIFTH.—THE DELUGE! War of the Elements. The Struggle for Life. A vivid realization of the Deluge, as Portrayed in Genesis. "Am I not Lord yet—who art thou?" "Satan, the enemy of Man." "In vain I live—in vain I will die." Satan's triumph over the destruction of the world. Gabriel. "One race is still left—Babel!" The Ark. The Rainbow. "Woman shall yet crush the Serpent's Head beneath her heel." Satan's Everlasting Defiance! Apotheosis.

SCENIC ILLUSTRATIONS OF RARE BEAUTY

As Old Kentucky Home in Winter and the contrasting Picture. St. Clair's Home in Louisiana, together with a Cotton Plantation on Red River, with Flatboats and Steamboats "Wooding Up."

Over One Hundred Genuine Colored People

Many of them former Slaves in Dixie's Land—Men, Women and Children, have been added to the masses of Auxiliaries.

SYNOPSIS OF SCENERY AND INCIDENTS

ACT FIRST.—Sold in Bondage. Mr. Shelby's Plantation. A Winter Night's Rejoicing of the Slaves. Tavern on the Banks of the Ohio. Escape of Eliza on the Ice. Floe baffles the Pursuers. Thrilling Tableau.

ACT SECOND.—The Tavern by the River. Geo. Harris fleeing from bondage. The Pursuit. The Kentuckian. "That's my mind." Meeting of George and Eliza. Rocky Pass. The Pursuers. Escape of George and Eliza. "Friend thee's not wanted here." Exciting Tableau.

ACT THIRD.—Superb Picture of a Southern Home. Miss Ophelia's first appearance to the South. How Shiftless! Topsy's History. De child that never was born. I see so wicked. Sunset on the Lake. Eva and Uncle Tom. "I see a band of spirits bright." Eva's bed-chamber. Death of Little Eva. Solemn and impressive Tableau. Hymn. "Passing Away," by a Grand Chorus of One Hundred Jubilee Singers.

ACT FOURTH.—Topsy and the stockings. "I sint half so wicked as I used to was." St. Clair to Eva in Heaven. Topsy and Aunt Ophelia. Death of St. Clair. Slave market in New Orleans. Song, "Mamma's to the Cold, Cold Ground." (By the Slaves). Uncle Tom sold to Legree. Young Shelby searching for Uncle Tom. A lawyer's information never grates. The Red River at Sunset. Great Plantation Scene, by Strauss, introducing all the Freedmen, over one hundred, to illustrate the labor of Cotton Picking. The Passing Flatboat. To be followed by a Genuine Plantation Festival, in which Mr. George Reynolds (late of Reynolds Bros.), Mr. Chas. Cogill (late of Cogill & Cooper), and Mr. Geo. Thompson (the Happy Old Nig), together with the Jubilee Singers, will appear in Songs, Dances and Choruses, Camp-Meeting Hymns, etc., and the old-time Nigger Jollification. Walk for the Cake (thus affording a realistic picture of Southern life, before the war, that has never been equaled). Arrival of the Steamboat. Legree, Eviline and Uncle Tom. The Flogging. Legree's House. Cassy and Legree. The lock of hair. The workings of a guilty conscience. "Do you know that I have made up my mind to kill you?" The last Blow. Retribution! Death of Poor Uncle Tom. "I've got the victory—The Lord has given it to me—Glory be to His name. Hymn by the Jubilees. APOTHEOSIS—Magnificent Allegorical Tableau, Little Eva in Heaven!

California Theater

Admirers of the beautiful in art, will find in Voegtlin's masterpiece, "The Temple of Enoch," at the beginning of act fourth, in "The Deluge," a subject of itself sufficient to well repay a visit. "The Deluge" will run for some time yet, without any abatement of the flood of visitors.

Grand Opera House

The continued popularity of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" must be quite gratifying to the management. It turns out as we anticipated in our preliminary notice, that this would be one of Mr. Kennedy's greatest successes, standing room only at the matinee yesterday, and the same this P. M. without doubt.

Baldwin's Theater

Miss Catherine Lewis has good reason to be satisfied with the public verdict of appreciation as expressed at her benefit last night. We trust the future may modify the programme announcement that it was to be her last appearance in this city in opera bouffe. We look for another crowded house on Sunday evening at the benefit of Mr. Goodwin.

Bush Street Theater

A large audience, with a considerable proportion of the fair sex, was in attendance at both performances yesterday. The minstrel performance in first part is much above the average of this class of entertainment.

Herold Matinee

See programme for sixth concert, on third page. The storm being over, we look for crowded houses at future performances.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

A DRAMATIC company, headed by Herne, is playing to poor business at Smith's Opera House, Santa Cruz.

At 11 o'clock P. M., yesterday, one of the Footlight staff could not tell whether it was Washington's Birthday or Buntington's Washday.

The Kiralfy troupe, when it returns East, will play the "Tour of the World" across the continent, the dramatic portion to be made up of California actors.

A THUMP was arrested, tried and convicted of starvation, and sentenced to sit twenty-four hours in a dining-room with a muzzle on, so an Eastern exchange says.

At Tipper's New Opera House, Virginia City, the Ada Richmond troupe are running the season of burlesque, commenced with "Chow Chow" on the 20th and followed by "Golden Butterfly," "Market-Down," and "Chippie."

The Annual Exhibition of the Olympic Club is announced to take place at Baldwin's Theater, on Friday evening, March 1st. This place of amusement appears to us to be too small to contain the many friends of this popular association of amateur gymnastics.

A NANTUCKETER has raised wheat found in the hand of an Egyptian mummy. —N. Y. Herald. He is now experimenting with corns taken from the mummy's feet. —Puck. After he is done with that, let him come to California and experiment on our Academy of Sciences.

It is whispered that negotiations are pending for the appearance of the Kiralfy ballet in "Sardanapalus" at the Grand Opera House. The great stage area here would afford splendid opportunity for additional terpsichorean effects, which the other theaters of the city cannot give.

THE Japanese jugglers, gymnasts and miracle workers, who are en route to Paris, to exhibit there during the Exposition, will appear at Woodward's Gardens, today, and to-morrow (Sunday). The colossal bust of Washington by Gagliardi is also on exhibition at Woodward's.

In the case Maretzek vs. Lucea, before vice-chancellor Sir Richard Malins, in London, Jan. 29th, judgment for $15,000 was given in favor of plaintiff, costs of suit to be paid by Baron Von Wallhofen, the husband of the defendant. His Lordship observed that as the Baron had had the benefit of Madame Lucea's singing, he must also take upon himself her liabilities.

WHEN one of Architect Mullett's buildings falls down he goes to the ruins, examines the chaos of masonry very critically, and says they might have known that one coat of whitewash wasn't strong enough to hold up so heavy a wall as that; why in thunder didn't the idiots know enough to put on more whitewash? —Hawkeye. Nobody but a mulehead would have made such a remark as that.

It was not Jennie June who cried because she did not find a husband in her stocking on Christmas eve, but in speaking about marriageable men she says: "A poet, if he is presentable, stands perhaps first on the list, women putting a much higher estimate on poets than editors are apt to on their productions. Editors are also in demand, and literary men of any stripe fetch a pretty good price, some women having a sort of reverence mixed with their curiosity concerning the fourth estate."

A THEATRICAL SENSATION. —A late New York paper contains the following:—"Theatrical circles were considerably interested to-day in the announcement of the marriage of Mlle. Betty Rigi, the danseuse, to William Whitney, of Philadelphia, on June 24, 1874. It appears that while dancing in Philadelphia several seasons ago Mlle. Rigi formed the acquaintance of Mr. Whitney, a gentleman of considerable means. He proposed marriage to her and was accepted. The marriage was so far a clandestine one that it was known at the time only to the immediate families of the contracting parties. Some time after the marriage Mlle. Rigi departed for England, where she remained until October last, when she returned to this country and appeared in 'Antony and Cleopatra' at the Broadway Theater. Subsequently she went to Chicago and other places, supporting Miss Rose Eyttinger, and during this tour she joined Mr. Whitney, who had continued to reside in Philadelphia. He then succeeded in inducing her to retire from the stage. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney sailed for Europe in the 'Abyssinia' yesterday, and will be absent some time. Mlle. Rigi played here the first part of last week in 'Antony and Cleopatra.'"

THE Gold Hillers who attend the theater of evenings have rare fun in going home, as there is always a large crowd of them. Last evening thirty-one persons went home on Bennett's sleigh, or over double its seating capacity. The gentlemen were of course too glib to have the ladies stand, so they gave up the seats to them, and at every jolt of the sleigh the gentlemen would fall into the ladies' arms, after the fashion of Mr. Thorne in the play, when overcome by the sudden disclosure of his wife's infidelity. Old Dobson says that he never had so much fun in his life since he attended candy-pullings in Vermont, when twenty or thirty couples would pile in under the buffalo robes, in a hay wagon, and ride out into the country for fifteen or twenty miles and back. He says the trip to Gold Hill was more enjoyable than a fourth act of the "Pink Dominoes" would be. Mrs. Dobson, however, didn't see the fun of the thing. —Virginia City.

Fresh Eastern Theatricals

From the N. Y. Clipper of the 9th inst. we take the following:

Modjeska is playing to immense audiences at Washington.

Harry Colton, formerly of San Francisco, is playing in Albany.

That over-rated Dutch comedian, Gus Williams, is at the Theater Comique.

Clay M. Greene, San Francisco playwright, was a looker on in Boston last week.

Ben Cotton and his little daughter are meeting with remarkable success with their new play, "Faithful Bob, the Boot-black."

It is now definitely settled, as we are informed, that Montgomery Queen's Circus is a "thing to be remembered." It will travel no more under that title.

Charles Austin of the Anstin Brothers, sharp-shooters, and Miss Ada Forrester, leading lady of the Buffalo Bill Combination, were married in Chicago, Jan. 13.

John T. Raymond closed his engagement at the Park Theater Feb. 2, "Risks" remaining the attraction. The attendance fell off somewhat during his closing week.

Mollie Brown and her parents are to travel with O'Brien's show this season. Miss Mollie is said to be engaged to be married to a non-professional gentleman of Philadelphia.

Miss Gussie Chambers for several weeks was playing at the Black Hills, and who as a traveler has no superior among American actresses, thinks now of going to China by the Deadwood and San Francisco route.

Instead of paralyzing her auditors, Miss Marian Mordaunt, like Miss Mary Anderson, whenever she can spy an Emily Rigi in a private box, reduces hers to swooning insensibility. While playing in the "Workingmen of New York" at the Bowery Theater, one night last week, that is what Miss Mordaunt did to a young lady in the parquette.

Jennie Hughes has sued for her one night's salary at Booth's Theater in the play of "Sula." The defence allege that they have three witnesses who will swear that she was imperfect in her lines, and for that reason repeated over and over again certain phrases, thus giving no cues and destroying her scenes; and furthermore, that she had no conception of the part referred to, and was unable to comprehend the necessary instructions of Mr. Fanning, the stage manager.

Mrs. Emelia June, mother of Miss Eleanor Carey, the actress, died in this city on Jan. 31st, in her fifty-sixth year, and was buried on Sunday last from the "Little Church Around the Corner." She had accompanied her daughter from Australia to this country, and was her constant attendant throughout her engagements in San Francisco, as well as since her contract in the East with John T. Ford, under whom Miss Carey, though temporarily in this city, still is.

Henry J. Byron is not a playwright merely, on Jan. 13th it was a daughter—this reference to a feminine advent reminds us. During their Western tour Miss Viola Arken and Miss Genevieve Rogers eluded together and offered an Omaha squaw twenty dollars as a bribe. It appears that Miss Rogers has never had a baby named after her, and the two girls sought to induce this greasy aboriginal to call her papoose Genevieve. The Indian matron actually shed tears—because the science of nomenclature and the laws of physiology alike forbade that that particular papoose should begin the world with a fortune of twenty dollars and with Genevieve as a pronomen.

RACY SKETCH OF A MODERN GIRL. —It would be a delusion to suppose that she enters a room. She is not one of the soft, gliding creatures invented by novelists, and supposed to steal into the heart as into the presence of the hero. Miss Daw bursts upon you at once, like a well-trained hurricane. She is expansive, eloquent of voice and of gesture. I quite sure the remark would not cost me my life, I would say that she is noisy. Yet there is nothing about her to which exception can be taken. She speaks good English with an elegant pronunciation. She is perfectly fresh and frank, and has a habit of saying what she thinks; which, charming as it is now, augurs ill for the man destined one day to call this thing of brightness his own. She is this morning clad in enthusiasm, and dark green of the hue known as Morris green. Her figure, very tall, slight, and elegant, is freely shown through the tight robe actually strained over it; her fair hair is not laid smoothly in any intelligible order, but suggests that it has been brushed in opposite directions by insane ladies'-maids. A Rubens hat of astounding grandeur of conception crowns this startling figure. Miss Daw is armed with a book of sketches, and has just come from H. H. Grey's or the Slade School of Art, I forget which. She is full of art and artistic talk; that is to say, of art of a kind. Her yearnings toward music and poetry are of a very mild nature, as compared with her enthusiasm for the arts plastic and pictorial. Miss Margaret Daw has made good progress in both of the latter. She has thrust aside painting on pottery with scorn and disdain, she has advanced from water-colors to oils, draw-and models in the life school. Whether she will become a second Rosa Bonheur remains to be seen. Probably as she has both beauty and money, she will marry a broad-shouldered squire and hunt three days a week in the season; but wherever she may go, her artistic instincts will go with her. This type of girl has been greatly on the increase since the death of fancy work—a species of industry which produced, at great expense of time and money, a large number of entirely useless and worthless articles. Our artistic girls are by no means free from the taint of aesthetic cant, and plunge into the mysteries of decoration with unflinching courage. Ranged on opposite sides, they debate with much vivacity and at length, the respective merits of the systems now in vogue, including the style known as "decoration by pot," in which everything is considered with reference to the employment of blue and white china. The artistic girl is very proud of knowing distinguished painters. She talks freely to and of them, and has views as to their method of work; but the summit of her ambition is reached when Stodger, R. A., or Scumble, A. R. A., introduces her portrait into an Academy picture with a catching title, such as "Ask Papa," "The Mitten," "At Last," and so forth. Then she is supremely happy, and having sworn the artist to secrecy, quietly tells Jawleigh, who is "connected with the press," all about the matter, knowing, the sly puss, that the world will certainly be informed of her identity with Stodger's or Scumble's model. —All the Year Round.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal caller has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactories of Paris; and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warerooms opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Dancheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

LOVERS OF MUSIC, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ENRICO, at 240 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artist in his special line of repairing Coral Jewellery, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of his fine work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

d Finale Allegro

Part Second

- 1 Danse Macabre, (Dance of Death).....St. Saens

Zig-a-zig-a-zig! Death with cadence gay,

Beating with his heel on a tombstone gray,

Death at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,

Zig-a-zig-a-zig! on his violin.

Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,

From the willows come cries and groanings loud,

Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,

Running, leaping high—each one in his shroud.

Zig-a-zig-a-zig! see them flutt'ring by!

Hear the dancers bones clicking horribly!

Pe! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be;

All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RIOCHE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines square) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. Description of Scenery and Incidents

ACT FIRST—SCENE I—The Fallen Angels. Borders of Bitumin Lake—Satan Chained. "Vanquished." The Spirit of Forgiveness. "I read thy Soul I have touched thy Heart." Repent, Satan, it is yet time to appearance of Gabriel. "Thy Mission is at an end! Mine, about to commence." Satan breaks his chains, and summons Belzebub and Moloch to his aid. SATAN, KING OF EVIL. SCENE SECOND—PANDEMONIUM! Satan in Council, Rejoicing of the Fallen Ones. Introducing the Entire Corps de Ballet. The Conflict and Fight. Death and Sin. Out on to my new found Kingdom! Satan's Curse against Mankind.

ACT SECOND—THE GARDEN OF EDEN! Adam and Eve. Eve, my Sweet Companion. Forbidden Fruit and Tree of Death. The Serpent! Satan and Eve. "We are lost—it is the angry voice of Heaven. Demons, take your prey." Back, Repentance is still left to them. Adam and Eve banished from Paradise.

ACT THIRD—THE DEATH OF ABEL. "The abode that we have lost. It was perpetual Spring. An Autumn Glade. Abel's Dream: Cain reproaching his parents. "Thou art my first born. Cain weeping. "But Abel was not born then." "Can there be more tortures?" "There are!" Eve and Satan. "It is not thy beauty, it is thy soul I want. Thou shalt suffer in thy children." The Sacrificial Altars. Cain and Abel. Jealousy. Death of Abel. Adam's curse upon Cain. Tableau—Vengeance and Justice.

ACT FOURTH—TEMPLE OF ENOCH. Bacchanal Chorus. "Song. "Tubal." Gorgeous Pageant of the People of Enoch and Sons of Cain. Noema tempted by Satan. The Jewels. "I have seen thee weep and I love thee. "Noah constructing the Ark. Prayers of Noah's Children. Threatens from Heaven! "Let us drink to the Gods we worship." Grand Divertissement. LES FILLES D'ÈVE. Composed and Arranged by Bossy Kiralfy—1, Bacchanalian Dance, by the Coryphees. 2, Variations, by De Rosa, Palladino and Arnold Kiralfy; 3, The Dew Dance—Rubys and Emeralds, by the Corps de Ballet; 4, Pas Neuve, by the Principals; 5, Pas Evantelle, by the Secondas; 6, Grand Ensemble. The Glory of the New Divinities. Heaven's Anger. The Destruction. The Flood.

ACT FIFTH—THE DELUGE! War of the Elements. The Struggle for Life. A vivid realization of the Deluge, as Portrayed in Genesis. "Am I not Lord yet—who art thou?" "Satan, the enemy of Man." "In vain I live—in vain I will die." Satan's triumph over the destruction of the world. Gabriel. "One race is still left—Behold!" The Ark. The Rainbow. "Woman shall yet crush the Serpent's Head beneath her heel." Satan's Everlasting Defiance! Apotheosis.

MONDAY - - - FEBRUARY 25

California Theater

The "Deluge" will be repeated during this week, with the same attractions that have made it so successful. "A Trip to the Moon" will probably be placed on the stage again, after the withdrawal of the present spectacle.

Grand Opera House

This theater still continues in the full tide of success, with no apparent ebb in the flood of visitors to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The plantation scenes and melodies with chorus continue the principal features in the drama, and theatergoers will miss a treat if they fail to visit. "Sardanapalus," which had so long a run in New York, will succeed "Uncle Tom." Mr. Bangs will be added to the present company.

Baldwin's Theater

The complimentary benefit to Charles H. Goodwin filled this house last evening to its utmost capacity. "Zoe, the Octo-roon," was effectively rendered by Miss Ellie Wilton. The small part assigned Miss Alice Harrison was made the most of. Mestayer made "Old Pete" one of the features of the piece, and the rest of the cast was good enough. Between the acts, Miss Catherine Lewis gave the drinking song from "Girofle-Girofla," which received a rapturous encore. The attempt to recite "The Vulgar Boy," by Mr. E. H. Millett, met with a very vulgar reception from the boys in the gallery. They would not stand it, and Mr. Millett had to quit.

Bush Street Theater

The Female Minstrels and Burlesque Troupe continue to attract full houses.

The Fountain

Notwithstanding the many attractions elsewhere throughout the city, this popular concert hall is comfortably filled every evening. The orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 P. M., delights patrons, while discussing refreshments, with the latest and most popular compositions, selected with good judgment from the world of music.

Herold Matinee

The sixth, and last of the present season, will be given at Metropolitan Temple, next Wednesday. An entirely new programme is offered. St. Saens' "Dance of Death" will be given for the first time in San Francisco, and an announcement is made of Rad's celebrated symphony, "In the Woods," as part of the programme for the first concert of the second season.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

THE Italian Society, the lovers of drama, performed at Platt's Hall last evening.

On Friday evening next, March 1st, Schmidt's Concert will be given at Mercantile Library Hall.

In Dumas' new play of "Joseph Balsamo" there are thirty male and eighteen female characters.

A PANTOMIME on the Prince of Wales' tour in India is being played at the New Circus in Brussels.

MISS CARLOTTA LECLERCQ and her husband, Mr. John Nelson, will sail for America in Autumn.

LONDON theater programmes are never dated, so that if left in the theater they can be sold over and over again.

THE annual exhibition of the Olympic Club will be given at Baldwin's on Friday evening, March 1st. More anon.

RUMOR says that Tom Thumb is getting baldheaded. If he comes here soon, we'll make room for him in the front row at the blond exhibition.

DRURY LANE THEATER closes for the season on March 2d. It is then announced to be let for two or three months for English or Italian opera.

SARDOU has just completed a new piece—"Les Bourgeois de Pontreux"—for the Paris Vaudeville. It is a sketch of Bourgeois life in the Province.

SOMEBODY has sent word that away off, some time next year, the Paris Theater Francaise Company will visit London, and theatergoers are already preparing to be delighted.

For the benefit of free lunch for the poor, an entertainment will be given at Central M. E. Church to-morrow evening. Messrs. Barton Hill, H. Edwards, and others, have kindly volunteered.

PATLINE MARKHAM's name is Margaret Hall. At a Royal Dramatic Fair in London some years ago she was a rival of Lydia Thompson's in selling rosebuds, kissed by their own fair lips, at a guinea a bud.

A YOUNG lady of our city lately returned from a visit to Mexico. Speaking about the way they perform the "Dance of Death" there, she said: "It was the easiest thing—you only had to stand still and be hanged."

Mlle. ALBANI has been studying at Milan under her master Lamberti, with the object of renewing the beauty of her voice, which has undoubtedly suffered from exertion. She will appear in Paris in her popular repertoire.

A NEW operetta, the music by Herve, the libretto by M. Herser, called "Gabrielle," will shortly be produced in London. The music is said to be in Herve's best vein, and one of the numbers, a vocal waltz, is expected to take the town by storm.

"NINE, sir," observed a social seonrge. "I can speak nine languages distinctly; but my father, when alive, could speak no less than fifteen." "Ah!" remarked Douglas Jerrold, "I knew a man who could speak five-and-twenty, and he never said anything worth hearing in any one of them."

M. DE VALDROME married an actress in Paris, and, after a short experience of domestic life, both husband and wife demanded a separation, which was accorded. A son, the only child of the marriage, remained with the father; but the father dying, the boy was claimed by his mother. The court rejected her claim, and decided that the lad should be brought up by the Dominicans of Arcueil, and allowed to visit his mother twice a week. The mother smuggled him out of the house and sent him abroad disguised as a girl. When the Dominican who had accompanied the boy wished to take him back to Arcueil, he was already on his way to the frontier. A strict watch was at once kept on Mme. de Valdrome, who was followed about wherever she went, but she managed to elude her pursuers. She went into a church, and, while seemingly engaged in prayer, arranged her face and dress in such a way that no one recognized in a certain decrepid old woman who hobbled out of the church the youthful Mme. de Valdrome. She finally joined her son in exile.

Through the courtesy of Mr. George B. Rieman, we are enabled to decorate the interior of our den, with a choice selection of Bradley & Rulofson's most celebrated celebrities. The many friends of Mr. Rieman are resolved upon giving expression to the good will and friendship they bear him, and a benefit at Baldwin's will most likely be the method chosen of displaying their appreciation—full announcement of which we trust soon to be able to make.

JOHN P. JACKSON, lately attached to the staff of the New York Herald here in London, who last year made a great success with his adaptation of "The Flying Dutchman," has just completed the translation of an opera, in two acts, by Ignaz Bruell. The title is "The Golden Cross." It is the first work of Bruell, who is a Vienna composer, and has been immensely popular in Germany. Carl Rosa will produce it here probably in March. The subject is taken from an episode in the Napoleonic war.

From the Sun, dated New York, Feb. 12th, we clip the following:

"The pantomime of 'Richard III,' was performed by the Count Joannes & Co. last evening, to the largest audience ever within the walls of the Lyceum Theater. At 7 1/2 o'clock the lobbies of the house were filled with pushing, swearing persons, who crushed one another in their efforts to get near the box office. The stairways were jammed, the throng extending so far into the street that it was full ten minutes' work for any one to squeeze their way in. One dollar tickets sold for $2, and the speculators reaped a rich harvest. The scene inside beggared description. Platoons of stock brokers, club men, and men about town filled the boxes, sofas and orchestra to overflowing. At 8 o'clock the house was packed to suffocation, while the storm of groans, hisses, catcalls, and yells exceeded 'Bob' Ingersoll's description of the infernal regions. About twenty ladies were present.

The first note from the orchestra was the signal for an outbreak which hushed the loudest efforts of the double bass, and made the trombone man turn pale. Not a strain of the overture was audible. The rising of the curtain, however, was hailed by a fresh outburst, to which the former seemed a mere murmur in comparison. For full half an hour not a word could be heard. When "Richard" grasped his sword, he was greeted with shouts of "I'll loan you a dollar and a half on it!" "Oh, take it to Simpson's." "What are you giving us?" "Taffy!" etc. The entrance of the buxom "Duchess of York" called forth yells of "Mrs. Hicks!" "Go it old snowbanks," etc., while the Count's iuane waddling about the stage was greeted with, "George, pull off your boots!" "Dry up," "Give us a rest," etc. When the "Lord Mayor" came on with the wand of office in his hand, the crowd set up a shout of "Billiards," "Chalk your cue," "Fifteen-ball pool," and "Put on a little more French," were among the adjurations hurled at the venerable chief magistrate. His robe of mock ermine produced inquiries to "the price of cotton," "muddling uplands," etc. The "Duke of Buckingham" looked like Simou Tappetit with a week's beard on his face, and he was continually begged to "get a five-cent shave," and hailed at every appearance with shouts of "Barber!" and "Tonic!" In the scene where "Richard" embraces the infant Princess, he was pelted with inquiries as to the parentage of the twins, "Which is yours, George," "You can't get out of it now," "Their faces give you away old man," etc. One of the little fellows was so frightened by the din that he almost fainted, whereat the Count shook his clenched fist at the audience, and demanded that they strike at him, but spare the child. The force of his remarks was somewhat impaired by an egg from the gallery, which flew down at an angle of forty-five degrees, flashed between his legs, and spread its savor on the floor.

This was too much for the Count's patience, and when the curtain came down one of the "snaps" advanced to the footlights and attempted to speak. After five minutes of continued howling on the part of the house he was allowed to say:

"Ladies and gentlemen, we have no objection to your having all the fun and noise you please, but this throwing missiles on the stage (here the speaker dodged a large orange from one of the boxes on the right) must be stopped. I repeat it, gentlemen (a shower of peanut shells and apple parings from the gallery), must be stopped."

The last words of the address were lost by the "snape" crushing his leg in the door in a vain effort to escape another missile from the hands of a Columbian who had drawn bead on him from the balcony.

The scene of the combat between "Richard" and "Richmond" was performed in dumb show, the noise being so great that nothing could be heard. Then the rsm-shackle usurper, pierced by "Richmond's" blade, fell all in a heap, rose, paddled about, and plumped down again in rheumatic death agony, while the curtain fell upon 3,000 people exhausted with laughter and worn out with shouting."

SPECIMEN OF PARISIAN WIT.—A gentleman presented himself at the bureau of the Exposition, and says to the clerk, "I want to exhibit my wife."

"Your wife?" says the stupefied clerk; "your wife? Why?"

"Because, sir, she is a model woman; one that has never given her husband cause for jealousy; as faithful and kind as ten old dog trays."

"Sure of it?"

"I will swear it, sir."

"Then it's you that ought to be put on exhibition."

Our English cousins can boast of having the champion needle of the world, so far as size and length, and being talked and written about is concerned. Probably no monument of either ancient or modern times has had so many vicissitudes in its history as the obelisk known as Cleopatra's needle. Over 3000 years ago it was erected by Sesostris at Heliopolis. After a while it was brought to Alexandria by Cleopatra where it lay in the mud for over 1000 years, until it was encased in an iron cylinder and rolled into the sea. After being towed through the Mediterranean and abandoned in the Bay of Biscay, picked up and taken to a port in Spain, and held until a claim for salvage was settled, it has found a harbor at last in the London docks, and will soon become one of the attractions of the modern Babylon.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 162 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactories of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERMICO, at 230 KEARNY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

GRAND Orchestral Matinee

OF THE SECOND SEASON

Wednesday Afternoon, February 27th, 1878

AT 3 P. M.

PROGRAMME...Part First

- 1 Centennial March.....Helfferich
- 2 Symphony, E flat major.....Mozart
a Adagio, Allegro
c Andante
e Menuetto Allegretto
d Finale Allegro

Part Second

- 1 Danse Macabre, (Dance of Death).....St. Saens
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! Death with cadence gay,
Beating with his heel on a tombstone gray,
Death at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! on his violin.
Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the willows come cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Running, leaping high—each one in his shroud.
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! see them flitting by,
Hear the dancers bones clicking horribly!
Pat! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be:
All must now sway—cock-crow bids them flee.
—HENRI CAZALIS.
- 2 Reverie, Night Song.....Vogt
(Strings only)
- 3 Overture, Tannhauser.....Wagner
In rehearsal for the first concert of the second series, Rad's celebrated Symphony, "Im Walde" (In the Woods).

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $35 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed, superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 900 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Riche's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land, to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outside," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines wide) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $1—only 10 cents per paper.

An Old Kentucky Home in Winter and the contrasting Picture. St. Clair's Home in Louisiana, together with a Cotton Plantation on Red River, with Flatboats and Steamboats "Wooding Up."

Over One Hundred Genuine Colored People

Many of them former Slaves in Dixie's Land—Men, Women and Children, have been added to the masses of Auxiliaries.

SYNOPSIS OF SCENERY AND INCIDENTS:

ACT FIRST.—Sold in Bondage. Mr. Shelby's Plantation. A Winter Night's Rejoicing of the Slaves. Tavern on the Banks of the Ohio. Escape of Eliza on the Ice. Floe baffles the Pursuers. Thrilling Tableau.

ACT SECOND.—The Tavern by the River. Geo. Harris fleeing from bondage. The Pursuit. The Kentuckian. "That's my mind." Meeting of George and Eliza. Rocky Pass. The Pursuers. Escape of George and Eliza. "Friend there's not wanted here." Exciting Tableau.

ACT THIRD.—Superb Picture of a Southern Home. Miss Ophelia's first appearance in the South. How Shiftless! Topsy's History. De child that neber was born. I see a band of eprits bright. Eva's bed-chamber. Death of Little Eva. Solemn and impressive Tableau. Hymn. "Passing Away." by a Grand Chorus of One Hundred Jubilee Singers.

ACT FOURTH.—Topsy and the stockings. "I sint half so wicked as I used to was." St. Clair to Eva in Heaven. Topsy and Aunt Ophelia. Death of St. Clair. Slave market in New Orleans. Song, "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground." (By the Slaves). Uncle Tom sold to Legree. Young Shelby searching for Uncle Tom. A lawyer's information never gratis. The Red River at Sunset. Great Plantation Scene, by Strauss, introducing all the Freedmen, over one hundred, to illustrate the labor of Cotton Picking. The Passing Flatboat. To be followed by a Genuine Plantation Festival, in which Mr. George Reynolds (late of Reynolds Bros.), Mr. Chas. Cogill (late of Cogill & Cooper), and Mr. Geo. Thompson (the Happy Old Nig), together with the Jubilee Singers, will appear in Song, Dances and Choruses, Camp-Meeting Hymns, etc., and the old-time Nigger Jolification. Walking for the Cake (thus affording a realistic picture of Southern life, before the war, that has never been equaled). Arrival of the Steamboat. Legree, Eveline and Uncle Tom. The Flaggins. Legree's House. Cassy and Legree. The lock of hair. The workings of a guilty conscience. "Do you know that I have made up my mind to kill you?" The last Blow. Retribution! Death of Poor Uncle Tom. "I've got the victory—The Lord has given it to me—Glory be to His name. Hymn by the Jubilee. Apotheosis—Magnificent Allegorical Tableau. Little Eva in Heaven!

TUESDAY - - - FEBRUARY 20

California Theater

"Of man's first disobedience and the fruit of that forbidden tree" still continues the subject of the drama here, and will continue until the "Exiles," in active preparation now, is placed on the boards.

Grand Opera House

"Uncle Tom," as usual, to full houses. The leader of the orchestra, Mr. Harry Widmer, selects and arranges his repertoire for the occasion with rare good judgment, introducing plain and simple old favorites—just the kind that wear well, and always give pleasure when well rendered.

Baldwin's Theater

On Friday evening the Olympic Club will give their annual exhibition here, and on Sunday evening a complimentary benefit has been tendered to Mr. George B. Riemann, the popular manager of Messrs. Bradley & Rulofson, whose published celebrities of the dramatic world are so well known the world over. Representatives from all the theaters in this city have volunteered, and the programme for the occasion will be one of unusual excellence.

Bush Street Theater

The attendance here would indicate that the public have had about enough at present of this class of entertainment.

The Fountain

A very appropriate name for this retreat of thirsty and hungry merchants and travellers. Lunch at all hours, and concert in the evening.

Herold Matinee

To-morrow, at 3 P. M., the sixth concert will be given at the Metropolitan Temple. At each successive performance the individual members of this orchestra get more in harmony with each other, and there is a corresponding concord in the selections rendered. No better school for advanced amateur musicians was ever opened in this city, and, on account of the fine weather, there will more than likely be a larger attendance than usual at to-morrow's matinee.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

MISS MAGGIE CHAMBERS will shortly take a benefit at the California.

KATHERINE ROBERS is announced to play an engagement in this city shortly.

The "Exiles" is underlined at Booth's, New York, for several weeks, beginning in April.

"You kissed me when we parted," music by the late Geo. T. Evans, just published by Kohler & Chase.

The Footlight of the Dramatic News has been sued for libel by Adams of the Poppenheim-Adams opera troupe.

EMILY MONTAGUE is not a member of the Union Square Theater, as reported, but is engaged at the Grand Opera House until April.

OLIVER DOUD BYRON, with his antique play of "Across the Continent," will follow the present entertainment at the Bush Street Theater.

BONFANTI, the beautiful premier danseuse, who will be remembered by San Franciscans, will be the saltatorial star in "Sardanapalus."

CARRIE WYATT, formerly of the California Theater, has made a favorable appearance in Brooklyn with Rose Eyttinge, in "Rose Michel."

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be produced in England under the management of Henry Jarrett. He will take his company with him—darkies included.

VICTOR HUGO is re-writing several of the scenes of his dramatic version of "Les Miserables," and the piece is to be played in Paris in honor of the coming Exhibition.

THE Strakosch Italian Opera Company, including Kellogg, Cary and Rose were announced to play in Indianapolis on the 25th, 26th and 27th current. In the opera of "Aida," Cary is carrying off the honors.

THE Ada Richmond burlesque company, have just finished a very successful season at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City. On Monday evening, 25th, Signor Majeroni commenced a season of seven nights in "The Old Corporal."

FRANK C. HANCO has been engaged by Mr. Kennedy to sustain the character of "Sardanapalus," when that spectacle is produced at the Grand. Mr. B. is an actor of Eastern reputation, and is considered a first-class leading man.

THAT irrepressible dramatic genius, Aibisher, is said to be organizing a company for the purpose of opening Emerson's Opera House, where he can display those pent-up tragic qualities which are lying so dormant in his heaving bosom.

DR. J. SIMMS, the most eminent living reader of the human face, lectures at Dashaway Hall to-night, on the "Force of Love." Admission 25 cents; season tickets for each evening this week, only 50 cents. Descriptions of Health and Character by Dr. Simms daily at Dashaway Hall.

THE leading members of the California Company who were engaged in the representations of Kralffy's spectacles, Mr. T. W. Keene, Mr. Montayer, Miss Alice Harrison and Miss Gracie Plaisted, leave on the 10th of March with the Kralffy troupe to produce the pieces throughout the Eastern States.

AT Washington, Feb. 12th, for the second time in the history of the United States, the Senate and House met in joint convention to receive a national gift. The first time was in 1844, to receive the sword of Washington, and the second to accept Carpenter's painting of "Lincoln reading the Emancipation proclamation to his Cabinet."

SOME day an enterprising dramatist will construct a play in twenty-six acts, giving the spectator a chance to go out and get twenty-five drinks, and it will run for 10,000 nights and make his fortune. Thus knowingly predicts a contemporary; and while the dramatist is about it he should construct the last act so the play would end about fifteen or twenty minutes before it was finished, for the benefit of the large class who cannot wait for the curtain to drop on the last act.—Norr. Herald.

ANOTHER addition to the comicalities of the Lord Chamberlain's office is chronicled. The song in "La Marjolaine," "She Lost Her Way," is nightly encored. In the chorus the nymphs of the stage joined, adding, "She went astray;" but the censor of morals dramatic, and arbiter of elegancies theatrical, has cut the awfully awful naughtiness out. Instead of singing "She went astray," the proper young ladies now sigh "Alack-a-day!"

APROPOS of the movements of Manager Maguire, an Eastern paper says: "A. M. Palmer is now occupied in forming another Union Square Company to go to San Francisco for Tom Maguire, for an engagement of ten weeks. The main idea is that the plays presented shall be all new to that city, and that none except the "Celebrated Case" shall run more than a week. The plays will be so far as settled: "Celebrated Case," "Mother's Secret," "Agnes," and "A Hundred Years Old." A new version of "Jezebel," will also be in the repertoire. The company will include James O'Neill, Ada Dwyer-Jeffreys Lewis as leading lady, Rose Wood, and Marie Wainwright, Emily Montayer, W. H. Jennings, F. F. Mackay, and some minor people. Mr. Cazauran left on Monday for St. Louis to rehearse the other branch of the troupe in the "Celebrated Case," which they give in St. Louis, afterward going to Cincinnati, and then to McVicker's, Chicago. From there he goes to San Francisco to prepare for the advent of the new company.

EASTERN THEATRICALS

Dramatic & Musical Mirror Reflections.

It is said that Modjeska's real name is Modzejenka, but that it was raised so that Americans could pronounce it.

Salsbury's Troubadours played in the Christmas pantomime, "The Sleeping Beauty," at the Opera House, Sydney, Australia.

THE New York Star says, with a frankness that does it credit, that Mrs. John Drew is the best "Lady Teazle" the American stage has ever had. This from a Gotham daily is praise indeed.

SOTHERN is writing a book of personal reminiscences, which will be published in New York next Spring, and will be called "Birds of a Feather." Some of Sothern's reminiscences would be of tremendous interest, if he would only put them in his book—but he won't.

SAYS the St. Louis Herald: "Miss Mary Anderson, on the occasion of her last appearance, seemed in excellent spirits; indeed, while seated upon her throne she chatted happily with a young lady in a modern walking suit, and a duck of a bonnet, such as was never dreamed of in the ancient days of 'Auld Scotia.' Magbeth, in the meantime, was having a time with Banquo's ghost."

A contemporary thus dilates on Cleopatra's wardrobe: "If Cleopatra were nothing but a necklace for her ordinary costume, why did she need such a prodigious needle? We are not sure what Cleopatra's costume was. She was a person without Worth, and therefore could not have been properly dressed, and she was snaked to death; but we cannot argue positively from these premises."

"Antony and Cleopatra" will shortly be brought out in New Orleans in a style of great magnificence. Rose Eyttinge will go thither and impersonate the "Serpent of Old Nile." We wonder if she will show the New Orleans people how daintily she can converse with the performers on the stage, whilst the play is in progress? As a conversationalist, Rose was a great success when "Antony and Cleopatra" was produced in this city recently.

Adelaide, the Adorable, began her engagement at the London Haymarket, Feb. 2d, appearing as Viola, in "Twelfth Night." During her engagement it is anticipated that she will play Juliet, Rosalind, Beatrice and Julia (in "The Hunchback"). It is also rumored that possibly she may be seen in a new play. Neilson is a prime favorite with the Londoners, and her present series of representations will, no doubt, be crowned with overwhelming success.

THE Florences were very successful on the occasion of their recent performance in Erie, Pa., "The Mighty Dollar" holding its own magnificently. The critic of the Erie Morning Dispatch thus describes the house: "The house was all that the most exacting manager could desire. Every seat in the parquette and dress circle was filled. Chairs were placed in the aisles and stools were brought into play and placed against the wall to give sufficient seating capacity. The balcony was packed full and there was a goodly audience in the 'footblack heaven.' It was the largest house of the season. Mr. and Mrs. Florence were in the best of spirits. They had every reason to be, as it is seldom that Erie turns out so large a crowd." And this is a sample of the bad business the Florences have been doing on the road, according to that veracious journal, the New York Dramatic News.

JOE Emmet has played his well-known specialty, "Fritz," for over two thousand nights. It will be remembered in the scene where he plights his vows to the lovely Katharina, he seals the pledge with a hearty kiss. In the number of times that Joe has rendered this piece, and given this tender proof of his unflinching devotion to the object of his heart's affection, one would naturally conclude that he has become quite an adept in osculatory performances. Two thousand kisses! Just think of it. The bare imagination of it is enough to set the brain of the average young man in a whirl, and to cause the blood to course through the veins in a manner not contemplated by Harvey in his treatise on the circulation. What wonder that Emmet chooses this production as his leading performance in the histrionic art, to the exclusion of all else. If "practice makes perfect," he must be well versed by this time in this, the most delicate of the minute of dramatic representations.

Buffalo Letter

BUFFALO, Feb. 16, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Rice's Extravaganza Combination performed at the Academy of Music the first three nights of the week to splendid houses, and justly they deserve them, for the company is a good one, and the pieces selected, "Evangeline" and "Le Petit Corsair," are very amusing, and contain some very fine original music. The "Lone Fisherman," in "Evangeline," is a remarkable character in his way, and although appearing in every scene, utters not a word, and is apparently oblivious to the other performers; but his inimitable pantomime keeps the audience in constant laughter. The role is taken by Harry Hunter, who showed by his performance in the "Corsair," that he was no mean actor. Miss Lizzie Webster and Miss Venice G. Chancey take the principal female parts ably. They expect to visit your city in March or April. Barlow, Wilson, Prunrose & West's Minstrels held the boards the remainder of the week, to fair houses. The Simon pure "Danites" perform here next week. McKee Rankin & Co. W. H. W.

THE fashionable bracelet in Paris is the esclavage—slavery. It is a fetter of gold worn on the arm above the elbow, and is riveted and soldered by the jeweler in the presence of the donor, to be worn till death or divorce or separation. The jeweler, when the operation is over, bids the lady call next day to see that the rivet holds firmly. She comes, without her friend, bien entendu—and the treacherous goldsmith confides to her the secret of a concealed spring by means of which she can remove the fetter at will.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactories of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICSSON, at 230 KEARNY STREET, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewellery, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

Zig-a-zig-a-zig! Death with cadence gay,
Betting with his heel on a tombstone gray,
Death at midnight plays, build the horrid din,
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! on his violin.

Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the willows come cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Running, leaping, high—each one in his shroud.
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! see them flutt'ring by,
Hear the dancers bones clicking horribly!

Pst! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be,
All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast end south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit shade trees at a reasonable cost.

McKee's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to get the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

The Kiralfy spectacle still continues to draw. The second week has commenced well, and if the management would only costume our first parents in the Garden of Eden according to the orthodox Mosaic account, it would be more than likely that the "Exiles" would have to be postponed for some time. We believe that the truer to life acting is the better it is—and the Adam and Eve at the California are not just in the condition, so far as dress goes, as we have been taught by bible history.

Grand Opera House
Third week and continued success of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." "Sardanapalus" in active preparation.

The Fountain
Ladies, with their escorts, are making this a favorite place to visit after theater, to partake of oysters and coffee. Refreshments taste better when served in nice style, carefully cooked, everything clean and tidy, and obliging waiters in attendance—all which are special features at the Fountain. The proprietor, Mr. Cassimir, is still recuperating in Southern California, and at present the wants and comfort of each patron is anticipated, and promptly attended to by the staff of attendants under the able supervision of Messrs. Altman & Saffhill.

Herold Matinee
The sixth and last of the present season at the Metropolitan Temple this afternoon. See programme under Amusements.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.
At a sale of autographs recently held in London, Gatrik's brought about $14; Wm. Siddons, $20; Rachel's, $5; Handel's, $210, and Edmund Kearns, $15.

Da. J. SIMMS, the ablest living reader of the human face, describes health and character each day, and lectures on human character each night this week, at Dashaway Hall.

LOTTA, the actress, is evidently in no immediate need of a testimonial benefit. She has just loaned on bond and mortgage to William B. Astor and wife, of New York, $68,534.26 on property in Madison avenue.—Boston Post.

JARRETT & PALMER will produce "Uncle Tom's Cabin" at Booth's Theater, N. Y., at an outlay of $20,000. George Kunkel will assume his old role of "Uncle Tom," and Maria Bates will be the "Topsy." There will be three hundred quadroons, innatoccs, and full-bloods on the stage.

On Washington's Birthday, at Salt Lake Theater, the ladies of the Hebrew Benevolent Society gave a grand masquerade ball. The Union Square Company closes a successful engagement there on the 14th current; and the celebrated charger, James Melville, is underlined to shortly play the circus part in "Mazeppa."

ADELINA PATTI, being compelled to divide her property with her husband on separation, paid him half the value of such jewels as she did not wish to have sold. For a necklace of large pearls, in three rows, fastened with a clasp of a single sapphire, set with diamonds, she offered him $8,000 as his half. As the necklace had cost $60,000, he objected, and insisted on its being placed on sale. It was bid in at $16,000, no one being willing to give that for it.

When William Beverley, the scene painter of London was a school-boy he had a companion pupil who was, like himself, a great lover of theatricals. The latter had a toy theater and had devised a melodrama which ended in the blowing up of a mill and the attendant destruction of the villains of the cast, but dared not carry out his plan for fear of ruining his theater. Beverley came to his aid, constructed a proper "set" and blew it up successfully. The other boy, to whom this aid was rendered, was Charles Dickens.

A NEW Art Gallery has been opened at 219 Post Street, in connection with the depot of artists' materials, etc., of Messrs. Oppenheim & Co. Connoisseurs in search of treasures for the decoration of their homes can make a note of this and drop in occasionally. Our local artists, Keith, Hamilton, Denny, Hoosack and Tavernier, are represented in the collection. The large painting of the burning of the Serapis, by James Hamilton, shows that artist's perfect acquaintance with, and thorough ability to handle his subject. Seen in a proper light, it discovers itself at once a masterpiece of art. The perspective recedes until the ocean and sky become blended in the distance. The white moonlight on the waves and the red glare from the burning ship are mingled with skillful effect. Denny exhibits two small marine views; one, the pilot boat Peabody approaching a three-masted schooner, outside the bar at the entrance to the bay of San Francisco; the other, 'A view of Point San Pedro.' 'Mono Pass' is from the easel of Keith. 'A view near Crystal Springs,' by Tavernier, although not in the usual style of that artist, is a true picture of nature, without any effort at effect.

In the balance of the present collection there is nothing of special notice, excepting a small sized portrait of General Sutter, by E. Leutze, painted in New York, and some time in the possession of the late Ben. P. Avery. The painting is a work of art and of historical interest, and our Pioneer Society would do well to obtain possession of it. Leutze also painted the celebrated work, now in the Capitol at Washington, of 'Washington Crossing the Delaware,' familiar to us all through the engraving published by Goupil & Co., who originally purchased it from the artist for $7,000. After the engraving had been made, Leutze bought it back for $10,000, and sold it again to Uncle Sam for $22,000.

The Boucicault-Shangraun Combination, which has been travelling through the country since September last, will disband about the beginning of March. Of late the company have done bad business, especially in Philadelphia. The result, which was favorable at first, has been otherwise lately, owing to the fact that, while for some time it was believed Boucicault was with the party, it has been generally known, of late, that he was not.—Dramatic News, Feb. 16.

The cast of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," to be performed at Booth's Theater, under Jarrett and Palmer, is as follows: 'Uncle Tom,' George Kunkel; 'Topsy,' Marie Bates; 'Eva,' Belle Wharton; 'Mark,' the lawyer, Harry Hawk; 'Legree,' J. H. Rowe; 'Annt Ophelia,' Fanny Denham; 'George Harris,' John A. Burns; 'Eliza,' George Dickson; 'St. Clare,' Mr. W. S. Harkins. The price of admission has been settled at fifty cents. For a performance of this class this is very sensible.—Ibid.

It is a sorry fact that, while dramatic writing and the capacity to act have retrograded, all the other requirements of theater art have progressed. Such elaborate scenic displays as are nightly made at the Union Square, at Wallace's, and at the Fifth Avenue Theaters, would have at once astonished and displeased our forefathers. At the most artistic theater the world has yet known, the Theater Francaise, the scenery, if clean and appropriately suggestive, both the management and the public are satisfied. Here, unless every drawing-room is made to reflect the magnificence of a salon of a palace, the piece is now considered cheaply mounted. The question of appropriateness is entirely lost sight of, and that first requisite of artistic ensemble, congruity, is wholly overlooked.—Ibid.

"Drawing taught in one lesson, free of charge" by a sign painter on Montgomery avenue. Students are expected to furnish their own hand-carts.

"Useful at both ends," as the donor of a broom said at a wooden wedding. "Yes, you can clean out either your kitchen or your husband with it," remarked another.

JOAQUIN MILLER is writing a new drama in which he introduces a colony of cannibals—if he would only bring it out here at our Chinese theaters, we might find a solution to the celestial problem.

Mrs. Cady STANTON thinks that the phrase "a hen-pecked husband" is objectionable. So does Spikes. It is not fair, he says, to compare the fair sex to the fowl sex.—Graphic. That would be a fairfowl mistake.

BEECHER is not so flowery in his language now as he used to be. He leaves out the flower of sulphur, and the result is that brimstone is now quoted in Brooklyn cheaper than it ever has been within the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

ONE of the Jubilee singers at the Grand, out of the four bits a-night allowed him, has, during the long run of "Uncle Tom," saved up a good bit of money. Wishing to make his sweetheart Eliza a present, he interviewed a German baker and gave orders for an immense cake to cost a dollar and a half, and to have inscribed on top in the finest style of art, the words "To friend, Eliza." A colored boy called for it, and took it to the residence of the Jubilee man's girl, and while waiting at the door after knocking, the temptation in looking at the sugar letters was too much for him, and he picked the it off and ate it. When Eliza read, "To friend Eliza," wasn't she mad, and thinking it was sent by the fellow that poisoned Drucker's gin, she fired it through the open window, Bishop Kipp was passing at the time—But at this pellet is getting too big for one swallow we'll adjourn.

The Grand Masquerade Ball of the Arion Society, which will take place at Gilmore's Garden, on Thursday, Feb. 21st, promises to be the great event of the season. The entire Fourth Avenue front of the building will represent a Moorish castle, made of natural flowers. In the interior, on the same end, will be an immense floral fortress composed of the rarest exotics and most beautiful native flowers. Behind a screen erected within its wall, 1,000 men, in costumes representing all nations and all sorts of characters, will form in column. At the sound of the music they will emerge from one of the gates of the fortress and march in procession around the room. As soon as the rear of the column has passed out of the gate the whole structure will disappear as if by magic, and in its place will arise an enormous lady's fan, glowing with color and light. Between the ribs of the fan will appear the glistening waters of the cascade, and the spectacle will be one of unparalleled beauty, far surpassing any effects produced in the "Black Crook" or other spectacles of like nature. At each corner of the Madison Avenue end, dressing and toilet rooms for ladies will be fitted up and furnished with everything necessary for the comfort of the fair dancers, while the gentlemen will be equally well taken care of.—The Stage.

A trial of the telephone was lately made at Osborne by Queen Victoria. Miss Kate Field in London, sang "Kathleen Mavourneen," Shakespeare's "Cuckoo Song," "Coming Thro' the Rye," and spoke the epilogue to "As You Like It," these being distinctly heard at Osborne; the Queen returning thanks telephonically through the Duke of Connaught.

London, vide the London Figaro, has 2500 professors of music, 2600 firms who manufacture or sell music or musical instruments, in the English provinces there are 6500 professors of music, yet the English are styled an unmusical people.

The Reverend Henry Ward Beecher, who recently irreverently abolished the devil and his place of business, is thus ungratefully roasted by an Eastern sinner:

We crave your pardon, dear
While a story we present,
Of marching with the Goody-goody Guards
Of the Thirtieth regiment.
Our Chaplain's name is Beecher,
A celebrated Case,
A splendid figure upon a horse,
With his buttons and his lace.

Then shoulder guns,
And march, march away!
At Plymouth Church
Our chaplain stops to pray,
And the drums and fife
So merrily will play.
As we march, march, march the Goody-goody Guards!

We wanted advertising
To draw the duffers in,
To renew our regimentals, and Supply the crew with tin,
And so we went for Beecher,
Who set us by the ears,
For the first demand he made on us
Was for more vivandiers.

Then shoulder guns, etc.
He said that Tommy Sheegman
Would march with each parade,
And save the expense of a watering-cart,
As the dust would all be laid.
And we need not fear the ateches
In any part of town,
As Beecher's odor of sanctity
Would surely keep them down.
Then shoulder guns, etc.

But three things more are lacking
To make the show complete.
If Tilton could be our banner-staff,
We would surely crowd the street;
With Moulton for drum-major,
Leading our lovely ranks,
And pretty young ladies in uniform,
Arrayed upon the flanks.
Then shoulder guns,
And march, march away!
At Plymouth Church
Our chaplain stops to pray,
And the drums and fife
So merrily will play.
As we march, march, march, the Goody-goody Guards!

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactories of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

A Laughing Remedy

A long-waisted, consumptive-looking young man yesterday entered the office of a Woodward avenue dentist holding his cheek in his hand. He not only had the toothache, but he had arrived at that point where his mind was made up to have the troublesome thing extracted.

"Gimme laughing-gas," was his curt salutation as he took a chair.

The dentist looked him over, concluded it would be safe to comply, and while he was getting ready the stranger looked down upon the street. He presently saw two well-dressed women slowly approaching each other. Both were well-dressed, proud and dignified, and they sailed by each other as if each one thought she owned the whole city. One of them wanted to look back at the other's hat, but by a great effort she controlled herself and kept on. The other wanted to look back, and after a struggle with pride and dignity, turned her head. She walked forward as she looked back, and disaster overtook her, as a natural consequence. She encountered a baby cab, and while the cab rolled one way she fell the other. The man with the toothache had seen the whole performance, and he knew how that fall would ruffle her dignity and crumble her pride. He began to chuckle, and as the proud woman made a kick at the cab, he yelled out:

"Haw! Haw! Haw!—get your forceps—haw! haw! haw!—pull 'er out quick—haw! haw! I'm tickled to death—pull! pull! pull!—never mind the gas—haw! haw! haw!"

And the tooth was out before he got over feeling tickled.—Free Press.

PROGRAMME...Part First

- 1 Centennial March.....Belferich
- 2 Symphony, E flat major.....Mozart
- a Adagio, Allegro
- c Andante
- d Menuetto Allegretto
- d Finale Allegro

Part Second

- 1 Danse Macabre, (Dance of Death).....St. Saens
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! Death with cadence gay,
Beating with his heel on a tombstone gray,
Death at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! on his violin
Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the willows come cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Running, leaping high—each one in his shroud.
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! see them flutt'ring by,
Hear the dancers bones clicking horribly!
Pst! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be,
All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee.
—HENRI CAZALIS.
- 2 Reverie, Night Song.....Vogt
(Strings only)
- 3 Overture, Tannhauser.....Wagner
In rehearsal for the first concert of the second series, Raff's celebrated Symphony, "Im Walde" (In the Woods).

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Portona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be obtained upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed, superfluous and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in a well selected reading matter. As one of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $5—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. SCENIC ILLUSTRATIONS OF RARE BEAUTY

An Old Kentucky Home in Winter and the contrasting Picture. St. Clair's Home in Louisiana, together with a Cotton Plantation on Red River, with Flatboats and Steamboats "Wooding Up."

Over One Hundred Genuine Colored People

Many of them former Slaves in Dixie's Land—Men, Women and Children, have been added to the masses of Auxiliaries.

SYNOPSIS OF SCENERY AND INCIDENTS

ACT FIRST.—Sold in Bondage. Mr. Shelby's Plantation. A Winter Night's Rejoicing of the Slaves. Tavern on the Banks of the Ohio. Escape of Eliza on the Ice. Floe battles the Pursuers. Thrilling Tableau.

ACT SECOND.—The Tavern by the River. Geo. Harris fleeing from bondage. The Pursuit. The Kentuckian. "That's my mind." Meeting of George and Eliza. Rocky Pass. The Pursuers. Escape of George and Eliza. "Friend there's not wanted here." Exciting Tableau.

ACT THIRD.—Superb Picture of a Southern Home. Miss Ophelia's first appearance in the South. How Shiftless! Topsy's History. De child that neber was born. I see so wicked. Sunset on the Lake. Eva and Uncle Tom. "I see a band of spirits bright." Eva's bed-chamber. Death of Little Eva. Solemn and impressive Tableau. Hymn. "Passing Away," by a Grand Chorus of One Hundred Jubilee Singers.

ACT FOURTH.—Topsy and the stockings. "I aint half so wicked as I used to was." St. Clair to Eva in Heaven. Topsy and Aunt Ophelia. Death of St. Clair. Slave market in New Orleans. Song, "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground." (By the Slaves). Uncle Tom sold to Legree. Young Shelby searching for Uncle Tom. A lawyer's information never grates. The Red River at Sunset. Great Plantation Scene, by Strauss, introducing all the Freedmen, over one hundred, to illustrate the labor of Cotton Picking. The Passing Flatboat. To be followed by a Genuine Plantation Festival, in which Mr. George Reynolds (late of Reynolds Bros.), Mr. Chas. Cogill (late of Cogill & Cooper), and Mr. Geo. Thompson (the Happy Old Nig), together with the Jubilee Singers, will appear in Songs, Dances and Choruses. Camp-Meeting Hymns, etc., and the old-time Nigger Jolification. Walking for the Cako (thus affording a realistic picture of Southern life, before the war, that has never been equaled). Arrival of the Steamboat. Legree, Eviline and Uncle Tom. The Flooding. Legree's House. Cassy and Legree. The lock of hair. The workings of a guilty conscience. "Do you know that I have made up my mind to kill you?" The last Blow. Retribution! Death of Poor Uncle Tom. "I've got the victory—The Lord has given it to me—Glory be to His name. Hymn by the Jubilees. Apoptosis—Magnificent Allegorical Tableau, Little Eva in Heaven!

California Theater

The production of "The Deluge" has been attended with much success, but is announced to be withdrawn on Saturday evening. On Monday, March 4th, "A Trip to the Moon" will be produced, by general request.

Grand Opera House

In all the rivals of "Uncle Tom" throughout the country, it is doubtful if any of them has been placed on the stage in better style, or has met with the same success as the present performance at the Grand. Another week will be required to satisfy public curiosity, and then it will only be withdrawn to fill the contract for "Sardanapalus," a notice of which will be found under our theatrical gossip. The same machinist who superintended the construction of the scenery at Booth's will supervise the same here. The stage of the Grand is larger than Booth's which will render necessary an addition to the scenes.

Baldwin's Theater

In the published programme of Olympic Club benefit, on Friday evening next, we notice that Mr. Fred. Lyster is underlined for a comic song. This alone ought to be sufficient to fill the house, and it is a very deserved compliment from that gentleman to our popular club of young gymnasts.

If there are any professional acrobats in the city at present, who are disengaged for that evening, let them attend, and they may see performed some tricks not in their repertoire. Our Club can hold their own against any and all comers in grace and muscle.

On Sunday evening there will doubtless be an assemblage of the friends of Mr. George B. Rieman that will agreeably surprise that gentleman; indeed, it is doubtful if one edition will be enough to go around all his well-wishers. Without any personal acquaintance, the programme offered is sufficient to fill one house.

Bush Street Theater

Female burlesquers as usual.

The Fountain

Free concert, with refreshments, every evening, after theater hours, and matinee on Sunday afternoon at 3.

Herold Matinee

One of the best of the season was given yesterday afternoon, notice of which is deferred. A new series of six concerts will be inaugurated next Wednesday at 3 p. m.

Horticultural Hall

A fair in aid of the German Hospital Fund has been inaugurated here, under the auspices of the lady friends of the German Benevolent Society. Charity, chief among the noblest of virtues, appeals to the heart of the humanity independent of country or creed; we trust that the noble efforts of those fair ladies who have generously contributed to, and are assisting by their presence at the fair, will be rewarded by the public sufficiently to accomplish the most worthy object aimed at—namely, the collection of funds enough to enable the hospital to open its doors to the afflicted free of debt. The interior decorations of the hall, the tasteful arrangement of wreaths of evergreens crowning the articles on exhibition, and the tempting manner in which these articles are arranged, all bespeak the presence and supervision of the fair sex. A very neatly printed Daily Fair Report, of eight pages, containing programme of amusements, and information concerning the exhibition, is circulated within the hall, and will be found quite useful to visitors. When you visit, don't forget to take at least one pocket full of silver with you. For names of ladies in attendance, see third page.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

MR. CHARLES POPE arrived in this city yesterday from Honolulu. We learn that he will go to Virginia City to join Piper's Opera Company.

A new sketch by George Thatcher entitled "The Two Tramps," was produced lately in New York by the S. F. Minstrels. Billy Birch and the author made a hit in it.

MAJERONI met with a brilliant reception at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, last Monday night. He appeared in "Old Corporal," to a large and enthusiastic house.

DR. SIMMS, the eminent physiognomist and author lectures each night this week, at Dashaway Hall, on character, and how to read it in the human face. He describes character at the rooms of the Hall daily, this week only.

WE acknowledge receipt from the publishing house of Messrs. A. Roman & Co. of "Palm Branches," by Mrs. S. M. Mills, also "How Columbus found America," in pen and pencil by Palmer Cox, review of which will appear in to-morrow's Footlight.

RIEMAN's benefit at Baldwin's Academy next Sunday evening promises to be a "bumper." The entire theatrical profession have volunteered. It is said that Rieman himself will deliver a recitation, but knowing the native modesty of that gentleman we doubt the truth of this report.

THE entire scenery, costumes and properties for the spectacular drama of "Sardanapalus" soon to be produced at the Grand Opera House, were manufactured in London for Jarrett & Palmer and used by them during the representation at Booth's. The costumes are said to be of a novel and unique character, in a style never before seen on this side the Rocky Mountains. They were considered too elegant and expensive to be used during the provincial tour of the company, and were packed carefully away, until secured by Mr. Kennedy for production here.

THERE appears to have been lately a general revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." On the 18th current, Jarrett & Palmer opened with it at Booth's for a short season, with new and realistic scenery by Matt Morgan, Russell Smith and J. S. Schell. In the plantation scenes there appeared two bands of Jubilee singers and a large number of genuine freedmen, also camp meeting shouters and an eccentric corps of coons.

There is no nation more fluent in conversation than the American. The French are more voluble, perhaps, their language permitting greater rapidity of pronunciation than English. Our best conversationalists are not rapid talkers. One trouble with us, each one likes to do all the talking, therefore Americans are not good listeners. But mere talking is not conversation. In almost all home circles there is much talking during the day, but we fear there are few who do not reserve their most brilliant conversational powers for other assemblies than the home group. Many a father comes home tired; he has worked hard and talked a great deal, told amusing anecdotes, and displayed much wit. He has come home to rest. He takes out his paper, and is soon oblivious to everything around him. Wife would like to tell him many of the hilarious affections of the day, and would like to hear some of his interesting experiences, but if he were a deaf mute he could not become more silent, only an occasional grunt answering her many attempts at conversation; and the children, except the good-night kiss, and often not even that, are not noticed. Such a home, whether the abode of wealth or otherwise, cannot be a healthy, happy one. As a parallel, draw around the evening lamp of another home circle. The father tells the anecdotes from the papers as he reads them; mother laughs her sweet, low laugh, and the children burst into merry ha! ha's! To watch them as they ask questions, and listen to the answers and patient explanations, the wonderment, interest and thought, imprinted on their young faces, is a picture for an artist. This home education is a heritage more valuable than land or money; and one beautiful recompense in life is, that in making others happy we bring happiness to ourselves. Parents who practice self-denial, and endeavor by cheerful conversation and playful wit, to enliven home life, will reap a rich reward in the better thoughts and nobler actions of their children, and will experience the truest and best contentment themselves. —Baltimore American.

The Art of Advertising

Among the great Anglo-Saxon family advertising has become an art, the knowledge of which is as necessary to a business man as arithmetic. Where, when and how to advertise is the problem, to the correct solving of which is due the success of nearly all the business enterprises of the present day.

Wherever the go-ahead American or his enterprising British cousin is to be found, advertising exists in all its glory, in every known language, and thrust before the public eye by every available means; from the painted inscriptions on the Oakland trestlework to the advertisement of American Bitters, discovered by Mark Twain on the apex of the highest pyramid, from words composed of letters many feet in length to the modest three or four-line add in the daily newspaper.

Not many years ago it was thought a work of inferiority for a store-keeper to advertise his wares, but now the knowledge of how to supply all our wants is gleaned from the advertising page of some popular daily. Its agency has ever been employed to effect matrimonial alliances, so that all the greater and lesser wants of man, from the house and lot to the bride, from the cradle to the coffin, are included in its manifold branches. In fact, advertising in some form or other has become as necessary to the buyer as the seller, to the play-goer as to the theater manager, to the patient as to the doctor.

These facts, which could be multiplied ad lib., were our readers less conversant with the subject, must impress upon all the necessity of studying the "Art of Advertising," in all its branches.

In search of information on this vital question, several gentlemen who advertise on a large scale were interviewed, and the answers obtained to the query propounded—"When, Where, and How to Advertise"—were briefly as follows: 1st, When to advertise. Always advertise. Never suffer your business to be for one moment forgotten by the public.

2d, Where to advertise. This part of the question allowed for greater diversity of opinion, but of course the daily press headed the list of desirable mediums, one merchant adding, "that for his part, he preferred the Chronicle to any other journal, because everybody read it whether they subscribed for it or not, and therefore its large circulation is only a secondary consideration when its value as an advertising medium is discussed." Advertising in cars and those papers given away as programmes at the theaters had many supporters, while the merits of the Hotel Register were endorsed by all the gentlemen interviewed, the peculiar information contained in it being of a nature to cause it to be depended upon as a species of directory for the best business establishments of every class.

The third and last part of the question, "How to advertise," was answered without a dissenting voice. It being agreed that anything worth doing was worth doing well, therefore always choose the best possible situation for your ad, and allot to it such space as will insure its arresting the attention of all who see it.

Such were the views of men whose success in business has been achieved by making use of the knowledge now laid before the public in this article, and we say to all who read it go then and do likewise.

A recent event, says the London Era, has brought to remembrance a little anecdote of a celebrated composer, which seems hitherto to have escaped the snappers-up of unconsidered trifles. When Verdi paid his first visit to Milan, after the success of his "Il Trovatore" had been established in London, he was quite delighted by seeing the streets illuminated at night with triumphal arches, bearing gas jets forming the letters V. E. R. D. I. When he got to his hotel he expatiated on the musical enthusiasm of the inhabitants of the city, and declared it was the highest compliment ever paid to the composer of an opera. Verdi felt uncomfortable when it was explained that the brilliant letters stood simply for the initials of "Victor Emmanuel, Roi D'Italie."

A Floren county farmer halted his team on a crossing and read a large sign stretched across the road. He read, "R-a-i-l, r-o-a-d, road, railroad, c-r-o-s, c-r-o-s, crossing, railroad crossing. L-o-o-double o-l double o-k, look, o-n-t, out, f-o-r, for, look out for, t-h-e, the, e-n, en—" and before he could say "g," or even think of a word beginning with it, the end of the world struck his wagon amidsthips, he saw his horse wandering off in different directions into the infinity of space, he was vaguely conscious of snaffle rings, and broken tires, and shattered springs, twisted reaches and harness things, and fragments of song like a whirlwind sings, and when he came crashing down on his back and bulged through the top of a freight car, and wrecked a job lot of agricultural implements, he would have given all his wagon was worth to know what the rest of that sign was.—St. Louis Herald.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of H. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacture of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imperfect article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest sensational in business cards, to be had of L. DeRoussay & Co., 35 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new water-rooms opened at No. 1 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect the self-clicking & sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danish Glove Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Dept., 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

HOFFMANN'S AUCTION HOUSE, 208 Market Street. Ladies' and Gents' goods sold at sacrificing prices.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the handling. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. BRIDGES, at 230 Kearny Street, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing (Gentle Jewels), he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of his fine work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's No. 135 Montgomery Street.

OLD FASHIONED N. O. MOLASSES CANNY. Maple Wax, High Corners, all kinds of Fire, Brass Nails, Walrus, Forest, and Metal Paint, Cans, a TOWNSEND'S STEAM CANNY FACTORY, 227 Market Street.

PHILIP OF ST. PAUL, a member of the Royal Academy, has removed to 100 Post Street, where a full line of ARTIST'S MATERIALS, Brushes, Pencils, Pastels, Oil, Varnishes, etc., can be found in the Fine Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. In the evening, 7 to 9 p.m.

THE WASHINGTON CLOTHING STORE, 100 Post Street, has received a large stock of the latest styles in men's clothing, and is now open for business. We are the only store in the city that has a full line of the latest styles in men's clothing, and are now open for business. Ask your friend for a list of the latest styles in men's clothing, and you will find it all at the Washington Clothing Store, 100 Post Street.

E. J. HARRIS & CO. have received a large stock of the latest styles in men's clothing, and are now open for business. We are the only store in the city that has a full line of the latest styles in men's clothing, and are now open for business. WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Pine Apples, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rich's FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBICK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in a well selected reading matter. As one sheet of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. Over One Hundred Genuine Colored People

Many of them former Slaves in Dixie's Land—Men, Women and Children, have been added to the masses of Auxiliaries.

SYNOPSIS OF SCENERY AND INCIDENTS

ACT FIRST.—Sold in Bondage. Mr. Shelby's Plantation. A Winter Night's Rejoicing of the Slaves. Tavern on the Banks of the Ohio. Escape of Eliza on the Ice. Floe baffles the Pursuers. Thrilling Tableau.

| ACT SECOND.—The Tavern by the River. Geo. Harris fleeing from bondage. The Pursuit. The Kentuckian. "That's my mind." Meeting of George and Eliza. Rocky Pass. The Pursuers. Escape of George and Eliza. "Friend thee's not wanted here." Exciting Tableau. |
| ACT THIRD.—Superb Picture of a Southern Home. Miss Ophelia's first appearance in the South. How Shiftless! Topsy's History. De child that neber was born. I see so wicked. Sunset on the Lake. Eva and Uncle Tom. "I see a band of spirits bright." Eva's bed-chamber. Death of Little Eva. Solemn and impressive Tableau. Hymn. "Passing Away," by a Grand Chorus of One Hundred Jubilee Singers. |
| ACT FOURTH.—Topsy and the stockings. "I aint half so wicked as I used to was." St. Clair to Eva in Heaven. Topsy and Aunt Ophelia. Death of St. Clair. Slave market in New Orleans. Song, "Massa's in the Cold Cold Ground." (By the Slaves). Uncle Tom sold to Legree. Young Shelby searching for Uncle Tom. A lawyer's information never gratis. The Red River at Sunset. Great Plantation Scene, by Strauss, introducing all the Freedmen, over one hundred, to illustrate the labor of Cotton Picking. The Passing Flatboat. To be followed by a Genuine Plantation Festival, in which Mr. George Reynolds (late of Reynolds Bros.), Mr. Chas. Cogill (late of Cogill & Cooper), and Mr. Geo. Thompson (the Happy Old Nig), together with the Jubilee Singers, will appear in Songs, Dances and Choruses, Camp-Meeting Hymns, etc., and the old-time Nigger Jollification. Walking for the Cake (thus affording a realistic picture of Southern life, before the war, that has never been equaled). Arrival of the Steamboat. Legree, Eveline and Uncle Tom. The Floking. Legree's House. Cassy and Legree. The lock of hair. The workings of a guilty conscience. "Do you know that I have made up my mind to kill you?" The Last Blow. Retribution! Death of Poor Uncle Tom. "I've got the victory—The Lord has given it to me—Glory be to His name. Hymn by the Jubilees. APOTHEOSIS—Magnificent Allegorical Tableau, Little Eva in Heaven! |

"The Deluge," with its magnificent scenery, will be withdrawn after Saturday evening, and will be followed for a short season by the opera bouffe, "A Trip to the Moon," which will be the last chance of watching the graceful evolutions of the Kiralfy Ballet Troupe, for the present, in this city.

Grand Opera House

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" to full houses, as usual, no sign of public interest in this drama being yet in the wane.

Baldwin's Theater

The annual exhibition of the Olympic Club to-night, will doubtless crowd this elegant place of amusement. The active members of the club will appear in force, and under the leadership of Mr. Lawton display their proficiency in athletic art. Miss Catherine Lewis will assist and render the drinking song from "Girofle-Girofla" in her own inimitable style. Mr. Harry Edwards will speak a piece, and Mr. Fred. Lyster, director of orchestra, will go through the gymnastics of a comic song. We expect and trust the whole affair will be of the most brilliant character.

Bush Street Theater

Last week of the Female Minstrels.

The Fountain

Read the programme on third page, under Amusements, for performance this evening.

Horticultural Hall

Ladies' Fair in aid of the German Hospital Fund, open day and evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Don't forget to visit the fair at Horticultural Hall, in aid of the funds of the German Hospital.

Miss MINNIE WALTON, who played the "Loan of a Lover" 150 consecutive nights at the Haymarket Theater, London, will play the same again at Baldwin's Academy, next Sunday night, for Rieman's benefit.

The Coryphees of the Kiralfy Ballet Troupe will have a benefit at the California on Tuesday afternoon.

"A CELEBRATED CASE" is the piece chosen for re-opening of Baldwin's Theater by the Union Square Company.

The Cambrian Mutual Aid Society will celebrate St. David's Day at Platt's Hall this evening. Miss Catherine Lewis will assist in the entertainment.

Just published by W. B. MacKellar, Music Typographer, No. 518 Clay street, "The Golden State Grand March." Arrangement for piano by Adam Geibel.

ELLIE WALTON, Barton Hill, Harry Edwards, etc., will constitute the cast of "Naval Engagements," next Sunday evening, at Baldwin's Academy—a strong bill.

Dr. SIMMS draws well to hear his able lectures on human character, at Dashaway Hall, each night. He lectures on physiognomy to-night. He describes character daily at Dashaway Hall.

On Thursday, March 7th, at the Grand Opera House, a benefit will be given to the widow of the late Geo. T. Evans. The Grand Opera House and California Theater Companies will unite in rendering a programme worthy of the occasion. The musical selections will be under the orchestral supervision of Messrs. Herold, Schultz, and Widmer. We trust the greatest success may attend their efforts.

The great Kiralfy Eastern Coryphees will take a benefit Tuesday afternoon at the California. The company have rendered themselves very popular in this city, and to show their appreciation, the public will no doubt greet them with a crowded house. The entire Companies of the California Theater, Grand Opera House, and Bush Street Theater have volunteered, and the programme will be one of the greatest of the season. The programme will appear on our third page tomorrow.

ALICE Harrison will sing—Tom Keene will recite—Mrs. Judah will read—Curtis will give new imitations of celebrated actors—Annie Pixley in song and dance—are some of the features of Rieman's benefit, next Sunday evening, at Baldwin's Academy.

The latest arrival in New Zealand waters in the shape of a public entertainer is Mr. Stephen Massett, who landed the other day in Auckland from the San Francisco steamer, and opened at the Choral Hall to a large and expectant audience. This gentleman created a very favorable impression when he visited Australia many years ago, and single-handed amused large crowds for a couple of hours or so at a time. Since then as an author and actor under the non de plume and non de theater of "Jeemes Pipes of Pipeville," Mr. Massett has gained fame, if not fortune, both at home and in America, and his humorous entertainments are very highly spoken of.—New Zealand Sun, Jan. 17.

Levy, so I am informed, opened to a £16 house in Nelson, the Nelsonites, musical and otherwise, failing to be drawn either by the wonderful man himself or his distinguished company, or even the irrepressible R. T. The latter, however succeeded in 'bluffing' off the Lydia Howard troupe who had intended to have appeared one night in Nelson on their way from the West Coast to Wellington, but Mr. Shepperson being cramped by 'Thatcher' with stories of the wonderful big business he was doing, he was left in undisturbed possession. The Levy company have now gone to Auckland, where I do really hope they may receive the support which they so richly deserve. I cannot, for the life of me, understand the reason of the denizens of the Sleepy Hollow not waking up to such a rare treat as Levy's company procures.—Ibid.

Says an Exchange: "A young girl, about as pretty as they grow 'em, recently stepped into Ditson's music store, and asked one of the clerks, inquiringly, if he had 'A Heart that Loves Me Only'?"

"No," he said, but here's 'A Health to Thee, Mary.'"

That wouldn't do, but before she turned to go she asked:

Have you "One Sweet Kiss Before We Part?"

The clerk looked up and down the store; the book-keeper was out, the boss was engaged with a deaf old lady trying to sell her an old melodeon, and so he leaned over the counter and turned out about half a dozen of the best and most artistically finished articles that the astonished young lady had ever seen offered in a job lot.

She didn't say much, but she went out of the store in a step and a half, and rubbed her cheeks thoughtfully all the way home."

A CORRESPONDENT of the Philadelphia Bulletin, writing from Brussels, January 21st, says:

"Miss Minnie Hauck, the great American prima donna, who has been recently engaged to replace the late Mme. Tietjens at Her Majesty's Opera in London, is now singing at the Grand Opera House in Brussels, where she obtained the greatest success. The Brussels papers unanimously put her in the same rank with La Patti and Nilsson, and Miss Minnie Hauck undoubtedly can be considered as the coming star. During the last five years the young and beautiful singer filled successfully the positions as prima donna at the Italian operas of Paris and London, and the grand Imperial operas of Vienna and Berlin, and has been created Kammer-Sangerin (Singer of the Imperial Court) by the Emperor of Germany. The Queen of Belgium conferred upon her the Order of the Star (Stern-Kreuz). Miss Hauck is now engaged by Mr. Maurice Strakosch for the sum of 500,000 francs ($100,000) for three years."

This is the way Mr. Sam Clemens describes the Bush street sensation as performed at headquarters:

"On my arrival at Paris I inquired what was the best place to spend an evening, and was told that the most aristocratic place of resort was the Jardin Maillie. I took a cab and proceeded thither. I found myself in a beautiful garden, brilliantly lighted. There was a crowd of ladies and gentlemen, a fine band was playing, and a quadrille forming. While I was gazing about a gentleman asked me if I wished to dance. I said I would like to, but that I was a stranger and not acquainted with any of the nobility present. He smiled and said the French nobility were exceedingly affable and obliging, and that he would be pleased to introduce me to a lady of high rank and varied accomplishments, who would dance with me if I wished. Then he presented me to the young Duchess d'Assafutida (that's as near as I could catch the name).

I had never stood face to face with a Duchess before, and therefore felt diffident and ill at ease. This graceful creature understood my case at once, and within two or three minutes made me feel perfectly at home—more than at home, I may say. I never met a lady so easy to get acquainted with as she was. It must require a high cultivation, only to be attained in the upper ranks of society, to give one such self-possession as hers. This Duchess smiled upon me in the most encouraging way, and tapped me on the shoulder with her fan, then she looked up into my face and charmed away all my embarrassment with a burst of cheery laughter that was full of happiness and gaiety.

Next, she took my arm, beating time to the music with her fan, and still uttering that fragrant laughter. And next she put her arm around my neck. This was somewhat unexpected, I must say. It made me feel blissfully uncomfortable. I enjoyed it, but, at the same time, I was afraid it might attract attention. I intimidated as gently as I could, that the Duke, her father, might be in the crowd somewhere; but she only laughed more odorously than ever. I feared the paternal Duke might invite me to breakfast on pistols and coffee. I like coffee, but I do not consider it improves it to mix it with hardware. This I hinted to the Duchess, and she received it with one of those peculiar laughs of hers that was perfectly smothering.

Just then the music struck up furiously, the Duchess exclaimed, "Come!" and dashed away with me. The crowd closed up to our set, and walled it on every side. I had never before seen so much curiosity displayed in a mere quadrille by disinterested parties. Dukes and Duchesses began to prance to and fro in the dance with wild energy of purpose and extravagance of gesture.

I began to get interested. I glanced across; my partner was just turning; she miscalculated the length of her limbs and lifted her dress accordingly; she came prancing over; I sallied forth to meet her, and, when we were within a yard of each other, I wish I may never be believed again if she did not kick the hat off my head! I stooped to pick it up, and a noble aristocrat fell over me; others followed him—both ladies and gentlemen—and I never saw such a chaos of struggling limbs and frantic drapery since the benches broke down at the circus when I was a boy. It was pure good fortune that nobody was hurt.

When I got out I went to my place at the head of the quadrille and stayed there. I had lost confidence; this dance was too high-toned for me. It had peculiarities about it that were new and unexpected. I had seen plenty of quadrilles, but I had never seen one with variations before. The Duchess resumed her mad career, and the rest of the nobility danced just as she did. Each sex seemed to have but one object in view—to out do the opposite in violence of action and eccentricity of conduct. These French people are very Frenchy. If I had not known that these people were the flower of the French nobility I should have thought that they began their education in a gymnasium and graduated in a circus.

The first time the Duchess halted by my side for a moment, I whispered to her to calm her gushing spirits, not to meddle with her dress, and, for public opinion's sake, not to step so high. I said she could get over just as much ground at a moderate gait; and, besides, the noble Grand Duke, her father, might happen along at any moment. I might as well have talked to the wind. She only laughed that characteristic laugh of hers, that silvery laugh that I could recognize anywhere if I were to the leeward, and then, bending a little, she grabbed up the sides of her apparel with both hands, began to jerk it to and fro in a turbulent manner, threw her magnificent head back, and skipped furiously away on an Irish jig-step, all excitement, all hilarity, distracted costume, frenzied motion! A spectacle to seal the eye-balls and to astonish the soul of a hermit! And when she reached the center she snatched her cumbering dresses free, and launched a kick at the hat of a tall nobleman that fairly lifted the scalp on the top of his head. I fled the scene, exclaiming, "What can she mean by such conduct as those?"

I admire Paris; but, in my opinion, the ways of the nobility are not what they ought to be."

LETTER FROM ILLINOIS

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., Feb. 21, 1878.

EDITOR FOOTLIGHT: For the past few weeks the roads and weather have been so very bad that the several managers of our halls have seen the attendance grow smaller day by day. Gilmore's Band drew a $600 house, composed of our best citizens. Lew Morrison's Combination, with Rose Wood, drew a fair house at Durley Hall the first night, while the second, notwithstanding a very old play and awful streets, the house was nearly full. Mr. Morrison is one of the best actors that has visited Bloomington for some time. He plays in Chicago this week and then goes direct to New Orleans. About the first of April he will reorganize his troupe preparatory for a visit to the Pacific Coast. San Francisco should give him full houses every night. Hon. Geo. R. Windling repeated his lecture, "Reply to Robt. Ingersoll," last Sunday, in Durley Hall. The house was crammed from the orchestra to the galleries. Every one is enthusiastic over him. Next week he goes to Washington, D. C., one night, thence to Baltimore, then back to Washington, and then back to Baltimore, from thence East direct. He lectures in New York, Boston, and all the principal cities. Den. Thompson was in Durley Hall last Monday. The house was good, but, owing to some misunderstanding, the music was mostly omitted. The Hyer Sisters in Durley Hall, 22d and 23d. Charlotte Thompson, with Wallack Combination, 25th. Alabama Minstrels in Schroder's Opera House, 21st and 22d. Jannashek, March 7th, Durley Hall. Primrose & West's Minstrels, March 9th. Lawrence Barrett, March 15th. Joe Murphy, in "Kerry Gow," March 18th, and a host of others; in fact, our halls will be filled nearly every night for two months. An effort has been made to induce Robt. Ingersoll to lecture here, but with no success as yet. Yours, NEMO, JR.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of H. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal center has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacturing of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

Is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Riche's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, and in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

Description of Scenery and Incidents

ACT FIRST—SCENE 1—The Fallen Angels. Borders of Bitumin Lake—Satan Chained. "Vanquished." The Spirit of Forgiveness. "I read thy Soul! I have touched thy Heart!" "Repent, Satan, it is yet time." Appearance of Gabriel. "Thy Mission is at an end! Mine, about to commence." Satan breaks his chains, and summons Belzebub and Moloch to his aid. SATAN, KING OF EVIL. SCENE SECOND—PANDEMONIUM! Satan in Council. Rejoicing of the Fallen Ones. Introducing the Entire Corps de Ballet. The Conflict and Fight. Death and Sin. On! on to my new found Kingdom! Satan's Curse against Manland.

ACT SECOND—THE GARDEN OF EDEN! Adam and Eve. Eve, my Sweet Companion, Forbidden Fruit and Tree of Death. The Serpent! Satan and Eve. "We are lost—It is the angry voice of Heaven. Demons, take your prey." Back, Repentance is still left to them." Adam and Eve banished from Paradise. Tableau.

ACT THIRD—THE DEATH OF ABEL. "The abode that we have lost, it was perpetual Spring." An Autumn Glade. Abel's Dream; Cain reproaching his parents. "Thou art my first born." Cain weeping. "But Abel was not born thou." "Can there be more tortures?" "There are!" Eve and Satan. "It is not thy beauty, it is thy soul I want. Thou shalt suffer in thy children." The Sacrificial Altars. Cain and Abel. Jealousy. Death of Abel. Adam's curse upon Cain. Tableau—Vengeance and Justice.

ACT FOURTH—TEMPLE OF ENOCH. Bacchanal Chorus. "Song." "Tubal." Gorgeous Pageant of the People of Knoch and Sons of Cain. Noema tempted by Satan. The Jewels. "I have seen thee weep and I love thee." "Noah constructing the Ark." Prayers of Noah's Children. Threatens from Heaven! "Let us drink to the Gods we worship." Grand Divertissement. LES FILLES D'ÈVE. Composed and Arranged by Bolossy Kiralfy. 1. Bacchanal Dance, by the Coryphees. 2. Variations, by De Rosa, Palladino and Arnold Kiralfy. 3. The Dew Dance—Rubys and Emeralds, by the Corps de Ballet; 4. Pas Neuve, by the Principals; 5. Pas Evantelle, by the Secondas; 6. Grand Ensemble. The Glory of the New Divinities. Heaven's Anger. The Destruction. The Flood.

ACT FIFTH—THE DELUGE! War of the Elements. The Struggle for Life. A world realization of the Deluge, as Portrayed in Genesis. "Am I not Lord yet—who art thou?" "Satan, the enemy of Man." "In vain I live—in vain I will die." Satan's triumph over the destruction of the world. Gabriel. "One race is still left—Behold!" The Ark. The Rainbow. "Woman shall yet crush the Serpent's Head beneath her heel." Satan's Everlasting Defiance! Apotheosis.

California Theater

Good houses continue to witness "The Deluge," which will be performed for the last time this afternoon and evening. The Kivaly ballet will appear in "A Trip to the Moon," on Monday evening, and an extra matinee will be given on Tuesday for the benefit of the Coryphees of this troupe.

Grand Opera House

The genuine darkey plantation scenes in "Uncle Tom" have lost none of their attractive power as yet, as the house is full every evening. The longer the piece lasts the better it gets. Many of the audience go there every night. "Uncle Tom" next week.

Baldwin's Theater

The Olympic Club annual benefit last night, as might have been expected, filled the house. The whole affair passed off in good style. The Indian club exercise, by Harry Preble, was neatly performed. The double trapeze, by Bogner and Blair, was quite equal to anything in that line by professional performers. Fred Lyster gave "The Fine Old Irish Gentleman" in a quiet manner, free from rant, and very telling. His position on the stage, however, marred the effect of the song a little. About one yard less before the audience, and he would have been where Wagner's future orchestra is intended to be—out of sight. The groupings and pyramid ladders, by members of the club, were gracefully performed. The vaulting, by LaGrange, was accomplished in good style. And the horizontal bar exercise, by J. A. Hammer-smith, assisted by Ben. Bogner, was the best exhibition of the kind ever given in San Francisco, and the fooling of Bogner was simply immense and quite indescribable. The encores were not given out of compliment, but out of an intense desire to see more of the performance. The management has reason to be satisfied with the success of the entertainment.

Bush Street Theater

Last opportunity to see the Mabel Santley Burlesquers. Last Can-can to-night. Monday night the sensational actor, Oliver Bond Byron in his great drama "Across the Continent."

The Fountain

Crowds continue to fill up the auditorium of this successful concert hall and refreshment saloon. Free concert to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, evening performance as usual.

Horticultural Hall

The Ladies' Fair at present being held here is meeting with the greatest possible amount of success. Last night the Hall was crowded, and the prospects are that the object for which it was inaugurated will be successfully accomplished.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

ALICE OATES' opera troupe will be at Hooley's, Chicago, March 4th.

LADIES Fair at Horticultural Hall now open—go without fail.

THE Gymnastic Japs will gyrate at Woodward's this afternoon and to-morrow.

PERFORMANCE at Platt's Hall this evening, to celebrate the 19th anniversary of the Scandinavian Society.

THE Circus and Menagerie properties of Montgomery Queen were advertised to be sold in Louisville, Ky., on the 21st Feb.

THE Williamsons are now running their "Struck Oil," through the 24th week, at Grand Opera House, N. Y.

THE premiere danseuse Miss Emma Paladino of the Kivaly Ballet troupe will be the recipient of a benefit at the California on Wednesday evening next.

"UNCLE Tom's Cabin" is drawing full houses at Booth's. Jarrett will produce it in London, at Drury Lane theater early in April.

M. B. CURTIS will give imitations of Fechter, Booth, Lawrence Barrett, Bishop, Mestayer, and others, at Rieman's benefit to-morrow (Sunday) night at Baldwin's Academy.

"Who stole the Pocket-Book," "Yankee Jack the Pirate's son," "Brother Bill and Me," "The Tigers of the West," are a few of the classic titles of the drama now before the Eastern audiences.

DR. SIMMS rooms at Dashaway Hall are crowded with those who desire to have their character described. He lectures on the "Natural History of the Earth" to-night, at Dashaway Hall, Post St.

ONE of the features of Rieman's benefit to-morrow (Sunday) night at Baldwin's Academy will be the reading by good old Mrs. Judah, who has not appeared in public for some time.

WEBSTER'S Dictionary is not in use in New Zealand, so far as can be judged by the following description in a Wellington paper of Herr Schott as the celebrated solo coranglaiseist and liguridzolosophoneist.

THE greatest bill ever offered in this city will be presented at Baldwin's Theater to-morrow (Sunday) night. The following are a few of the principal volunteers, Mr. Barton Hill, Harry Edwards, Tom Keene, Alice Harrison, Ellie Wilton, Minnie Walton, Annie Pixley, and others.

ON account of Church Holiday, Ash Wednesday, the first concert of the second season Herold Matinees will not take place on the 6th current, but will occur on Wednesday the 13th, programme of which will appear in due season in our columns.

DON'T fail to attend the special benefit of the Kivaly Eastern Coryphees at the California, Tuesday, matinee 2 p. m. An immense programme will be presented. Almost the entire dramatic talent of all the theaters in the city have volunteered, and a rare treat may be expected.

THE exquisite silk dress to be worn by Mr. Bishop to-morrow (Sunday) night, at Baldwin's Theater, in the character of "Madame Vanderpant," was manufactured by "Worth's" expressly for this gentleman. It will be on exhibition all day to-day at the White House, and to-morrow will grace Bishop's self-like figure in "Wanted, a 1000 Milliners," which is one of the attractions for Kieman's benefit.

AUSTRALIA LETTER

MELBOURNE, VICTORIA,
Jun. 28, 1878.

DRAMATIC EDITOR SAN FRANCISCO

"FOOTLIGHT."—Dear Sir:—Since my last letter there is not much to relate in theatrical matters. The three principal houses have pantomimes on. The Theater Royal, Messrs. Coppin, Hennings and Greville, have done a fair business, and will close their Christmas and New Year's season this week. To-night (Monday)

Mr. Bland Holt, the clown, takes his benefit, the first in this town. I must give this gentleman a word of praise, for giving us a clown free from all vulgarity, and business, if not all new, a great part of it, and the remaining part well done. He is well supported by Mr. Joe Tolano as "Pantaloan." To-night, his benefit night, Mr. and Mrs. George Darrell (Mrs. Robt. Heir) give their services, also, Brown and Newland, and Mr. La

Fenillade, in addition to the best part of the pantomime, double harlequinade, etc. On Friday next, Mr. Chas. Cavanagh, the well-liked box-keeper, takes his usual yearly benefit the last night of the season. On Saturday the dramatic season commences. Messrs. Cheevers & Kennedy have just arrived from Sydney, and made arrangements for an opening at this house in one of their pieces.

Opera House.—The pantomime of the "Sleeping Beauty," with Salisbury Troubadours, are doing good business. Every member of this clever company have fairly gained all the praise they receive, for the able manner they do their portion of the work allotted to them, which, with new local sayings and new songs and dances, they keep the fun nearly always new. They also have a splendid orchestra, under the able leadership of Mr. Meader; and as an able and thorough gentlemanly stage manager no one could be better than Mr. N. Salisbury. Mr. Cronse is still their agent. I am given to understand that after their season they proceed to New Zealand. On Wednesday, Feb. 6th, next, Mr. Martin Simonson joins Mr. Lyster in commencing a season of English Comic Opera, with Mmc. Simonson as prima donna; he has organized a good company and orchestra and will produce several operas that have never been on the boards of a Victorian stage, their opening opera will be "Fleder Maus" (by Strauss), to be followed by "Hermit's Bell," "Merry Wives of Windsor," (Nichola), "Carlo Brooke, or La parte du Diable," (Auber). Mr. George Leopold, the comedian, has returned from New Zealand to join this company; so Mr. Simonson and his accomplished wife, assisted by an able company are sure to be successful.

Academy of Music, lessee Mr. G. B. W. Lewis, is still running his pantomime "Robinson Crusoe" to a first class business; it will hold its own for sometime yet. Mr. Fred. Thorne as "Friday" gains rounds and rounds of applause nightly for his able rendering of this burlesque character; on Friday night next he takes his first benefit in Melbourne, he is bound to have a grand attendance. Mr. William Creswick will shortly make his re-appearance after a most successful season in Sydney.

Princess Theater, lessee, Mr. L. M. Bayless, since the opening has done a very good biz, although it is outside the town. Baker and Farron finished a fairly successful season on Friday night last, in "Conrad and Lizzet." These gentlemen are now on a trip by themselves in the Gipps Land district; in a fortnight they start out with a dramatic company. Mr. George Ireland made his re-appearance in Melbourne, at this house on Saturday last as "Gaston, the Man with the Iron Mask," and met with a grand reception. The piece is rather dreary, but Mr. Ireland showed that since he left us he has not been idle, for he has greatly improved both in appearance and ability. He is fairly supported, but the company is not strong enough for a good dramatic production, but I am led to believe that Mr. Bayless is in negotiations with several first-class artists, both in America and England.

St. George's Hall.—Captain Hayward's Star Combination, a very good variety crowd, are now doing good biz, but the prices are ridiculous—sixpence, one, two, and three shillings; it takes a crowded house every night to tell up anything. Brown and Newland, the two nigger comedians are the principal draw. Laroche (The Great Laroche, as he calls himself) is fair, for once, but when you have seen him once you see him always. He has no change; he is after the style of Harry Rickards, but he is a long ways after him; but in his own opinion he is something wonderful. Falloy and O'Neill, two little song and dance artists, are really good. Mrs. Laroche is a very good ballad singer. Miss Willie Walton is really a very clever serio-comic singer. Now that biz has picked up, they are talking of taking the hall for a long term, to pull up for their losses over their inland trip; but they must not blame the country for not being always successful; if they will pick up Tom, Dick, or Harry for an agent, they must expect it. They now have a great big over-fed boy, Barrington by name, but better known as Buckam's Son. He has tried opera singing and several other lines, fish selling, etc., and has failed in all. So, if people will take such agents, when others are to be had, it serves them right. My advice to any one coming out to the colonies is, to look about them and ask at Liddy's Theatrical Agency, or any of the theater managers, for a good man, and they are bound to pull through if they have any merit at all.

"The Colloosseum," a concert hall, rather out of professional notice on account of its bad name, manages with good but hard-up talent, to keep its own. It is, as you call it in America, a low dive. Cooper & Bailey's Circus and Menagerie finished their Melbourne season on Saturday last, January 19th, to an enormous business—not less than 4,000 or 5,000 people. They commenced their inland trip last Monday, stopping only a night in each place.

Adelaide, South Australia.—Webb's Royal Marionettes had a very successful season at White's Rooms. This clever little company are well deserving of it. The new Theater Royal is progressing rapidly and will open, it is expected, in March next.

Hobarton, Tasmania. Mrs. Scott Siddons has a very good dramatic company, under the management of Mr. W. J. Holloway, playing at the Royal; their business has been very good; they finish early next month.

Sydney Theater Royal.—The pantomime "Humpty-Dumpty" finished on Saturday, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bracy commenced a season in burlesque. I am given to understand that Mr. H. R. Harwood has gone into the partnership of the Theater Royal with Mr. Sam. Lagar, if so, Sydney has gained the presence of one of the best theatrical managers Australia has ever seen, second only to Barry Sullivan.

Victoria Theater.—Mr. William Creswick is still drawing crowded houses with his masterly acting; he is truly a great man; it don't matter in what he appears, comedy or tragedy, he holds you spell-bound.

Queen's Theater.—The Georges Hicks are doing well, they finish this week. Kelley and Leon's Company under the leadership of Hiseocks and Hayman open in Australia on Saturday next, Feb. 2d.

The School of Arts has only been open occasionally lately, but on Saturday next Raimor's Thormia of the American War opens, Harry Stanley, Manager.

Brisbane, Queensland, has only the one theater and Mr. F. M. Bates has a dramatic company supporting his wife in ordinary dramatic business.

New Zealand is rather dull just now, but there are several companies doing fairly, viz. Italian Opera Company, Soldene's, F. S. Minstrels, DeLass's Company (dramatic), John Hulls and several others of lesser note, but shortly they are to have Cooper & Bailey's show in their midst, en route for South America. Taking amusements altogether, we have plenty of them in this part of the world.

Yours, &c., ALBERT.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacture of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest sensations in business cards, to be had of L. DeLoney & Co., 35 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new waterrooms opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Dauchett Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

HOFFMANN'S AUCTION HOUSE, 304 Market street. Ladies' and Gents' goods sold at sacrifice prices.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICCO, at 20 KEARNY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purse-bearer.

OLD FASHIONED N. O. MOLASSES CANDY, Maple Wax, Hot Caramel (all flavors), Fig, Brazil Nut, Walnut, Fudbert, and Mixed Fruit Candies, at TOWNSEND'S STEAM CANDY FACTORY, 227 Market street.

PHILLIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found, at Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

PANORAMA LENSES, at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush. Those who love their coffee uniformly rich, delicate and well made are respectfully invited to try our Pure Grounded Article. We desire that the proof of its quality be a trial. THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Ricue's FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the advertiser these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one set is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. Baldwin's Theater—
Bush St. Theater—Across the Continent
Emerson's Opera House—
Adelphi Theater—Variety Performance
Bella Union Theater—Variety Performance
Fountain Concert Hall—Free Concert every evening

Metropolitan Temple—Centennial Birthday Celebration of Robert Emmet
Howard St. M. E. Church—Lecture by Rev. Dr. Kalyanack Horticultural Hall—Fair in aid of German Hospital

California Theater
"A Trip to the Moon" will be reproduced this evening. Voegtlin's magnificent scenery will again be placed on view. "A City in the Moon" will be shown without telescopic aid; and the inhabitants of the Kingdom of Nowhere will journey through celestial regions and land on terra firma by way of the Golden Gate. On Tuesday afternoon the Coryphees of the Kiroly ballet will be given a benefit, and on Wednesday that deserved compliment will be tendered the premiere danseuse, Miss Emma Palladino.

Grand Opera House
The public will apparently never tire of witnessing the drama of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Last evening the theater was crowded as usual, if possible, a little more so. The plantation scenes continue the most attractive portion of the performance, and now the chorus and orchestra are in perfect accord, and do full justice to the songs given.

Baldwin's Theater
On Wednesday evening the Union Square Company will open in "A Celebrated Case," which has met with much success in the East. On account of great expense in production, no reduction will be made in matinee prices.
Rieman's benefit last night was a complete success, and that gentleman must feel gratified in being complimented in so substantial a manner.

Bush Street Theater
This evening Oliver Dond Byron opens in "Across the Continent" for a short season.

Horticultural Hall
The Ladies' Fair in aid of the funds of the German Hospital is announced to close to-morrow evening. Those who have not yet contributed to so praiseworthy an object, and are able and willing to do so, will be welcome to-day and to-morrow at the hall, corner of Post and Stockton streets.

The Fountain
The showery afternoon yesterday did not prevent lovers of music and good things from occupying all the easy chairs at this favorite retreat. The cornet solos of Savinier alone are well worth a visit, and when supplemented by a full orchestra discoursing musical selections from our most popular composers, the united attractions have a drawing power equal to more than "forty parsons."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.
KATE RENCE is walking in Sacramento.
At the benefit of Emma Palladino on Wednesday evening a new Italian ballet will be introduced.

FUNNYOSTERS! Songwriters! Clown-atrocities! is a sample of the way they torture words on the Australian playbills.
Our John and Williamson were lately the guests of a Macaroni Club in the East; couldn't we get up a Chow-chow reception for them on their return.
At the Metropolitan Temple, on Friday next, an entertainment for the benefit of the suffering poor, will be given, under the management of Mr. David Bush.
Last Wednesday evening, Feb. 27th, Signora Majeroni appeared at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, as Mary Stuart, supported by Miss Mary L. Young as Queen Elizabeth.
The charming sonbrette, Miss Annie Pixley, will be the recipient of a benefit tendered by the management of the Grand Opera House, on Sunday evening next. Most of the prominent professionals of the city have volunteered. Further notice in to-morrow's FOOTLIGHT.
A MUSICAL drama named "A Great Encounter, or Heenan and Sayers at Farnborough," has been milled in the East. Managers will find this an economical spec, two being sufficient for the whole business.
We trust that the benefit of Mrs. Evans, on Thursday afternoon, at the Grand Opera House, will crowd that theater. One of the grandest concerts that has ever been given in this city has been arranged for the occasion.
Art in California has lost one of its most earnest and accomplished disciples, in the death of Charles C. Nahl, whose pictures are known to us all. He was one of the earliest art students in our State, having landed here in 1850.
In the window of Carrier, picture dealer on Kearny street, there is on exhibition a view of entrance to Bay of San Francisco, looking NW from Point San Pedro, it is from the brush of James Hamilton and in the usual excellent style of that artist.
To-morrow evening, at Platt's Hall, the grand carnival ball of the Italian Benevolent Society will be given. The costumes for the occasion embrace many novelties, and the hall will be crowded with a motley gathering of representations of every age and country.
MAKING surreptitious copies of plays and selling them to unauthorized managers has long been a business in Chicago. An effort is now being made to stop the knavery. John F. Ryan, a dramatic agent, and Samuel Harrison, a stenographer, have been arrested. —Ex.
On Saturday last our John McCullough closed one of his most successful engagements at the Boston Theater. In reviewing his "Coriolanus" the Boston Society calls it a "refined and intelligent assumption." Edwin Booth commences an engagement to-day at same theater.
Mrs. JOHN NEWCOMB, of Watertown, Mass., put her eleven-year-old girl and eight-year-old boy to bed without kissing them because they had been naughty, and upon waking up the next morning, found that they had taken the money in their savings bank and started off for some blessed region where inhuman mothers are unknown. —Ex.
RIEMAN'S benefit last night, at Baldwin's Academy, drew a thousand dollar house, which, considering the inclemency of the weather, was a great (but well deserved) compliment to that gentleman, who may well feel proud of having tempted such a fashionable audience by his attractive programme and his own popularity. The bill was a lengthy one, but was well executed, and sent the audience home in the best of humor.
ABOUT the time the last of the audience who had gathered to witness the performance at Rieman's benefit were leaving Baldwin's Theater, pistol shots were heard in the vicinity, and it was discovered that a lady was making Mr. W. D. Barnes a target for her practice. The morning dailies mention Mr. Barnes as being the dramatic critic of the FOOTLIGHT, which is a mistake, as that gentleman has no connection whatever with this paper.
A SPECIAL matinee benefit to the Eastern Coryphees, who have, by their grace and beauty, added so much to the pleasure of theater-goers during the present season of spectacular drama, will be given to-morrow afternoon at the California Theater. A most attractive programme is announced for this occasion. The managers of the California, Grand Opera House and Bush Street Theaters have united to render this a complete success. Programme will be found under Amusements on third page.

DR. MARY WALEEN picked out a piece of black and gray striped goods for her new pantaloons, and her stupid tailor made them up so that the stripes ran round and round, and before the fair doctor had walked two blocks with her new raiment on, her legs looked so like twin rattlesnakes that she had frightened five men into delirium tremens, and was finally arrested as an escaped convict. She is practicing her right leg on a sand bag, and is calmly waiting for the tailor to come to the front door with his bill. —Virginia City Foot-light.
At a London theater recently a disgraceful scene took place. A man in a stage box amused himself by fishing for the ankles of the ballet girls with the crook of his cane, causing one of them to retire in tears from the footlights. He then commenced abusing one of the actors, who crossed over to the box and slapped his persecutor's face. The man climbed out of the box to the stage and went for the actor; a real stage fight ensued, during which the curtain was dropped and the disturber of the peace given into custody. —Ex.
MISS KATE CLAXTON has just been guilty of a rather noble action. Two aunts of hers had placed their little fortunes, aggregating $12,000, in the hands of her late husband, Mr. Dore Lyons, for investment. These investments, with a number of others, proved unfortunate, and Mr. Lyons last year went through the Bankruptcy Court. Miss Claxton's two aunts were thus left penniless. She has just completed to them the full payment of the sum they had put in her husband's hands, interest added. The action is all the more to be praised that, leaving out the legal, there was not even a moral obligation upon her to do this. Our publication of the fact does not come from the Claxton side of the house. —Dramatic News.
NEW BOOKS.—"How Columbus Found America," in pen and pencil, by Palmer Cox. Art Printing Establishment, N. Y.; 64 pages of rhyme, descriptive of an interesting lot of very clever and comical illustrations, after the style of George Cruikshanks. The first vignette might pass current for a view of our Mermaid Baths, with Michael Reese on the horn of the C preparing for a plunge. Judging from the illustrations Columbus must have had a pretty rough time of it; but our artist brings him out all right in the end, where he is shown performing the can-can with Queen Isabella. Palm Branches, by S. M. Mills, Register Steam Press, Sandusky, O.; a small volume of 128 pages, clearly printed on good paper. A story of domestic life suitable for a lady's leisure hour. For sale by A. Roman & Co.
A Western man drums up the trade in the following pathetic manner: "Your mother read the 'Advocate' before you were born, and read it many a day as she rocked and hummed you to sleep. She has gone home to heaven. This year's 'Advocate' may guide your feet safely to that same heaven. Brother, can you afford to hush these memories and quench this light for $2.70?"
An Eastern Exchange tells us that an ingenious water faucet, through which water is drawn as cold as ice, is the invention of a Californian. Boiling water placed in any receptacle and allowed to run through, will be found cool and fit to drink. The faucet contains numerous small tubes enclosed in larger ones, and between the outside of one and the inside of the other certain chemicals are packed which produce the desired effect.
In reviewing Bonicault's new play, "The Dead Secret," the New York Mercury thus fires into it:
"There is also a limited number of literary lunatics who claim that some years since that play was given at the Ambigu, Paris, under the title of 'La Pendu,' and that its plot has been already revealed in a drama entitled 'The Man with Two Wives,' and at this theater nearly seven years ago by Augustin Daly, who christened it 'Jezebel,' with Clara Morris in the title role. No! No! it is a mistake, if nothing worse, for the simple reason that, although Mr. Bonicault's plots and situations have been anticipated, it may be well imagined that he would scorn to appropriate or employ a single idea or expression in his writings which had emanated from other pens. Upon the authority of the official announcement that "The Dead Secret" is a three-act drama, by Dion Bonicault, that exclusively original dramatist stands fully vindicated in honorable esteem. There is another object for which this work may have been designed, and that is, to afford an audience two hours of opportunity to reflect upon feminine weakness. It cannot be possible that the author has obtained his materials from real life, because every person is not addicted to unjust bigamy. It is, therefore, more likely to have resulted from the possession of peculiarly original and imaginative brains. The principal character in "The Dead Secret" is a sort of female anaconda. She revels in the malignity, walks through the character with the solemnity of an undertaker, and talks as gloomily as a sexton. As soon as the large attendance present had become acquainted with her, the most cheerful forebodings of horror preceded the remainder of the performance. The depressing influence of the heroine are not to be easily forgotten. Miss Rogers is a good summer actress, and if she could only be induced to play in fly-time she might exercise a refreshingly arctic influence, but her efforts in mid-winter may be better appreciated with the aid of overcoats, mufflers, and steam-pipes. In the role of 'Palma' she was evidently at home, and her naturalness and thorough identification with its frigidity enlisted the approving sympathies of friendly hands in the rear orchestra seats. If Mr. Bonicault's newest and most original work has not proved a pecuniary success, he may, like 'Horace Skimpole' in 'Bleak House,' be credited with the best intentions. However, an attenuated treasury is not always reliable as an indicator of dramatic excellence, and if "The Dead Secret" has proved dead stock to Mr. Stephen Fiske, it has given Miss Rogers a hearing, at a leading house, and has offered Mr. Bonicault considerable unsought-for publicity."

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street
An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance in Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No. 31 Post Street, Methodist Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.
WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Dancheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.
BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street
LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.
JEWELRY is like everything else, it wilt by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERHGO, at 230 KERNY STREET, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Pillagee Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.
PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Berner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

Is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 142 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in the San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants; not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. Among all of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines space) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. California Theater

Last evening this house was crowded to witness the reproduction of "A Trip to the Moon," notice of which we defer. The matinee testimonial benefit tendered the Coryphees of the Kralffy Ballet will take place this afternoon. "A Trip to the Moon" this evening and all the week.

Grand Opera House

The melodrama of "Uncle Tom" appears to have struck a chord in the public heart; and if the success of "Sardana-palus" be equal to that of Mrs. Stowe's hero, the management will have good cause to be satisfied with its measure of success.

Bush Street Theater

"Across the Continent" was given here in excellent style, to a crowded house, last evening. Space in present number prevents an extended review.

The Fountain

This evening the "Dance of Death" will be performed at the free concert given here; also, "The Whirlwind Polka," as a cornet solo, by Mr. John Savinier. The other selections are from Offenbach, Strauss, Schubert, and other celebrated composers. All the delicacies of the season served as refreshments after theater hours.

Horticultural Hall

The German ladies have met with great success in their noble efforts in the cause of suffering humanity. This will be the last day of the exhibition, and those who have not yet visited, remember to do so this evening, and assist in so charitable a cause.

Platt's Hall

King Pasquino and his festive followers will celebrate the Roman Carnival and birth of Lent this evening. Triumphant march at 9.30, precisely. Prizes for the most original, the best sustained, and the most elegant costumes will be awarded.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

MAGGIE MITCHELL is playing at Ford's Theater, Baltimore.
FLORENCE has appeared in the "Mighty Dollar" 1,100 times.

E. A. SOTHERN and company were at Memphis, March 4th.

"AMARIS; or the last of the Pharaohs," is to be the spectacular drama for 1879.

JOHN T. RAYMOND commenced an engagement at the National Theater, Washington, March 4th.

REMEMBER, that Thursday afternoon is the time appointed for Mrs. Evans' benefit, at the Grand Opera House.

In your overland trip, expect to get lectured by Miss May Fink, on "Womanly Duties," somewhere between Fremont and Omaha.

AIMEE must have abandoned her South American tour, as she is announced to appear in Philadelphia, at the Arch Street Theater, in April.

MRS. HENRI LAURENT has sought her husband's forgiveness for causing trouble between him and Mrs. Osten. All is reconciled, and everybody happy.

ONE of the principal uses of George Washington now-a-days is to serve as a kind of high water-mark at a time when American statesmanship is at a particularly low ebb.—Ex.

THE Chicago Post promised to send the Graphic something at its silver wedding. "If you please," replied the Graphic punster, or as they say in French "silver plait."

At the benefit of Miss Annie Pixley, on Sunday evening next, at the Grand Opera House. A musical sketch has been arranged specially for the occasion in which Miss Alice Harrison will appear.

PABLO DE SARASATE, a young Spaniard, who lately made his debut as a violinist in the Gewandhaus concert at Leipzig, is spoken of as giving promise of becoming one of the master violinists of the world.

EASTERN CORYPHEES' benefit at the California this afternoon; for attractive programme, see third page. Wednesday evening, benefit of Emma Palladine, Thursday evening, benefit of Josephine de Rosa.

THE Philadelphia Evening Bulletin in referring to what it calls the silver swindle, says that the Legislature of the Nation follows the example of Washington to about the same extent that Bob Ingersoll does St. Paul.

GEORGE RIGNOLD with "Henry V" Company have been quite successful during a provincial tour through the New England States. After March 18th they will take in the principal towns of Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York.

FANNY HERRING is an illustration of the truth of the saying that "time and tide wait for no woman as well as for no man." While she is not as young as she used to be when, in the happy days of our innocent childhood, we used to sit in the gallery of the old Bowery Theater, with a bottle of ginger pop in our pocket and a pair of peanuts in our hands, and roar our infantile voice hoarse over her lan-raising performances. Fanny is a herring that must be pretty well seasoned by this time. Dramatic Mirror.

AN accident occurred at Arley on the Great Northern Railroad of England, in December, 1878. One of the passengers injured was Mr. Warschawski, a professor of legendeum, popularly known as Boseo, being a relative and former pupil of the conjurer of that name. The miracles of his hand were so hurt that he can never again practice his art, and in a suit against the railroad company he has just recovered $7,500 damages.—Ex.

THE Irish play, "The Diamond," now being presented in the Fifth Avenue Theater, is a translation by Manager Fiske's wife of Arago and Vermond's "Les Memoires du Diable," itself a dramatization of a French novel. A translation of the same play, advertised as by Hart Jackson, occupies the stage of the Chestnut Street Theater, Philadelphia, under the title of "The Omega Dhoni." Mr. Fiske has warned the Philadelphia managers that he will claim royalty, on the ground that it is Mrs. Fiske's translation, not Jackson's, that they are using. The two plays are the same, except as to names. Jackson was the business manager of the Fifth Avenue Theater for a short time after Mr. Fiske took charge of that establishment, and it is understood that the drama in dispute was worked at jointly by him and Mrs. Fiske. On going away he took a copy with him.—N. Y. Sun.

In connection with the great success that John McCullough has met with in Boston, in "Coriolanus," the Boston Society gives the following items regarding that character:

"Coriolanus" was first produced in this country at the Theater Park, New York, on the 3d of June, 1799. Thomas Cooper was "Cains Marcins," and Mrs. Barrett, mother of George Barrett, was the "Volnunia." Its first production in Boston was at the old Federal Street Theater, in 1805, Cooper again in the title role. The elder Vandenhoff made his first appearance in this city as "Coriolanus," Dec. 4th, 1837, at the Boston Theater. During his engagement he was supported by Mrs. Barry, the first wife of the late Thomas Barry. The tragedy was not again performed until James K. Anderson brought it out at the old National Theater, during the season of 1846-47. It was then laid away until Edwin Forrest revived it at the Boston Theater, in February, 1864. There have been but five representations of the character "Cains Marcins" in this country. In Cooper, Vandenhoff, Anderson, Forrest and McCullough."

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS

In a man boss of his own boots after they have been half soled.

A PLUMBER of this city informs us, that if this weather continues and business gets no better, he will be compelled to go up the spout.

A COHOES amateur, cast for Othello, blacked himself all over—stock, lock and barrel; and it took about a box of soap to whitewash him.

THE millennium has begun in New Zealand. A man in Wellington, when he gets drunk, to save the policeman trouble, goes to the jail and locks himself in—and the policeman out.

AN auctioneer in this city tells us, that he had a bell-ringer once who could get a better tone out of his instrument and make more noise with it than any other two men—he was deaf.

WHAT'S the matter with our American dramatists? Can't they find "A Celebrated Case" on this side the Atlantic? Some of our late bank managers are ensed enough to be celebrated.

A DRAMATIC pirate was lately captured in Chicago. He sails under the name of Marcus Johnson Junius H. Legon.—Wonder if the H. stands for the place that Colonel Bob is trying to stamp out.

THERE was a Celestial ball in Carson, Nev. The belle of the evening was Yit Yung. At midnight two Chinamen seized and carried her off, and made a ghost of Ah Song, who tried to prevent them.

AUGUST is the month for beer.—Phila. Ledger. Is that so? Thought it was Free-brewery!—N. Y. Graphic. No, child. Our Dutch contributor says it is Sup-deu-beer.—Norr. Herald. If not impolite, we would remark, (July. Whon, January!

The following extraordinary item appears in the London and Provincial Music Trade Review: "The band of the Twenty-second (United States) Regiment, under the direction of Mr. Gilmore, is coming to Europe in May, and it will be the first military band which has appeared in this country in the American uniform. Some little difficulty has arisen, owing to the fact that three of the band are deserters from the English army. These are Mr. Arbuckle, the first cornet, who deserted from the Scots Grays in 1852; Mr. Bent, second cornet, who deserted in 1870, and Mr. Kavanagh, the second bassoon, who deserted in 1872. It is possible that these gentlemen will be left behind, and the band, sixty strong, will start without them. Passages have been secured by the manager, Mr. Enderby Jackson, for the band by an Indian steamer, and they will give their first concert at St. George's Hall, Liverpool, the second week of May. They will then go to Dublin and Cork, and will arrive in the third week of May in London, to play at the Crystal Palace and other places. The band will then go to Paris and Berlin. The visit of the band will naturally excite a good deal of curiosity, for, in the United States, it is held in very great esteem."

Ticklers from the "Melbourne Lorgnette"

A MAN of parts—an actor.
A POOL's weight—a simpleton.
SHEET MUSIC—children crying in bed.
A CATING SIN—taking babies to the theater.

QUESTION FOR ACTORS—can a man be said to work when he plays?

PROMPTORY NOTES—tuning the fiddles before the performance commences.

THE man who comes on the stage exactly at his cue is prompt, but the man who does not come at all is a prompter.

TOTTERING BALLAD.—A music publisher announces that he will soon issue a touching ballad, with the suggestive name of "Bury your Dog in the Garden—it will make the grapevine grow."

MATTHEWS, the actor, being asked what he was going to do with his son (the young man's profession was to be that of an architect), replied, "Why, he is going to draw houses, like his father does."

VACCANSON invented for the performance of Marmontel's "Cleopatra" an asp, which fastened itself with a hiss on the bosom of the actress who played the principal character. On the first performance of the tragedy a jester, more struck by the hissing of the automaton than by the tragedienne, exclaimed, "I am of the asp's opinion!"

PUNNING COMEDIAN.—A celebrated comedian arranged with his greengrocer, one Berry, to pay him quarterly; but the greengrocer sent in his account long before the quarter was due. The comedian in great wrath called upon the greengrocer, and laboring under the impression that his credit was doubted, said—"I say, here's a pretty mul, Berry; you have sent in your bill, Berry, before it is due, Berry; your father, the elder Berry, would not have been such a goose, Berry. But you need not look black, Berry—for I don't care a straw, Berry—and shan't pay you till Christmas, Berry."

ONLY a cipher.—Grimaldi, father of the renowned Joe Grimaldi, was wont to tell a tale of illustration of Sheridan's ready wit, though he himself was "done" by it. "Oh," he would exclaim, "vat a clevere fellow dat Sheridan is! Shall I tell you? Oai yes I will—Bien done—I could no never see him at de theater, so je vais chez lui—to his house in Hertford Street, muffled in a great coat, and I said, 'Domestique!—you hear?' 'Yes.' 'Vell den, tell your master dat M—, de Mayor of Stafford, be below.' 'Domestique fly, and on de instant I be shown into the drawing-room. In one more minute, Sheridan leaves his dinner party, enter de room hastily, stop suddenly, stare, and say, 'How dare you, Grim, play me such a trick?' Then, putting himself into appasion, he go on—'Go, sure! get you out of my house.' 'Beggars,' say I, placing my back against the door, 'not till you pay me my forty pounds,' and den I point to de ink and paper on ven small table in de corner, and say—'Dere I write nu de check, and de mayor shall go vitement—entendez-vous? If not, morbleu, I will—' 'Oh,' interrupted this clevere man, 'if I must, Grim, I must,' and as if he was tresprende—very hurry—he write de draft, and pushing it into my hand he squeeze it, and I depashit into my pocket. Vell, den I must haste to de bankers, and giving it to de clerks, I say, 'Four tens, if you please, sare.' 'Four tens!' he say, with much surprise; 'de draft be only four pounds!' Oh! vat a clevere fellow dat Sheridan is! But I say, 'if you please, sare, donnez moi done those four pounds!' And den he say, 'call again to-morrow.' Next day I meet de manager in de street, and he say, 'Mistaire Sheridan, have you forgot?' and den he laugh, and say, 'Vy, Grim, I recollected afterwards—I left out the 0!' Oh, vat a clevere fellow dat Sheridan is!"

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES, only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those put based ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No 135 Montgomery Street

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A VIOLIN, visit the new warerooms opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanic's Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr F. A. ERHICHO, at 230 Kearn Street, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILLIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found, at Free Art Gallery Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED
Cucamonga Rancho
 CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES
 is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,
WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 112 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICH'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHITBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements when it would require 70 to send the undirected to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. "A Trip to the Moon" brings out the ballet troupe to the very best advantage, and in connection with the magnificent scenery makes it one of the best spectacles ever placed on the California stage. Emma Palladino's benefit to-night.

Grand Opera House
This will be the last week of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and during its long run, it has given an infinite amount of pleasure to those who have been fortunate enough to witness it. The long and successful run of the piece has been brought about by careful management of details, as the drama of itself has nothing in it to produce a continued popularity. Matinee on Saturday, for accommodation of schools. "Sardanapalus" next week.

Baldwin's Theater
This elegant place of amusement will be re-opened this evening by the Union Square Company, in "A Celebrated Case," which, according to the estimation of Eastern dramatic critics, is the best modern drama on the stage. A season of novelties will follow, and we may look for crowded houses during the run of the present company.

Bush Street Theater
The present entertainment is an improvement on the last. "Across the Continent" is a drama entirely American in its character, with features broad and strong enough to satisfy the most ardent lover of sensation. New business has been added since its production at the California, and it will probably run for some time to good houses.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.
No American audience has yet had a chance to judge the "Beatrice Cenci" of Modjeska.

NOVELTIES will be introduced this evening at the California, at the benefit of Emma Palladino.

THE Denman Thompson Company will open at Emerson's Opera House, Monday evening, March 11th.

CHARLES R. THORNE, Jr., has scored another success in St. Louis, as "Ossip" in the "Danicheffs."

To-morrow afternoon, at the Grand Opera House, attend the concert for the benefit of Mrs. Evans.

A BURLESQUE named "The Baby Show" is the latest draw in Philadelphia—standing room only at each exhibit.

BILLY Bruen and Charley Backus have discovered "A Celebrated Sweitzer Case" in New York, and are exhibiting it.

AN English lawyer served a writ on a particularly shrewd actress, by inclosing the same in a perfumed envelop, which was snugly nestling in a handsome bouquet of flowers.—Ex.

ANY of the neighboring states who wish to have their laws half-soled and heeled in California style, just address them to the Capital at Sacramento before our Legislature adjourns.

THE Ladies' Fair at Horticultural Hall, closed last evening with a masquerade party. About $20,000 was realized; Mrs. Behrend won the silver brick, and Mrs. Vorrieth the embroidered chair.

THE receipts at the Grand Opera House, in Paris, during the month of December last, exceeded $50,000. The Parisians are getting things ready to give, at the opening of the Paris Exhibition, one of the biggest concerts the world has ever heard.

THE Strakosch Opera Company, embracing the three prime donnes, Roze, Cary and Kellogg, have had a successful season in St. Louis. The "Lenora" of Roze, in "La Favorita," is reported by the St. Louis Herald to have "fairly electrified her audience."

THE Roman Carnival at Platt's Hall last night was a brilliant affair. One of the costumes, which was awarded a first prize, that of an old apple and peanut woman, taken by Mr. Giovannini, had the most original month that was ever put on either mortal or immortal being. It looked as if it had been hired out as a quartz crusher.

THE Coryphees, who received a testimonial benefit at the California Theater yesterday afternoon, presented a handsome gold-mounted cane, on Monday evening, to Bolossy Kiralfy, as a mark of their appreciation of that gentleman's successful management of the ballet department of the spectacular dramas lately produced at the California.

THE following pleasant episode occurred yesterday afternoon during the Coryphees' matinee, behind the scenes, at the California Theater: Mr. Geo. B. Kiegan, whose benefit last Sunday night at Baldwin's was so complete an artistic and financial success, presented Mr. Robert Eberle (who acted as his stage manager on that occasion) with a silver card-receiver, which took general Robert so completely by surprise that he nearly fainted (in the arms of some of the ballet girls). However, he rallied in time to respond in feeling words, and although no formal speechmaking was indulged in on either side, the few words passed between the two gentlemen showed the good feeling existing between them.

APPROPOS of Washington's birthday. When the late Thomas Barry was manager of the Tremont Theater, he had in his company an English woman named Morgan, who was a very charming singer. As the holiday was near at hand, Mr. Barry called the company to an extra rehearsal, in order to arrange an all-glorious representation in honor of the day. An hour or so after the rehearsal was called, Miss Morgan walked into the theater regardless of her manager and the time, whereupon she was censured for being late on so important an occasion. After Mr. Barry had expressed himself in a gentlemanly and emphatic manner, the lady looked up at him, and, in the most innocent manner, said: "Who is this old Washington they are making so much fuss about?" Mr. Barry staggered and retired, leaving the actress mistress of the field.—Ex.

DANIEL WELTER once dined with an old Boston merchant, and when they came to the wine, a dusty old bottle was carefully decanted by John and passed to the host. Taking the bottle he poured out Mr. Webster's glass, and handed it to him. Then, pouring out another for himself, he held it to the light, and said: "How do you like it, Mr. Webster?" "I think it is a fine specimen of old port." "Now, can you guess what it cost me?" said the host. "Surely not," said Mr. Webster. "I only know that it is excellent." "Well, now, I can tell you, for I made a careful estimate the other day. When I add the interest to the first price, I find that it cost me the sum of just one dollar and twenty cents per glass." "Good gracious! you don't say so," said Mr. Webster; and then draining his glass, he presented it again, with the remark: "Fill it up again as quick as you can, for I want to stop that confounded interest."—Boston Home Journal.

THERE is a pretty little tale told about one of the rehearsals for "La Petit Due" at the Renaissance, in Paris, recently. A rehearsal was called for ten o'clock in the morning, and Mlle. Granier made her appearance exactly at the hour. The manager, charmed at the punctuality of a star, took a twenty-franc piece out of his pocket and gravely handed it to her, saying she was a model chorister, and he would give her a week's extra salary. In the course of the rehearsal a dispute arose between M. Meilbae, one of the authors, and Mlle. Granier; a bet of a louis was made, and the artist lost. She paid, observing that the twenty francs of the manager ought to have brought her better luck. And so it did, for on the morrow Mlle. Granier received back her twenty francs, mounted on a magnificent bracelet formed of four large bands of gold, and with the links surrounded by twelve brilliants of the purest water.—Boston Society.

It was not so long ago that artists in this city had as hard a time to find models as they sometimes have to find gold. Nude models, I mean. There used to be but two female models—one a great fat woman, and another very thin. For a long time the Academy of Design fought against a life class, but finally had to give in. The Cooper Institute schools of art still hold out against the innovation. I think that to propose a nude model to Peter Cooper would be enough of a shock to raise his death. The Art Student's League has life models, and the artists find no trouble in getting them for their studios.

Another hard struggle was for lady artists to get models. Women who would pose for men would not pose for women. I know of an instance of a model who always wore a veil over her face when she sat for ladies, but took it off when she sat for men. Her reason for this was that women would point her out on the street, if they chanced to meet her, as "our model," while the men would not think of her at all.

Models are not necessarily depraved women. Some of the best in this city are quiet, modest girls, who have been brought up to the profession, as were their mothers before them, and they look upon it merely in a business light. They are mostly Germans and Italians. American models, as a general thing, come from a lower order of society.

It is no easy thing to be a model. Try to stand in any one position for a half or three-quarters of an hour, and see if you can do it. You would break down in less than a quarter of that time. Models are allowed a rest of twenty minutes between their sittings, and during this time they generally wrap a shawl about them and retire to another room. One model I know of is an exception to this rule. She poses for a class of ladies, and when her resting time comes she steps down from the platform in all the simplicity of Mother Eve, and takes the fire and puts on coal. Then she sits cross-legged on the edge of the platform and reads a story paper. A friend of mine wanted to get some private sittings from her, so she said, "I wish you would come to me after you are dressed. I want to speak to you." "It isn't worth while waiting for it," replied the amiable model, "I'll come to you now," and with that she tripped jauntily across the door, throwing her way in and out among the artists without an article of clothing on. "I want to have you sit for me at my studio, what are your terms for private sittings?" inquired my friend, a little nonplussed. "Oh, we won't quarrel about terms," said the model with a jaunty air. "But I wish to know beforehand," insisted my friend. "Well, then," said the model, with an indescribable toss of her head, "fifty cents an hour to ladies, and a dollar an hour to gentlemen." The bargain was at once sealed, and she skipped lightly back to the platform, humming a tune.

Not long ago a well-known and favorite model made her debut upon the theatrical stage, playing a leading role with a great deal of promise. It is not such an uncommon thing as one might suppose for an artist to marry his model. I know of several instances where this has occurred, and they have made model wives.

The recent marriage of Miss Dubois, of a corps de ballet, to young Mr. Standhope, the son of the Countess of Harrington, recalls to recollection the numerous instances in which the names of the British aristocracy have been linked with those of the votaries of Thalia, Euterpe and Terpsichore. The stern and haughty Melchiorne has not yet exchanged the queenly dignity of her heroines for the lesser though more social consequence of a coronet. In other words, no travelling actress has married a nobleman.

The earliest instance on record of the incorporation of the stage with the monarchy, occurs in the latter part of the seventeenth century, when the pleasure-loving Charles II. found a favorite in the beautiful Nell Gwynne, who thereby became the mother of the first Duke of St. Albans, and sundry little Branches. The foolish Charles bestowed titles upon them, that Nell might not call them in his presence by the name which with common people characterizes illegitimacy.

From that time onward sundry members of the aristocracy of Great Britain, attracted by the beauty and manners which, equally with their musical and histrionic ability, distinguished certain fair ornaments of the stage, have selected them as partners for life, and in almost every instance they have added a grace to the coronet. The Duke of Bolton married the lovely "Polly," of the "Boggar's Opera" (see Hogarth). The Earl of Derby espoused Miss Farren. Lord William Lennox wooed and won Miss Paton, who afterwards got rid of him and married Wood, a worthy man and a vocalist. The Earl of Essex became the husband of Miss Stephens, the sweet ballad singer. Young Lord Gardner took the pretty and engaging Miss Fortescue to wife.

gestion of Vestris, and, in spite of certain well-founded scandals, married the discarded chore girl of Colonel Fitzhardinge Berkeley. Peter Pan succeeded to the title of Earl of Harrington, and his successor, following the paternal or grand-paternal example, has led Miss Dubois to the altar. Countess, the great banker, married Miss Mellon, a comedian, who afterwards became Duchess of St. Albans. But it is among the comedian and more exalted ball-rooms that we must look for illustrations of the instincts of the nobility to be fascinated by the virtues and physical charms of the stage. Lyre Stephens, a wealthy commoner, selected Mademoiselle Duverney to adorn his household; Lord Pembroke surrendered himself to Mademoiselle Plunkett; the Duke of Cambridge has a family (excellent military officers now) by Fairbrooke, a graceful and prudent dansereuse; Hugh Ball, a millionaire, made Mercutio, of the ball, his wife; Count St. James married the amiable Augusta, once the idol of New York; Agnes Robertson, the charming "Calleen Bawn," would probably have been the Countess of Hepetown, if a certain clever dramatist had not carried off the prize.

If we were to go through the role of princes who have found affinities on the stage, we might refer primarily to the well-known attachment of "Larry Breckin," as Brutus called the Duke of Clarence (afterward William IV.), to Mrs. Jordan, which resulted in the elevation to the peerage of the Earl of Munster, and the creation of the titles of Lord and Lady Fitz Clarence, to some half-dozen of the younger offspring.

Baronets have been dazzled as much as princes and earls, and both Mrs. Nesbitt and Miss O'Neill died bearing the titles which honorable alliances had conferred upon them; and it must be a proud reflection for historians generally, that not a single instance can be adduced of infidelity or impropriety on the part of the fortunate sisters of the profession.—N. Y. Home Journal.

PERFECT PEOPLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industry of our city by the house of LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 142 Kearny St., between Post and Third. Their principal outlet has been the knowledge of the business in the hands of some of Paris, and with the experience that acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order and measure the wearer better than those purchased ready made, gloves are no exception to the rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and many added from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

A Race for a Wife

Apropos of the mare that was recently sold with gold at Edinburgh:—That mare is a history. Her owner, Miss Thompson, is an American heiress worth about half a million of dollars. She has naturally been, ever since she reached a marriageable age, the object of persistent attentions on the part of a crowd of needy fortune-hunters, and her life has in consequence been rendered a burden to her. They drove her nearly wild, and she had a very narrow escape of being hunted down. It was in this wise. One of her admirers as a dashing and handsome fellow, but terrible scapegrace, and she did not care for him; but he amused her, and she found it at last very difficult to get rid of him. She had just purchased this mare, and in one of her mad freaks she told this valet suitor that he might have her hand if he could beat her mare in a half-mile gallop, she riding the mare herself. He accepted the challenge, and a moment later she repeated of it. However, there was no help for it, and the race for a wife had to come off. It was a neck-and-neck fair, for the stakes were heavy, but the mare drew away at the finish, and won by length. It was in gratitude for the victory which saved her from a husband, that Miss Thompson recently had that mare sold with gold.—Ex.

We read in a London weekly: "I have been staying at a country house with my friend Edwin. He is on the best of terms with Angelina, the daughter of the house. They started a telephone by means of which soft nothings were interchanged in the most delightful manner; but he was rather surprised when he came down to breakfast to find the 'pencilings of the evening' in an envelope on his plate. Famma had attached her private wire."

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate heat in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICK'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHITBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in a well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in 4x8 inches, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7 only 10 cents per paper.

This evening, farewell benefit of Mlle. Josephine de Ross, who will appear in her celebrated Shadow Dance, assisted by full corps de ballet. Last "Trip to the Moon" matinee on Saturday.

Grand Opera House
Miss Annie Pixley, whose rendering of "Topsy" has tended so much to the success of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit next Sunday evening. No doubt this large theater will be crowded on the occasion, as, in addition to the company of the Grand, the principal members of the California will appear. "Kathleen Mavourneen" has been underlined; also, a new musical burletta, entitled "Hodge-Podge." Reserved seats may be secured without extra charge. Saturday evening will close the present season of "Uncle Tom."

Baldwin's Theater
"A Celebrated Case" was brought out here last evening. For a first representation, no better rendering could be expected or desired. The high praise bestowed upon it by Eastern critics is not undeserved. Full notice in FOOTLIGHT to-morrow.

The Fountain
Free concert here every evening; also, matinee every Sunday, at 3 p. m. All the delicacies of the season always on hand and served to order. Wines, liquors and cigars, domestic and foreign, of every favorite brand, at the most reasonable rates.

Metropolitan Temple
Concert to-morrow afternoon for the benefit of Golden Gate Park Labor Fund. Select programme by Herold's Orchestra.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.
J. K. EMMET appeared in "Fritz," at Broad Street Theater, Philadelphia, March 1st and 2d.

EASTERN dramatic critics are of opinion that Raymond's new play, "Risks," fits him better than "Colonel Sellers."

JOHN BROUGHAM will receive a life annuity of about $1,500 from the investment of proceeds of his benefits.

At the "Little Church Around the Corner," New York, on Sunday last, Kate Claxton was married to Charles Stevenson, formerly of Wallack's Company.

Mr. F. C. BANGS, Miss Ida Grey and Mlle. Bonfanti have arrived from the East expressly to assist in the production of "Sardanapalus" at the Grand Opera House.

SHOOK & PALMER will make barrels of money out of "A Celebrated Case." They paid the author, D'Ennery, only $5,000 for the sole right of production in the United States.

"THE EXILES" is now running at the Walnut Street Theater, Philadelphia, to full houses. Clark & Goodwin pay $20,000 for the privilege of producing it. Jefferson will open there as "Hip Van Winkle" April 1st.

CHARLES POPE commenced an engagement at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, on Monday, in "Richelieu," to be followed by "Hamlet," "Lear," "Richard," and "Othello." The Majeroni engagement was not a success.

"THE Sunday before" "The Exiles" was produced in Boston (where it had a run of ten weeks) a clergyman from his pulpit prayed for "the exiles in our midst." The managers of the Boston Theater thanked him, and made an offer of tickets of admission, and he took only eight!! Clergymen who want free passes to the California might take a hint.

BARRY SULLIVAN, who, a short time since, was playing "Othello," in Dublin, met with a reply as unanswerable as it was unexpected. His frequent allusions to the handkerchief, "Where is the handkerchief?" suggested to one of the Irishman "gods" to answer, "Never mind yer handkerchief, sorr; blow yer nose anyhow, and get on wid the play."—Ex.

ALL the young ladies in London are singing a song written by Lord Dunmore. Not only as a composer does he appear, but as a violinist he is one of the few men who ever took up the violin after one-and-twenty, and mastered it sufficiently to play in all the classical quartettes, even under the baton of Costa. His kinsman, the Duke of Athole, is no mean performer on the bagpipes.—Ex.

RICHMOND suffered in Lewiston, Maine, some of the indignities which the Count Joannes and Landis have received. A gallery boy whistled a march tune to the stately tread of "Henry V.," and the angry monarch, advancing to the footlights, offered a reward of five dollars for the capture of the offender. Confusion ensued, the curtain dropped in the middle of the act, and the gauin escaped by crawling between the legs of a policeman.—Ex.

THE Soldene Troupe opened at Dundee on Boxing night, to one of the largest audiences ever assembled at that city. The opera selected was "Genevieve de Brabant," Miss Soldene appearing in her original character of "Drogan," with decided success. Miss Marie Daniel played "Genevieve" in such a manner as to win the plaudits of the immense audience. She showed an unexpected strength in singing and acting. The continued success of the Soldene Troupe proves that its organization by Mr. Chizzola is of the best kind, and cannot be affected by the defection of one member.—Ex.

MISS EMMA C. THURSBY, assisted by Mr. Alfred H. Pense, pianist; Master Leopold Liechtenberg, violinist, and Mr. W. T. Carleton, baritone, will give one grand concert, at St. James' Hall, on to-morrow evening. Picture in your mind the most perfect lady you know, gentle of speech, gracious of manner, free from affectation and perfectly at ease, without the shadow of self-consciousness, gifted with a voice unsurpassed by the greatest prima donna, and you can form in your imagination an idea of Miss Thurstby, which after all will fall far short of reality. In her chosen field (the concert stage) she is unsurpassed. Want of space forbids us to attempt to particularize the many excellencies of the other members of the company.—Buffalo Sunday News, Feb. 21.

According to a Western paper, the following is a list of persons claiming the right to occupy free seats at places of amusement:
City Hall and Custom House officials and their friends.
The police and detective forces.
Railroad and steamboat men.
City railroad officials, conductors and drivers.
Storekeepers who hang bills in their windows.
Hotel proprietors, clerks and employees.
Bill-posters.
Correspondents of country papers.
Contractors paid by city and county.
Bar-tenders in vicinity of theater.
Friends introduced by bar-tender.
Prominent citizens and well-known men about town.
Members of the city government.
Members of the Board of Education (limited).
Ministers of the gospel.
Ex-members and ex-officials of all sorts.
Newspaper people of all kinds, down to the errand boys and all their relations.
Theater company, ushers, etc., and all their relations and friends.
Professionals of every type, from every quarter of the globe, and their friends.
Job show-printers and lithographers.

MR. VERDI had a benefit in Baltimore, and Strakosch's Company gave "Don Giovanni." Kellogg insisted upon "Donna Anna," so Marie Roze gracefully took "Elvira," and Miss Cary sang "Zerlina." Mr. Verdi of course ordered three baskets of flowers for the three prime donne. They were sent to the theater appropriately directed. Mr. Crosby, Miss Kellogg's agent, was the first to find them, and, being near-sighted, did not notice the card, and had all three sent to Miss Kellogg. Imagine the astonishment of the ladies, for Mr.

Karl, who had accompanied Mr. Verdi to the florist's, had told them of the acknowledgment they might expect. Imagine the disgust and indignation of Verdi. The high contracting powers met and compromised. As a result, at the next performance of "Don Giovanni" Mme. Roze and Miss Cary will each receive an elegant basket of flowers, for which Mr. Crosby—or rather Miss Kellogg—will pay. And to cap the climax, a Baltimore paper was kind enough to say that the audience would have been better pleased if Madame Roze and Miss Kellogg had changed parts. "Donna Anna" is supremely an acting part, and Miss Kellogg seems to disdain to act.—Ex.

Mr. Burdette, the Hawkeye man, thus writes home to his paper from Aurora, Ill.:
Not many weeks ago I went down from Buda to Elmwood, Illinois, and while waiting at the latter place for the Peoria train I went to the Neosho or the Keota house, I never could remember the name, right by the depot, to take supper. There was another passenger, several other passengers in fact, went over at the same time and for the same purpose, but I noticed that this one particular passenger was an object of great veneration to the clerk of the hotel. He helped this passenger off with his overcoat, he took his hat from him and hung it up; he bowed him into the dinner room with a grand flourish that impressed all the rest of us with a sense of our own utter worthlessness, and the illustrious stranger's magnificence. Well, after supper I sat down in the hotel office, and burned up a soul-destroying cigar while I waited for the train, but this illustrious stranger went immediately over to the depot. And the clerk of the Keota took down his overcoat, and helped him on with it, and opened the door for him and bowed him out, reverently and graciously. Then he shut the door and as he took his place behind the counter, he said to the loungers in the office:
"That was Bob Burdette."
"So?" asked the loungers. "The Hawkeye man."
"Yes," replied the clerk, "that was the Hawkeye man."
And there I sat for ten minutes and heard myself abused, praised and slandered. And when I got up to go I jumped for my overcoat six times before I got it down from the hook to which I had thrown it, because I am not a very tall man, and I got my arms behind me and wrestled with it all around that office before I could get it on, because the overcoat is much larger and heavier than I am, and I opened the door for myself and went over to the depot "unwept, unhonored and unused."

Origin of the Comedy "David Garrick"

Garrick married the beautiful Mlle. Violotta, the dancer, protégée of Lord and Lady Burlington. There was plenty of romance and mystery about this young lady. She had come over from Vienna, a few years previously, disguised as a boy, and made her debut at the opera-house in the Haymarket. She was immediately taken under the protection of Lady Burlington whose daughters used to frequently stand at the wings with wraps to throw around her when she came off from her dance. Her debut had been patronized by the King himself, and the noblest houses were thrown open to her. Some said she was a natural daughter of Lord Burlington's, whom he had discovered while traveling abroad from her likeness to her mother, a lady to whom he had been devotedly attached; others that she was the illegitimate offspring of some noble Austrian. Be this as it may, she was received in the best society. Seeing Garrick play one night she fell desperately in love with him. They met in society, afterwards in secret. But Lady Burlington was violently opposed to the match; the story of Robertson's play of "David Garrick" is said to be founded upon an incident of this love affair; but the real catastrophe was very different to the fictitious one, for the Countess, touched by the actor's generous self-sacrifice, gave her consent to the marriage. Ten thousand pounds were settled upon the bride—six thousand by the Burlington, and four by Garrick himself. They took up their abode in Southampton street, Strand, a not unfashionable neighborhood then. The house is still standing, No. 27, and the little back room in which they used to breakfast is said to be little changed. He loved children, although he had none of his own. During the run of the "Jubilee" he ordered a nightly distribution of tarts to the little ones who played the fairies, and used to delight in watching their enjoyment of them. Cumberland relates how he would imitate turkey-cocks, peacocks and water wag-tails for the amusement of his children. Here is a reminiscence of childhood by the younger Colman: "I always ran about his gardens, where he taught me the game of trap-ball. He practiced, too, a thousand monkey tricks upon me; he was Punch, harlequin, a cat in the gutter, then King Lear, with a mad touch that at times almost terrified me; and he had a peculiar mode of flashing the lightning of his eye, by darting it into the astonished mind of a child, as a serpent is said to fascinate a bird; which was a tribute belonging only to this theatrical Jupiter."—Temple Bar.

THE great drama of "The Exiles," for which the most extensive preparations have been made at the Walnut Street Theater, has been an immense success in Paris, and has been received with the greatest favor in Boston, where it has just finished a run of nine weeks, during which "standing room only" was nightly placarded. It is a play of intensely absorbing interest, according to the critics, and the five acts and nine tableaux afforded fine opportunities for scenic effects. All the scenery, painted for the piece by Mr. Getz, of the Boston Theater, has been brought here, and the stage of the Walnut Street Theater has been cleared so as to admit of promptness in the shifting and the proper setting. There are also two hundred and fifty new costumes made for the piece. The insignia, decorations, dog-team and team of reindeers, were imported especially for the piece by Messrs. Tompkins and Hill, of the Boston Theater, and all have been transferred here. The cast will include Mr. L. R. Shewell, of the Boston Theater, Mr. Atkins Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Walcott, and the full strength of the Walnut Street Theater Company.—Phila. Evening Bulletin, Feb. 23.

A correspondent of the N. Y. Herald has been taking notes in the street cars, and replying to the complaint of a woman who was allowed to stand, says: "I have given up my seat to thirty-one who would be classed as ladies; five said, 'Thank you, sir.' To twenty-seven working girls; eighteen said, 'Thank you, sir.' To eleven old gentlemen or cripples, all of whom said, 'Thank you, sir.' Now, do you wonder why you are allowed to stand? You will find a larger proportion of gentlemen who give up their seats to ladies than ladies who are polite enough to say 'Thank you.'"

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & Co., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 142 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal center has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacture of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready-made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warerooms opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for the selves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicoff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. FERRICO, at 230 Kearney Street, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city; and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILLIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post

Ballet

THE CELEBRATED
Cucamonga Rancho
CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES
is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.
WITH WATER FREE
one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION
Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.
Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICH'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.
For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHURBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS
WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in a well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines ago) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.
An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. California Theater

This evening and to-morrow will positively be the last opportunities of seeing the Kiralfy ballet in "A Trip to the Moon," as on Monday "The Exiles" will be placed on the stage, with new scenery, new costumes and grand mechanical effects.

Grand Opera House

"Uncle Tom" will be withdrawn after the present week to allow the introduction of the great play of "Sardanapalus." Benefit of Miss Annie Pixley on Sunday.

Baldwin's Theater

The transcription of "Une cause celebre," now running at this theater, may be considered one of the best, if not the best of the modern Anglo-French dramas. The English version follows the general rule regarding translations; a poor play may gain, but with few exceptions (Coleridge's translation of Schiller's tragedies being one of the most notable), the copy is not equal to the original.

The drama itself is no more to be admired than the superb manner in which it is placed and played on the stage.

The cast has in it no weak character; every one makes the most of their parts, and the success of the piece is due as much to this as to any intrinsic merit of its own; if "A Celebrated Case" had been placed before us by a weak company, indifferently dressed and with poor scenery, we would have to record it as a celebrated failure. The dialogue is common place, possessing no brilliance, and in many passages inelegant in construction and wording.

Unlike the very successful dramas of Bonicault, there are no sudden surprises or unexpected situations, the audience have seen the whole of the plot in the prologue, and the interest is centered in watching the characters groping in the dark, until light is thrown on the scene in the last act. The plot is woven around a rather improbable event, and something which could only be conceived in the fertile mind of a Frenchman. A soldier is unjustly suspected of being the assassin of his own wife, convicted on the testimony of his own daughter, is condemned to the gallows, and after twelve years is enabled to establish his innocence. The field of society intrigue is not entered, and the drama is therefore free from the usual objectionable trash.

Bush Street Theater

"Across the Continent" continues to attract large and enthusiastic audiences.

The Fountain

When you visit this popular Concert Hall do not omit to taste their celebrated Wine of Mail, cold as ice and clear as crystal, and always on draught for the thirsty traveler. Concert every evening

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

FOREPAUGH's agent is in town arranging for a season of circus performances.

Mrs. Evans' benefit, at the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon, was a substantial success.

Miss Julia Wilson, the leading lady of the Denman Thompson Company, who will open Emerson's on Monday evening, is highly spoken of by the Eastern press.

A HART solo ("The Carnival of Venice," with variations) was given with good taste and execution, on Wednesday evening, at Baldwin's, between the second and third acts of "A Celebrated Case."

THE Irish drama, "Kathleen Mavourneen," underlined for Miss Anna Pixley's benefit, at the Grand Opera House, on Sunday evening, will afford the fair beneficiary an opportunity of bringing out some of her latest talent.

A CONTRIBUTION to Melpomene has been offered by Mr. John S. Hittell; it bears the title of "Tannwald," and is founded on the "Faust" of Goethe. In Mr. Hittell's transcription, Mephistopheles is put carefully away in the background and kept there. The drama appears to us to be more for the student than the stage, and as the story of Faust and Margaret is so well known, a review here is unnecessary. For sale by A. Roman & Co.

For the benefit of the Bush Golden Gate Park Labor Fund a musical matinee will be held at the Metropolitan Temple this afternoon, under the direction of Prof. Herold. Mrs. Henry Norton will sing a grand aria, from "Traviata," also "The Lark now leaves his Watery Nest," by Hatton. The Schmidt family will join in a quintette, for strings only; and the rest of the selections will be given by the Herold orchestra. Concert begins at 3 o'clock. Admission, $1.00.

An Anecdote of Macready

Mr. Sala has been attacking dead actors in "Tonchstone." He charges Macready with having habitually used foul and blasphemous language behind the scenes. An apologist has come to the front who hints that Mr. Sala may have been led astray by the fact that in the last act of "Macbeth" Macready invariably lashed himself into a sort of fever, which he aggravated by using all sorts of strong expressions. When Mr. Phelps played "Macduff" to him for the first time he was not a little amazed during the first act at the close of the last act to hear Macready call him a beast, a scoundrel, a hell-born villain, a base-born cur, and a devil. Full of resentment, Phelps hurled back the epithets with energy, and heaped foul names upon Macready. At the close Macready said: "Thank you, Mr. Phelps, thank you; I've never been so well supported." In another play, where it was necessary to enter in a panting fury, full of rage, exhibiting the gasping exhaustion of mad passion, Macready used to have a hired "super" whom he would grapple and shake and curse at, off the stage, so that he could enter naturally. One night the regular "super" sent a substitute, who did not quite understand the business. He resented Macready's rough treatment, which delighted the tragedian, who went at his man with increased vigor. The substitute presently "let him have it," and the pair fought savagely a good round. Macready that night burst upon his audience in a splendid rage, out-Macreadying Macready. When the substitute learned the true state of affairs, however, he bolted; but he was soon unearthed, for Macready came off after the scene gasping "Hum—ha! where is he? Hum, ha, bless me! A splendid fellow! Pay him double, and let me have him every night." For the sake of a great actor's memory, it is to be hoped that Mr. Sala had judged Mr. Macready by one of his paroxysms, and not by his ordinary conduct as a gentleman and an artist.

Why Rev. Dr. Mudge Stopped His Paper

Some years ago when the writer was a reporter upon an Eastern paper, it devolved on him to write for the same edition an account of the presentation of a gold-headed cane to the Rev. Dr. Mudge, the clergyman of the place, and a description of a new hog-killing machine that had just been put in operation at the factory. Now, what made the Rev. Dr. Mudge mad was this: The inconsiderate buccaneer who made up the form got the two locals mixed in a frightful manner, and when we went to press, something like this was the appalling result:

"Some of the Rev. Mudge's friends called on him yesterday, and after a brief consultation the undersigned hog was seized by the hind legs and slid along the beam until he reached the hot water tank. His friends explained the object of their visit and presented him with a gold-headed cane, which he gratefully by the tail, and swung him around, and in less than a minute the carcass was in the water. Thereupon he came forward and said there were times when the feelings overpowered one, and for that reason he would not do more than attempt to thank those around him for the manner in which so huge an animal was cut in fragments was astonishing. The doctor concluded his remarks, the machine seized him, and, in less than it takes to write it, the hog was cut into fragments and worked into delicious sausage. The occasion will be remembered by the doctor's friends as one of the most delightful of their lives. The best pieces can be obtained for fifteen cents per pound, and we are sure those who sit under his ministry will rejoice to hear that he has been so handsomely treated."—Indianapolis Times.

An Editorial Bluff

When I applied for the position of city editor of the Daily Scapler, a frontier paper of some pretense, the man at the helm simply asked my name, age, and weight, and what I knew about the business, and then employed me.

"The proprietor is not hard to suit," I said to the foreman that evening, as I began business.

"Why do you think so?"

"Because he engaged me at once," I replied.

The foreman laughed.

"That's because he thinks you won't last more than a day or two. They never do."

"Who?"

"The editors—get cleaned out, you know; knocked in the head; shot to pieces—busted. Some of 'em leave the first day, others hang on a week or more, and then we carry 'em to that hill you see over there and plant 'em. There's a row of local editors over there half a mile long, and all died with their boots on."

"Truly this was not very encouraging, but I did not half believe it."

"It's a fact though," declared the foreman.

"This town ain't like other places, and then this is a high-pressure newspaper. If you wish to be popular you must pitch into people like blazes. Those fellows over on the hill were popular."

"And that's why they got killed, I suppose?" I said.

"I reckon so; at any rate, they are dead. Joe Hodges killed them."

"Joe Hodges?"

"Yes."

"Who is he, pray?"

"The town bully; the masher of the village; a genuine, double-back-action rough. Better not say anything about Joe, or he'll walk in here and mash you into a jelly in no time. Very particular Joe is about newspaper notices."

"Then he shall have none in this paper," I said determinedly.

"O, but that won't do," exclaimed the foreman. "Joe is that sort of a fellow that won't be slighted—nothing he hates so as neglect; and then he's mixed up in every row, so you'll have to mention him. In fact, Joe Hodges is on the flight worse than any man I ever knew."

"Copy!" called out one of the compositors.

The foreman cleaned the hook and rushed into the composing room.

"I'll fix Joe Hodges," I said, to myself, when the man was gone. "The first blow is the best, so here goes."

I seized my pencil and wrote a little notice, comparing Joe Hodges with a mule, and saying that, according to all accounts, he was a drunken rascal, unfit for human association.

The notice was put in type at once, and appeared in the paper the next morning along with the other locals, and that afternoon Joe Hodges called.

I was busy writing when he came in, but I looked up, and a hurried glance told me who he was.

A short, heavy-set, swarthy, low-browed rascal, with black hair and eyes, and red shirt—that was Joe Hodges.

"Take a seat," I said and went on writing.

In a half drunken way he floundered into a chair.

"What is your name?" I said glancing at him.

"Joe Hodges."

I dashed it down on a piece of blank paper on the table.

"How old are you?"

"Forty-two," with a surprised look.

I dashed that down in the same way.

"Your birth-place?"

"Missouri," with still more surprise.

I put it down, and then reached for a heavy revolver, which I cocked and laid on the table.

"Are you married?" I asked, with a quiet look at the astonished man.

"No," he replied, staring wildly.

I put the answer down.

"What is your business?"

"A blacksmith."

I made a record of the fact, and then looked up to ask another question, when I saw that the bully had risen and stood glaring at me, with his hand on the door.

"What in thunder are ye writing?" he yelled, his face almost purple.

"An obituary."

"Where?"

"Yours."

He only had had urgent business down on the street, I do not know; at any rate, he suddenly withdrew from my presence, and never looked in more.

Shakespeare and the Bible

Read the following curious parallel between Shakespeare and the Bible. It will be found interesting:

Bible—"But though I be rude in speech"—2 Cor., xi., 6.

Othello—"Rude am I in speech."

Bible—"Consume thine eyes and to grieve thine heart."—Samuel, ii., 35.

Macbeth—"Show his eyes and grieve his heart."

Bible—"Thou hast brought me into the dust of death."—Psalms.

Macbeth—"Lighted fools the way to dusty death."

Bible—"Look not upon me, because I am black, because the sun hath looked upon me."—Solomon's song, i., 6.

Merchant of Venice—"Mistake me not for my complexion, the shadowy livery of the burning sun."

Bible—"I smote him; I caught him by the beard and smote him and slew him."—Samuel, xvii., 35.

Othello—"I took him by the throat, the circumcised dog, and smote him."

Bible—"Opened Job his mouth and cursed his day; let it not be joined unto the days of the year, let it not come unto the number of the months."—Job, iii., 1, 6.

Macbeth—"May this accursed hour stand, aye, accursed in the calendar."

Bible—"What is the man that thou art mindful of him? For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels, thou hast crowned him with glory and honor. Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands."—Psalms viii., 4, 5, 6.

Hamlet—"What a piece of work is man! How noble in reason, how infinite in faculties! In form and moving how express and admirable! In action, how like an angel! In apprehension, how like a God! The beauty of the world, the paragon of animals."—N. F. Clipper.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No 135 Montgomery Street.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of H. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 122 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal outlet has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacture of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of C. Scherer & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danforth Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. BURRO, at 230 Kearny Street, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city; and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Turner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post Street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. His Free Art Gallery Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

Never Again

She wandered by the lonely shore,
And listened to the moaning sea,
And sad and weary was her wail,
"O waves, give back my love to me!"

But the wide billows rose and fell,
And took no heed of her sad pray'r,
And bright the moon above her shewn,
And glinted on her flaxen hair.

The light of love within her heart
Was darkened by the murky lee,
And ever came a wailing cry,
"O waves, give back my love to me!"

They rippled till they reached her feet;
She did not feel the touch of death,
But looked to see her own true love,
And feel the kisses of his breath.

She knelt upon the cold wet sand,
The rising tide she did not see,
But clasped her hands, and wildly cried,
"O waves, give back my love to me!"

They never saw sweet May again,
Although they sought from East to West;
The waves had borne her to her love,
And gently stilled the weary breast.

Hallam and Henry were managers of a theater in John street, New York, and opened the season with "Othello," October 10th, 1791. Henry was the Othello, and wore by way of costume "the uniform of a British general officer, his face black, and hair long." Oh, Salvini! Oh, McCollough! Henry was six feet in height, and very handsome, albeit he suffered from the gout, and limped. A Miss Morris was the Desdemona, on this remarkable occasion, and wore a pink hooped skirt and quilted petticoat, and powder in her hair.—Ex.

"SALLY," said a fellow to a girl who had red hair, "keep away from me or you'll set me on fire." "Don't fear," she answered, "you're too green to burn."—Ex.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED
Cucamonga Rancho
 CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES
 is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,
WITH WATER FREE
 one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION
 Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 109 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rhone's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORTWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

 known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in a well attended reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An Old Kentucky Home in Winter and the contrasting Picture.
St. Clair's Home in Louisiana, together with a Cotton Plantation on Red River, with Flatboats and Steamboats "Wooding Up."

Over One Hundred Genuine Colored People

Many of them former Slaves in Dixie's Land—Men, Women and Children, have been added to the masses of Auxiliaries.

SYNOPSIS OF SCENERY AND INCIDENTS

ACT FIRST.—Sold in Bondage. Mr. Shelby's Plantation. A Winter Night's Rejoicing of the Slaves. Tavern on the Banks of the Ohio. Escape of Eliza on the Ice. Floe baffles the Pursuers. Thrilling Tableau.
ACT SECOND.—The Tavern by the River. Geo. Harris fleeing from bondage. The Pursuit. The Kentuckian. "That's my mind." Meeting of George and Eliza. Rocky Pass. The Pursuers. Escape of George and Eliza. "Friend thee's not wanted here." Exciting Tableau.
ACT THIRD.—Superb Picture of a Southern Home. Miss Ophelia's first appearance in the South. How Shiftless! Topsy's History. De child that neber was born. I see so wicked. Sunset on the Lake. Eva and Uncle Tom. "I see a band of spirits bright." Eva's bed-chamber. Death of Little Eva. Solemn and impressive Tableau. Hymn. "Passing Away." by a Grand Chorus of One Hundred Jubilee Singers.
ACT FOURTH.—Topsy and the stockings. "I sint half so wicked as I used to was." St. Clair to Eva in Heaven. Topsy and Aunt Ophelia. Death of St. Clair. Slave market in New Orleans. Song. "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground." (By the Slaves). Uncle Tom sold to Legree. Young Shelby searching for Uncle Tom. A lawyer's information never gratis. The Red River at Sunset. Great Plantation Scene, by Stranes, introducing all the Freedmen, over one hundred, to illustrate the labor of Cotton Picking. The Passing Flatboat. To be followed by a Genuine Plantation Festival, in which Mr. George Reynolds (late of Reynolds Bros.), Mr. Chas. Cogill (late of Cogill & Cooper), and Mr. Geo. Thompson (the Happy Old Nig), together with the Jubilee Singers, will appear in Songs, Dances and Choruses, Camp-Meeting Hymns, etc., and the old-time Nigger Jolification. Walking for the Cake (thus affording a realistic picture of Southern life, before the war, that has never been equaled). Arrival of the Steamboat. Legree, Eveline and Uncle Tom. The Flogging. Legree's House. Cassy and Legree. The lock of hair. The workings of a guilty conscience. "Do you know that I have made up my mind to kill you?" The last Blow. Retribution! Death of Poor Uncle Tom. "I've got the victory—The Lord has given it to me—Glory be to His name. Hymn by the Jubilees. APOTHEOSIS—Magnificent Allegorical Tableau, Little Eva in Heaven!

California Theater

This afternoon and evening will positively be the last performances of "A Trip to the Moon" and the last appearances of the Kiralfy Ballet Troupe. "The Exiles" will be brought out on Monday evening.

Grand Opera House

Last "Uncle Tom" matinee this afternoon. To-morrow evening benefit of Miss Annie Pixley, for which the principal members of the profession in this city have volunteered. An immense success will doubtless crown their united efforts.

Baldwin's Theater

"A Celebrated Case" to full houses. In our gossip we publish the cast of "Richard III," with which this theater was opened two years ago. Some of the present company were then members, but not occupying so prominent places then as now.

The Fountain

The pleasant moonlit evenings have now the effect of crowding the sidewalks of Kearny street with promenaders. Many in passing the Thurlow Block listen to the Fountain Hall Concert, and entering find one of the most comfortable refreshment places in this city. Free Concert every evening and on Sunday at 3 p. m.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Pope's "Hamlet" is a revelation to the Virginians.

McKEE RANKIN is on the war path after the pirates of the Danites.

A CELEBRATED Schweizer Kase has been tried by the San Franciscans in New York.

Miss ROSE EYING will for some time to come hold a mirror of Egypt's voluptuous Queen before the Southern people.

THE Call has set up a new press, and claims that it can turn out 35,000 copies, printed, folded and dispatched, in one hour and thirty minutes.

THE "Uncle Josh" of Denman Thompson is spoken of by the Eastern dramatic reviewers as one of the best portraits of Yankee character on the stage.

THE Exiles which had the longest run in Boston on record, is expected to follow in the usual groove of French translations and give the lawyers a chance to act.

Who is to represent United States Art and Music at the Paris Exhibition? All other countries who are contributors have already chosen their man; why is Uncle Sam behind hand?

THE first concert of the second season of Herold's Miners is announced for Friday afternoon, March 15th. The programme for the occasion will be found under Amusements.

A RICH and rare treat is in store for Sunday evening's audience at the Grand Opera House. The many professional friends of Miss Annie Pixley will unite in giving one of the most attractive entertainments ever offered in this city. Reserved seats may be secured at the box office, without extra charge.

"A CELEBRATED CASE" is receiving a large amount of gratuitous advertising in the East. A writ of injunction was issued against its production at the Holliday St. Theater in Baltimore, and the proprietor, W. J. Gilmore, had to give bonds in $5,000 before he could produce it. An enormous house was the result of the advertising.

THE Dramatic News tells us that we have but four actors of tragedy in the whole country; namely, John McCullough, Edwin Booth, the Count Joannes and Lawrence Barrett, and remarks that of these the Count Joannes and our John are the only successful ones—(what about Louis Aibischer?) The Count Joannes has been playing to full houses at the Lyceum and people only go there on account of having the privilege of throwing cabbages and sulphuretted eggs at "Hamlet" and "Ophelia." For the present Shakespeare may be considered on the shelf in New York.

On a rainy night just two years and three days ago—Monday, March 6th, 1876—Baldwin's Theater was first opened to the public. Shakespeare's grand tragedy, "Richard III.," was rendered, with the following powerful cast: "Duke of Gloucester" and "Richard III.," Barry Sullivan; "King Henry VI.," A. D. Billings; "Prince of Wales," Miss A. A. Adams; "Duke of York," Miss Zoe Tuttle; "Earl of Richmond," J. F. Cathcart; "Duke of Buckingham," L. F. James; "Duke of Norfolk," E. D. Kelly; "Tressell," E. J. Buckley; "Lord Stanley," A. H. Hastings; "Catesby," M. A. Kennedy; "Ratcliffe," D. Belasco; "Earl of Oxford," R. H. Cox; "Blunt," L. Paul; "Lieut. of Tower," L. Belmour; "Lord Mayor," H. M. Brown; "Queen Elizabeth," Miss L. Hawthorne; "Lady Anne," Miss Emily Baker; "Duchess of York," Mrs. Belle Douglass. The orchestra was conducted by Mr. Harry Widmer, and George Dayton was scenic artist. The programmes were printed on satin, in elegant style. Messrs. James O'Neil and J. A. Herge were members of the company but did not appear on the opening night.

A BOSTONIAN, who once stood behind the scenes during a performance of "Medea," by Adelaide Ristori, describes a small incident illustrating the ease with which the artist temperament slips from nature into art. The curtain had not risen, and the actress was vehemently rebuking her son. "In the midst of gestulations, such as Italians alone can make, the call came for Ristori to go on the stage. Instantly a shiver passed through her frame, and Medea came to fill the form before me. Then followed applause on applause from an excited audience. Ristori left the stage by the same slip she had entered, and there stood the young man. Again, instantly, as if by magic, Medea was gone and Ristori was present, and the maternal advice was continued in the same manner, as though nothing had occurred to interrupt the same."—Ex.

ARAGOS of the great Polish tragedienne, a correspondent in the Boston Society writes:

"The debut of Mme. Modjeska on the American stage is quite a romance. After some seven or eight years of uninterrupted success in Warsaw, she had to break her contract. Over-exertion and family troubles were followed by ill-health, and the lady and her husband made up their minds to emigrate to America. They realized all the material means in their possession, and, after a brief tour through Europe, reached Philadelphia at the time of the Centennial Exhibition. They had with them their son and another married couple of friends. They travelled in princely style, and this cost them all the more money, as none of the party knew a word of English. It was towards California that their eyes were directed. That part of the great continent is more cosmopolitan, and the knowledge of English is not so absolutely necessary there. Besides, they wanted to see new countries, and the Count, who had in his capacity of Polish land-owner, pursued agricultural studies at home, expected to turn them to some account on the virgin soil of the 'Far West.' A large farm was purchased near Los Angeles, and the little Polish colony settled there, in the hope of banding up a new home.

In less than six months, however, it turned out that the experiment must be a failure. They were defrauded in the purchase, and cheated and robbed on all sides. The first thought of Mme. Modjeska was to return home, but news reached her that a suit for 100,000 roubles damages for the breach of her contract awaited her in Warsaw. Under such circumstances, the only thing left to her was to attempt a debut on the American stage. She did not lose time. Putting herself immediately under the direction of Mrs. Jndah, of the California Theater, she began to study English, and in less than six months made her debut in "Arienne," with the success now known to everybody."

The Early Life of Henry M. Stanley

Ever since that unhappy Mr. Noe made his bitter onslaught upon Stanley's fame there has been some uncertainty about the great explorer's birth-place, and even about his native land. At length Mr. Guernsey, of New York, evidently a warm admirer of his, apparently thinks that, in the light of his recent glories, Stanley can afford to have the whole secret of his early life revealed. It seems that Stanley's real name was John Rowland; that he was born near Denbigh, in Wales, in 1850, and of parentage so lowly that at the age of three years, he was placed in the poor house at St. Asaph. There he remained for ten years and received a good education, by which he profited so well that he was at length appointed usher in a school at Mold, in Flintshire. At the age of fifteen he shipped as a cabin boy on a vessel bound for New Orleans. There employed by a merchant named Stanley, he was at length adopted by him and authorized to take his name. Having joined the Confederates and been taken prisoner by the Federals, he was cut off from his benefactor and became a newspaper correspondent. — Pittsburg Commercial.

THE following extract from Robinson's Epitome of Literature will be of interest to lovers of old relics:

To the lover of books, scarcely any greater pleasure could be vouchsafed than a visit to the Shakespearean Library of Mr. Horace Howard Furness. The very aspect of the rooms is suggestive of a thoughtful love of literature and art, and at once warms the heart of the genuine litterateur. The book-cases, made of heavy black walnut, appropriately carved, occupy one side and one end of the Shakespearean room. The other side is taken up with the three windows, which serve to admit a soft, cheerful light, and the remaining end is appropriated by a delightfully attractive open fire-place. The ceiling is emblematically frescoed with Shakespeare's arms. In the centre of the room stands the desk of the author, which in material and carving harmonizes with the surroundings. So perfect is the harmony of all the appurtenances to this delightful apartment that the temptation is great to rest in the alluring easy chair and pore over one of the fascinating tomes within such easy reach. One feels instinctively that this is a library for study and thought, and everything seems to invite the reflective mind. Resisting the temptation, however, and beginning a tour of examination, the attention is attracted by a skull, around which cluster memories bearing some relic of the saltiness of time. "Alas, poor Yorick!" we murmur; for this is the self-same skull that for years was in use at the Walnut Street Theater in this city, and bears the names of Keen, Macready, Kemble, Booth, Forrest, Cushman, Davenport, Mardock and Brooks—all of whom held it as the representative of the jester's skull. Near by is a small glass case, containing a pair of old buckskin gauntlets, richly embroidered with gold thread. These are the celebrated "Shakespeare gloves," known to have been owned and treasured by Garrick, Mrs. Siddons and Mrs. Kemble. They constitute, perhaps, the best authenticated and most valuable relic of Shakespeare now in existence. From a paper accompanying them we quote the following:

"These Gloves were presented to Garrick in 1769, by a lineal descendant of Shakespeare's wife's family—a Mistress Hart, who was born and lived in Anne Hathaway's cottage at Shottery. They are the only relics that have survived of Shakespeare's theatrical properties (the value of his share in the properties of the Globe Theater was estimated by him at £500). A grand-nephew of Shakespeare said that in his youth he and his 'young companions often dressed themselves up as scaramouches in the wearing apparel' of his great-uncle.

"When these gloves were presented to Garrick it was said by the giver that according to the unbroken tradition of the family, they had frequently been worn by Shakespeare.

"Certain it is that Garrick valued them above all other treasures connected with Shakespeare, and by Mrs. Garrick they were bequeathed to Mrs. Siddons, and a formal presentation of them to Mrs. Siddons was made by Mrs. Garrick's executors.

"Mrs. Siddons bequeathed them to her daughter, Cecelia, Mrs. Combe, of Edinburgh. Mrs. Combe bequeathed them to Mrs. Kemble, and by this gracious lady they were most generously given to the present possessor.

"He they or be they not Shakespeare's, they have been in the possession of Garrick, of Mrs. Siddons and Mrs. Kemble."

Superstition of the Turks—Rival Wives

Magic and witchcraft would seem to be practiced to a very great extent among the Turks; there are those that are accounted magicians, witches, and wizards, whose occult power is brought largely (but with much secrecy) to work out results on another's will, affections, property, and health. Conceive the case of two rival wives each longing for the other's death. They look in each other's faces with jaundiced smiles, and revel together through a tournament of screeching music, and each knows all the while that the other has, so to speak, sold her soul to the Infernal Powers for the sake of present revenge. Let such a thing be but suspected by the one, and no power on earth can turn her from courting every spell of the Dark Craft to outdo her rival. For does not her very life depend on her resorting to more powerful means, to more subtle secrets than the other knows? Where can she find a man or woman "wise" enough to lead her through the labyrinth of dark ways that have to be trodden before she can arrive in triumph at her goal, and know her evil wishes realized? She sets to work cautiously and surreptitiously, binding some old woman to her secret service. But before spell, charm, or enchantment can be commenced, it is necessary to obtain possession of some object belonging to the person who has to be worked on. Say a divorce has to be brought about, two spoons must be obtained belonging to the parties who have to be separated; these metal objects are then securely bound together, in representation of the bonds of matrimony which unite their owners. The spoons are then either buried in the ground, or are hung in some damp, moldy receptacle, incantations having been duly said over them. As the string binding them together gradually decays, so the bonds of affection between the husband and wife will surely give place to aversion and estrangement, till their two lives fall asunder. — Bygravia.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

As addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutler has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris; and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. The Telephone

THE NOVELTY OF TALKING TO IT.—A writer in the Popular Science Monthly says: "When we begin to use a telephone for the first time there is a sense of oddity, almost of foolishness, in the experiment. The dignity of talking consists in having a listener, and there seems a kind of absurdity in addressing a piece of iron, but we must raise our respect for the metal, for it is anything but deaf. The diaphragm of the telephone, the thin iron plate, is as sensitive as the living tympanum to all the delicate refinements of sound. Nor does it depend upon the thinness of the metallic sheet, for a piece of thick boiler-plate will take up and transmit the motions of the air-particles in all the grades of their subtlety. And not only will it do the same thing as the tympanum, but it will do vastly more: the gross, dead metal proves, in fact, to be a hundred times more alive than the living mechanism of speech and audition. This is no exaggeration. In quickness, in accuracy, and even in grasp, there is a perfection of sensitive capacity, in the metal, with which the organic instrument cannot compare. We speak of the proverbial "quickness of thought," but the telephone thinks quicker than the nervous mechanism. Let a word be pronounced for a person to repeat, and the telephone will hear and speak it a hundred miles away in a tenth part of the time that the listener would need to utter it. Give a man a series of half a dozen notes to repeat, and he cannot do it accurately to save his life; but the iron plate takes them up, transmits them to another plate hundreds of miles off, which sings them forth instantaneously with absolute precision. The human machine can hear, and reproduce, in its poor way, only a single series of notes, while the iron ear of the telephone will take up whole chords and trains of music, and, sending them by lightning through the wire, its iron tongue will emit them in perfect relations of harmony.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Itone's FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 70 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 75 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines space) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

"The Exiles," which had the greatest success in Boston of any play ever produced there, will be given here this evening, and we may look upon it as the great event of the present theatrical season in San Francisco. The drama is in five acts, and translated from the French of Victorien Sardou, Eugene Nus and Prince Luborinsky. No expense has been spared by the management to place it on the stage in the most elegant and attractive manner; and the scenery will be of the finest character ever shown in this city. The plot, as published in one of our exchanges, is as follows:

"Mlle. Nadege Lamine, sister of Count Vladimir, is madly beloved by M. Schelm, a St. Petersburg police chief. Schelm has great influence, but is of low birth and old enough, apparently, to be the lady's father. In the first act it is developed that the Count has an enemy in Col. Falkine, his cousin, and the next heir to his estates; and in the same act Schelm interviews Max de Lussieres, a wealthy Frenchman, who is stopping in the Russian capital, and who has been rescued from the Neva, into which he was thrown by parties whose identity he refuses to reveal. Max baffles Schelm, but the sharp police chief interrogates his servant, Carcassin, from whom he gleams all he desires to know. Max wins the love of Nadege, and at Prince Pierre's fete Schelm proposes to the Count for her hand, only to learn that the Frenchman has been accepted as the lady's future husband. This enrages Schelm beyond all measure, and he casts about for his revenge. He has before this discovered that the parties who threw Max into the river are conspirators, and he now forms the bold project of connecting Max and the Count with them. This he accomplishes by means of an anonymous letter, which reflects on the honor of the Countess Lamine, and sends Max and her husband to the conspirators' abode to search for her. While they are there the place is captured by the police, and they and the rest are taken prisoners and exiled to Siberia, whither Nadege and the Countess follow them. Schelm becomes Inspector General of Siberia, and so oppresses his victims that they gather their fellow exiles and rise in revolt. Going to join the rebels, Nadege and the Countess miss them, and the latter faints from cold and sickness. Schelm and his soldiers find the ladies, but Schelm will not help to recover the Countess from her death-like swoon unless Nadege will consent to marry him. In her despair she yields in order to save the Countess' life, and the nuptial ceremony is performed; but immediately afterwards Nadege is rescued by Max, the Count and the rebels, who bind Schelm hand and foot, and leave him lying on the floor of the Governor's house. Col. Falkine has meanwhile become Governor, and, fearing that Schelm's marriage with Nadege will cause him to lose the Count's coveted estates, he sets fire to the house while Schelm lies bound there and leaves him to his fate. Schelm is rescued, but in a fearfully burned condition. The rebels flee across the Angara into foreign territory, Max and Carcassin holding the soldiery at bay while they do so. The Frenchman and his servant are captured, and the ladies and the Count learning the fact return and give themselves up. Schelm orders them all to be shot in his presence, but the Prince interferes in time to save them, and the wretched Inspector General ends his life by taking poison, Falkine having been killed during the fight on the Angara."

Grand Opera House

After a most successful run of four weeks, the drama of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was brought to a close on Saturday evening. On account of delay in getting scenery ready for the next sensation, and the immense labor necessary to place it before the public on the grand scale intended, the spectacular tragedy of "Sardanapalus" will not be given until next week. This evening a benefit will be given for the Widows' and Orphans' Aid Association of the S. F. Police Department. On Tuesday evening Miss Ada Gray will appear as "Mlle. Cora" in "Article 17." On Sunday, March 17, Miss Maggie Chambers and Mr. Charles Edmonds will receive a benefit. Miss Annie Pixley's benefit last night was, as might have been anticipated, a grand success.

OLE BILL was not a success in Vienna.

PATTI receives $2,000 nightly for her notes.

ADAM FOREPAUGH, of circus fame, arrived in this city last evening.

MISS NEILSON's return to the London stage was hailed with immense applause.

JARRETT & PALMER have engaged Miss Genevieve Ward for a ten months' American tour.

BEANS have been added to the inventory of missiles fired by Eastern gods at Count Jones & Co.

MAURICE GRAE is in New York arranging for the Almee Company appearing in South America in May.

WHILE the "Shanghrann" Combination was playing in the South, there was a perceptible advance in the price of eggs.

JARRETT is not satisfied with the present version of "Uncle Tom," and Fawcett Rowe is re-writing a new version for the English tour.

SOMETIME in May we may look for a monster concert at the Mechanics' Pavilion; musical conductors are moving in that direction.

THE Poppenheim-Adams Troupe have arranged a season of German, Italian and English opera at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, commencing March 18th.

THE concert at "The Fountain" yesterday afternoon attracted a large and select audience. This concert hall is fast becoming one of the permanent institutions of the city.

THE Female Minstrels open this evening at the Metropolitan Theater in Sacramento, to be followed on the 18th by the Catherine Lewis Opera Bouffe Company, and on the 25th by Kennedy's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Company.

AN exchange says: "A young American prima donna, who took lessons in Milan, a few years ago, and returned to this country disgusted with the tyranny of Italian music teachers, has been engaged as a substitute for a steam-whistle in a Lowell boot factory."

MISS MARY ANDERSON's idea of devotion to dramatic truth, differs somewhat from that of Miss Neilson, as she has refused to assume the character of "Rosalind," during her Southern tour, considering it unmaidenly to exhibit her person in male attire. She would not do for Bush Street.

THE New York Dramatic News of March 24 publishes the following:

"Mr. Clay M. Greene, of San Francisco, writes us, that it is a mistake to attribute the dramatization of the 'Gilded Age' to him. It was the work of George B. Denmore, of the S. F. Call, and Mr. Twain, who had received $100,000 for the work from John T. Raymond, had paid Mr. Denmore $400 for it. Noble man, that same Twain. If Parsloe would divulge his experiences with Twain, it would, no doubt, make another interesting chapter in the humorist's history."

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS

THE wake scene of the "Shanghrann" was rotten-egged in Louisville.

FROM his success in the East, we should judge Colonel Bob to be a more eloquent lecturer than Beccher.

Thomas Lord is the happiest young fellow in this part of the solar system. —Graphic. Yes, yes! And yet the two sons of his system interfered dreadfully with his honeymoon. —Phila. Evening Bulletin. Oh! Lord, what a pun that last Hiekschauge made.

KEELY the motor power man is reported bankrupt, and an Eastern exchange thus comments on it. "Keely absorbed about $100,000 from credulous people to develop his humming machine, which was going to supersede steam and dispense entirely with the use of fuel. He pretended that with a teaspoonful of water he could run a train of cars a hundred miles. For over three years he lived sumptuously, drove fine horses, wore diamonds and drank champagne at the expense of the stockholders in his motor company—one of whom, by the way, was a Cleveland editor. If Keely gets his deserts he will furnish motive power for braking stone in the penitentiary."

How Theodore Hook Invited Himself to Dinner

Strolling one day arm-in-arm with Daniel Terry, the actor, up a street in Soho, Hook's nostrils were assailed by a most savory odor. Looking down an alley, he saw the servants in the kitchen below dressing up a very fine dinner. "A party, no doubt," said Terry; "jolly dogs, what a feast! I should like to make one of them." "I'll take a bet I do," replied Hook. "Call for me here at ten." Leaving his friend, he mounted the steps and knocked at the door. Believing him to be one of the expected guests, the servant conducted him to the drawing-room, where a number of persons were already assembled. Making himself perfectly at home, he had half-a-dozen people about him, laughing at his bon mots, before the host discovered that a stranger was present. "I beg your pardon, sir," he said, addressing the uninvited one, "your name?—I did not quite catch it; servants are so incorrect." "Smith, sir, Smith," replied the unblushing Theodore, "don't apologize; you are quite right, sir, servants are great blockheads; I remember a most remarkable instance of their mistakes." "But really, sir," interrupted the host mildly, "I did not anticipate the pleasure of Mr. Smith's company to dinner. Whom do you suppose you are addressing?" "Mr. Thompson, of course," answered Hook, "an old friend of my father's. I received a kind invitation from you yesterday, on my arrival from Liverpool, to dine with you to-day, family party, come in boots, you said." The host at once disclaimed the name of Thompson, or any knowledge of the vivacious Smith. "Good heavens! then I have come to the wrong house," exclaimed the hoaxer; "my dear sir, how can I apologize? so awkward, too, and I have asked a friend to call for me." The old gentleman probably thinking so witty a personage would make an excellent addition to his party, begged him to remain. With a profusion of apologies, Hook at first pretended to decline—ultimately accepted. Everybody was delighted with him, all the evening he kept up a constant fire of wit and repartee, and ultimately sat down to the piano, and sang extempore verses on everyone present. In the midst of these the door opened, and, true to his appointment, in walked Terry, at the sight of whom, striking a new key, he sang.

I'm very much pleased with your fare,
Your cellar's as fine as your cook;
My friend's Mr. Terry, the player,
And I'm Mr. Theodore Hook.

And "that name," says Lockhart, "was already enough to put away wig in Gilded hall out of curl." —Bellevue

Contraction and Expansion

The rural idea of contraction and expansion is peculiar. Here it is. Charles Augustus was with Julia the other evening when she observed:

"Charles, dear, what is all this talk about contracting and expanding the currency, and which do you believe in?"

"Well, my sweet," said Charles, pulling up his collar, "that depends upon circumstances. In some cases I should advocate contraction of currency, and in others an expansion of it. It is according to the circumstances—that is, the condition of things."

"But what is the difference between the two, and how does circumstances affect them? That's what I want to know, Charles."

"O, that's easily explained," said Charles, in a tone of great cheerfulness. "For instance—when we are alone we both sit on one chair, don't we?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's contraction. But when we hear your partner making, we get two chairs, don't we?"

"I should say we do."

"Well, my love, that is expansion. So you see it is according to circumstances."

"Charles," said she, very softly, burrowing under his ear, "we are contracting now, ain't we?"

"You bet," said Charles, with increased cheerfulness. —Ex.

MESSRS. HOWE AND HUMPHREY, the lawyers, recently wrote to Mr. George Jones, alias the Count Johannes, recommending an unemployed actress to his good office, and saying that his well-known chivalry would not allow suffering womanhood to want. The Count Jones, in answering, said that he was well aware of his own chivalry, but that even chivalry in the cause of suffering womanhood had a limit. As it was, he had some thirty to forty applications a day from suffering women, and could not satisfy them. He at the same time issued a programme of his performances at the Lyceum, adding that the price of orchestra stalls was one dollar. —N. Y. Dramatic News.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, N. 135 Montgomery Street

As addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & Co., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal officer has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest sensations in business cards, to be had of L. DeRancray & Co., 35 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Dept., 135 Montgomery St., near Bush

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danleffs' Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and sent in the latest Parisian style.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

LOVERS of MUSIC, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. EHRICO, at 230 Kearny Street, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewellery, he could not be equalled by any in this city—and the samples of Fine Jewellery he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

PERFECT FEEBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

Patti's Sweet Revenge

Patti is having a stirring time of it at Naples. When she arrived they declined to receive her at the Hotel Royal, as she was accompanied by a friend, and she had to go to the Nobile. She was in high dudgeon, refused to rehearse, and in consequence found an audience at San Carlo as cold as a stone. In less than an hour she sang the whole house into warmth, enthusiasm, frantic delight—it was the "Traviata"—and the next morning the papers made positive excuses. Nay more, the committee of the theater came to pay her the unusual honor of a visit in state. She refused to see them. Expectation was on tiptoe as to her reception the next night. It was feared she would be hissed. Not at all. She sang the "Barbier," and with the same effect as before, her voice acting on their premeditated sulkiness like the rising sun on mists. In the scene in which she has to spell the name of Rosina she kept one high note so long that the unhappy baritone who accompanied her—and not a bad one either—had to stop three times for breath, she mocking him with a look the while. Naples has now given up all idea of resistance and has taken up its old position—at her feet. She receives $1,900 a night, with a right to half of the surplus when the receipts exceed $3,800. On the night of the "Barbier" they took $5,700 at the doors; she therefore received an extra $950, or a total of about $2,850 for the night's work, not counting her bonus of revenge.—Richard Whiting's Paris Letter to N. Y. World.

California Theater

A crowded house greeted the first appearance of "The Exiles" last evening. On account of the great amount of new business, the audience was detained till past 12 o'clock. Voegtlin's scenery of "A Siberian Forest in Winter" is one of his greatest successes, and for which he was called out. We defer notice.

Grand Opera House

"Article 47," with Miss Ada Gray as Mlle. Cora, will be produced here this evening.

Baldwin's Theatre.

"A Celebrated Case" is having a successful run here. The authors, D. Ennery and Cormon have given one character that compels admiration, and being so unlike what is usually found in Parisian sensational dramas, it becomes the more noticeable, we refer to the character of 'Adrienne' the daughter of 'Jean Renaud,' (which is so ably interpreted by Miss Nina Varian) whose parental devotion awakens a chord in one of our noblest feelings.

The Fountain

Lunch hours from 10 A. M. to 2 P. M., daily. The most select and choice articles de cuisine; the finest liquors, wines and coffee; the best brands of imported cigars, and the most central and homesomest refreshment saloon in San Francisco. Free concert every evening and matinee on Sunday.

Tivoli Garden

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a snitable retreat at this suburban villa, at the North-west corner of Stockton and Sutter streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Saturday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

Boucicault will appear at the California in May.

Bert's "Tour of the World" Combination" is travelling in Oregon.

The Olympic Club has been invited to repeat its performance in Oakland, and is announced to appear at Dietz' Hall on the 22d inst.

JAMES HAMILTON, Artist, died yesterday in this city. As a painter of marine subjects he stood at the head of his profession.

"HERO OR DONALD MCKAY," was the sensational attraction at the Bush Street Theater last evening; and at Emerson's, Denman Thompson, supported by Miss Julia Wilson, appeared in the title role of "Joshua Whitcomb."

"WALLENGREN on the road to Egra," by Pilot, of Munich, the teacher of Toby Rosenthal, is on exhibition at the art gallery of Snow & May. First impressions are very often permanent, and last evening it was placed in a miserable light to bring out whatever merit it may possess.

Mr. CHARLES POPE, ably seconded by Fred. Maeder, is giving a successful season of the legitimate at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City. Last week Mr. Pope had to call the gallery hoodlums to order, as they were getting a little too demonstrative in the expression of their approbation.

LONDON critics do not take their cue from San Francisco; one of them writes:

"Miss Neilson was not fitted with a congenial part, and she made the gentle 'Viola' boisterous. It was Miss Neilson—never 'Viola.' Her general impersonation lacked intelligence, while her rendering of her lines was often marked by faulty rhythm and deficient accentuation. She looked remarkably well, and played with the noisy extravagance of a burlesqued Princess."

In reviewing the "Camille" of Modjeska, Grace Greenwood writes:

"I swore off from this play after seeing the terribly realistic, the heart-breaking impersonation of Clara Morris, and I swore off harder after seeing Mrs. Ronsby's. I saw in Paris, many years ago, the original 'Dame aux Camellias,' Mme. Doche, playing to Fechter's 'Armand,' and all later representations of this character have, in my eyes, suffered somewhat in comparison with that admirable actress, lifted by her Marguerite Gautier into at least a temporary rivalry with Rachel. They all lacked something which went to make up that strange, fascinating, beautiful, pathetic performance. Helena Modjeska alone seems to me all she was, and more, or better. She excels Doche in grace, in tenderness, in the dainty archness of her comedy, and in that exquisite delicacy which, in the utmost abandon of gayety or passion, stops short of license and coarseness."

DRAMATIC readings of new plays by authors, is an established custom in Paris, and it seems to have been turned to good advantage by M. Dumas, in bringing his new "Balaam" before the public. Yet these readings to dramatic troupes are sometimes productive of queer results. Balaam, another French author, used to grow so hot and excited, that he would peel off his garments one by one. On the occasion of his reading "Mercadet," he had arrived at the green-room of the Francaise in full evening costume. After the first act he asked leave to remove his necktie; after the second, off went his coat; at the end of the third, he found his patent-leather boots too tight; in the midst of the fourth and last, he discarded his waistcoat and braces. "Mon dieu, c'est heureux qu'il n'y ait pas de cinquieme acte!" remarked an actress, when the author sank back in his chair at the finish with the complaint that the heat was stifling.—Ex.

Men's Love and Self-Love

Girls are sometimes admonished not to flirt, because however pleasant it may be to them, it might break the heart of those with whom they flirt. Nonsense. We have heard of victims of blighted affection, but never yet came across one. Time, in this sort of matters, works wonders. We doubt whether any man ever yet died of a broken heart. Men are more vain than women. There are exceedingly few of them who are not flattered by the idea of some woman falling in love with them. The lady, for the moment, affords them this gratification of self-love. She makes herself as agreeable as she can. If the vanity of the man leads him to believe that she has fallen a victim to his charms, this is his fault, not hers. The illusion has raised him to the seventh heaven for a brief period, and if the period be short, he is the gainer. In one of De Bernard's novels he describes an old captain who lives supremely happy because he fancies that, years ago, some girl died of a broken heart because he had declined to marry her. He carries about her portrait, and on all occasions takes it out and weeps over it. One day, however, he meets the girl, who had not died, but had married a grocer, and forgotten all about the captain. He is in despair. He can no longer indulge in the luxury of grieving over the sad fate of the object of his youthful affections. Flirt on, then, young ladies, and do not imagine that the amusement will break the heart of any one. It may wound his vanity, quite likely and where this is the only quality the man has, the blow may stagger him. But it will do him good, show him his real selfishness. So did on, young ladies, but at the same time temper the blow to the tenderness of the young man who is to receive it.—Bow Bells.

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS

A CAR conductor of this city is the author of triplets. Now, can't some hotel waiter favor us with fourplets?

"WESTWARD the star of nobberly takes its way.—Detroit Free Press. Yes, and Eastward the star of jobberly makes its stay.

THE well-known and genial John Smith is registered at the American Exchange, from New York. Our community will rejoice to know that Mr. Smith is well.

A CLERICAL friend asks us "if we don't think it wrong to smoke?" Of course we do; it's very sinful. Send us your cigars, and we will burn them up, while you go off and reform.

AN Oakland editor is suffering so badly with a carbuncle on his left hand that he makes a note of it in his paper. An Oakland carbuncle is equal to falling off the Capitol at Sacramento.

WHEN the Sutter street cars arrive at Larkin street, and stop there for half an hour, in order to allow the conductor to talk politics with the receiver, we venture the assertion that any of the passengers would willingly sign Napoleon's death warrant.

SINGULAR phenomenon—A sick well-digger.—Amor (Ill.) News. Easily accounted for. He's sort of under the weather, you know.—Hawkeye. But still we don't see how he can be sick, if he is a hole man.—Phila. Bulletin. Don't you, sonny? Well, just take a pick and descend, and see if you don't get sick at the bottom.

THE initiation ritual of the Pargaphers' Association binds the candidate, by a terrible oath, to tell "the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, to the best of their knowledge and belief."—Ex. This doesn't strike us as very binding. But few paragraphs nowadays have any belief in their knowledge, or possess any knowledge upon which to found a belief.

At the Opera in Paris, the other evening, a colored lady, very elegantly dressed, sat in one of the boxes, surrounded by other dark-visaged persons. It was the Princess Celia, daughter of Soulouque, once Emperor of Hayti, and her family. The Princess lives most of the time in England. Soulouque could write his signature only, and could read nothing but print. He declared himself Emperor in 1849, and created among the negro population 400 nobles, of whom four were princes, fifty-nine dukes, and twelve marquises. The others were counts, barons and knights. He also created two orders for men: one military, that of St. Faustin, the other civil, the Legion of honor; also, two for women, those of Sainte Madeleine and Sainte Anne.—Ex.

A Nicaragua Host, Minstrel and Lover

I was riding with a number of companions from Granada de Nicaragua towards Leon, bent partly on pleasure, and partly on government service. We were provided with a strong recommendation to Don Hilario, from the municipal council of Granada. It became necessary to apply to him for horses and a guide, so one afternoon we rode up to the hacienda. A large plantation of cacao surrounded it, then a field of tobacco, then a high wall of sun-dried bricks. The house itself was small but defensible, standing in the midst of a courtyard. A wooden verandah, cracked and gaping with dry heat, ran round two sides; from the middle thereof descended a flight of clattering steps, rough-hewn with the axe, and ignorant of paint. There had once been a tower above the great gate, and a covered way from it to the upper story, in which doubtless the inhabitants hoped to make a stand if the walls were forced; but it had fallen outwards, and blocked the main entrance. The court never leveled or unfurled, bore a ragged crop of hay, and a harvest of broken bottles, potsherds, bits of leather, hides stretched to dry, old barrels, every kind of rubbish, except paper. In brick recesses below the covered way, heaps of maize-shucks revealed the peons' sleeping place. All along the house-wall stood cacao in heaps, set out to dry in rude baskets; round a pile of the fruit still crimson, two or three Indians lazily cracked the big nuts, and gossiped drowsily as they tore out the kernels. Where a few palm trees leaned their glittering heads above the wall, a little group of panting mules crushed together, for the air swam with heat. Don Hilario had gone to visit a neighbor, but he was expected shortly. No representative was there to ask us in, so we stretched our rugs, and lay down on the verandah smoking. The cicadas sang without intermission, a quivering whirl of sounds which lulled one to sleep. From time to time a peon down below cried sharply: "Altro Indio!"—another Indian—and one of his comrades forthwith struck up some melody, nasal and monotonous, which overpowered the insect clamor. Very soon we all dozed off, for the journey had been long. Our nap was broken by the twang of a guitar. I raised myself, and beheld a tall, slender man seated on the steps, who could be only Don Hilario. He motioned me down rather as one motions to a dog which seems about to jump, and then, finishing the prelude with a flourish, he began to sing. His voice was not bad, and had been carefully trained, but the man's features would have spoiled any music. His face might have been pleasing enough, had he left it quiet. Features long and very dark; eyes black as ink, both pupil and iris slightly protruding, and shiny, without brilliance; beard and hair long, thick, and perfectly straight, showed Indian blood. He rolled in his seat, threw up his eyes and his guitar, banged it and twanged it, half rose, dropped with a thump of despair, played in fact all the most fantastic of those tricks which musical rapture seems to provoke. Displeased with my reception, I lay and laughed without concealment, and my friends, all awake, did likewise. The minstrel did not pay attention. When his song finished, with a sudden jerk, he gravely addressed the circumambient air: "To my mistress," he said, looking straight before him, "I dedicate this fragment of my soul! Senors, at your service!" Thereupon, rising briskly, he shook hands all round, and offered his house, his servants, his wife and children—he had none—for our "disposition," hung his guitar upon the wall, kissed it fondly, and shunted for a chair. A ragged Indian girl brought it, and he sat down, "Cre gredin!" muttered old Barbachella, and threw himself flat upon his rug. So did we, but Don Hilario did not seem to notice that he alone had a seat. "We want horses and a guide," said Barbachella: "here is a letter for you." He held it forth, without rising, and the Don took it gracefully. "Everything," he answered, "everything here is yours!"—At the Year Round.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No 135 Montgomery Street

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal center has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacture of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest announcements in business cards, to be had of L. DeRoussay & Co., 35 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No 31 Post Street, Mechanical Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danieles' Manufactory at 114½ Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERRICO, at 230 Kearn Street, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

Before and After

They were very pretty, and there was apparently five or six years' difference in their ages. As the train pulled up, the youngest girl blushed, flattened her nose nervously against the window, and drew back in joyous smiles as a young man came dashing into the carriage, shook hands tenderly and cordially, insisted on carrying her valise, magazine, little paper bundle, and would probably have carried her had she permitted him. The passengers smiled as she left, and the murmur went rippling through the carriage: "They're engaged." The other girl sat looking nervously out of the window, and once or twice gathered her parcels together as though she would leave, yet seemed to be expecting some one. At last he came. He bulged into the door like a house on fire, looked along the seats until his manly gaze fell upon her upturned, expectant face, he roared, "Come on! I've been waiting for you on the platform fifteen minutes!" seized her basket and strode out of the carriage, while she followed with a little valise, a band-box, a paper bag full of lunch, a bird-cage, a glass jar of jelly preserves, and an extra shawl. And a crusty-looking old bachelor in the further end of the carriage croaked out, in unison with the indignant looks of the passengers "They're married!"

California Theater

Since the opening night the text of "The Exiles" has been judiciously pruned, and a better acquaintance with the handling and setting of the scenery renders the drama now far better than on the first performance. The distribution of the cast, with few exceptions, is all that could be desired. The 'Nadesha Lanine' of Miss Ellie Wilton is one of the best efforts of that lady, and the scene between her and Schelm after marriage, wherein she gives expression to the loathing she feels for the nominal husband, is the most effective and best rendered passage in the drama. The role of 'Schelm' is filled by Keene in his usual earnest and conscientious manner, and his conception and rendering of the character throughout is good, although it might be given with more apparent truth if less expressive in some of the soliloquies. 'Max de Lussieres,' by Barton Hill, is made the most of possible, the dress being, if anything, a trifle too rich for a Siberian prisoner. 'Nicholas Popoff,' as represented by Harry Edwards, has a more powerful physique than usually associated with a violinist, although allowance must be made in favor of a Russian fiddler. The scenery, as usual when from the hands of Voegtlin, is magnificent. "The Exiles" may be expected to have a most successful season.

Grand Opera House

"Article 47" was produced here last evening with Miss Ada Gray as 'Cora.' This piece is so well known to our theater-goers that we defer present notice. The preparations for "Sardanapalus" are nearly complete, and next Monday that tragedy will be placed before the public.

Baldwin's Theatre.

A most successful season may be anticipated for the present company. "A Celebrated Case" is given nightly to crowded houses.

Emerson's Opera House

'Uncle Josh,' as rendered by Denman Thompson, is really the best down-East Yankee that ever tickled the risible faculties of a San Francisco audience. The quaint old-fashioned phrases and dry humor of 'Uncle Josh' keep the audience in one continuous ha-ha. In this special line it is impossible to wish for a better exponent than Mr. Denman Thompson. The piece is without a theme, and the rest of the characters are merely a frame around the central figure.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

A NUMBER of young Japs are studying music in Italy.

MRS. BARNEY WILLIAMS is educating her daughter in Paris.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" was given last night at Dietz' Hall, Oakland.

THE benefit of Mr. Charles Edmunds, announced for next Sunday evening, at the Grand Opera House, has been postponed.

THE funeral of James Hamilton, artist, will take place this afternoon from the rooms of the Art Association, Pine street, at 2 o'clock.

It would be a good thing for our marketmen who deal in eggs, if the Count Johannes would play a season of "Hamlet" and "Richard III." in this city.

On Sunday afternoon, if you wish to have a rural picnic without the trouble of crossing the bay, or railroad travel, just visit the Tivoli Gardens, and take lunch there under the leafy arbors that surround that villa.

On Friday next, at the Metropolitan Temple, the first of the second season of of R. Herold's Matinee Concerts will be given. Seats can be secured at Gray's, on Thursday from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M., and on Friday from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Box sheet for season tickets open daily.

AN exchange tells us that Max Strakosch in answer to a question as to how many celebrated artists he has brought to this country, says: "I had Palmieri in 1876; Titiens in 1875; Albani in 1874; Nilsson, Caponi and Campanini in 1873; Carlotta Patti in 1872; Nilsson in 1870, '71; Carlotta Patti in 1869; Kellogg in 1868; Gioni in 1867; Parepa in 1866; Gioni and Susini in 1865; Lagrange in 1864; De Kati, violinist, and Wehli, the left-hand pianist, in 1863; Gottschalk in 1858, '59, '60, '61; Adelina Patti in 1858. Besides these, I had at different times, Parodi, Frezzolini, Piccolomini, Colson, Gazzaniga, Mario, Carpi, Thalberg, Cora de Wilhorst, Stigelli, Vieuxtemps, Teresa Carreno, and many others I cannot now remember. To these I have now added the rising dramatic prima donna of France, Mlle. Marie Roze." He states that he lost $80,000 on Albani, and a considerable sum on Titiens.

ONE of the most interesting collections of daguerreotypes in the world, and one which is daily becoming of more interest and value, is that of the United States Senators, in the possession of Alfred Hoosack, Artist, Thurlow Block. Notwithstanding the immense strides that the art of photography has made within the past twenty-five years, still, for exquisite finish, delicacy of detail, and the gradual blending from lights to shadows (or what is technically known as half tone), the impression made upon iodized silver plates, according to the original discovery of Daguerre, have never yet been excelled or equalled by any albumin or collodion process.

The present method of retouching negatives, prior to printing, is productive of bold effects, but to gain this truth must be sacrificed; although by the present method photography is raised from a mere mechanical process to a fine art. Truth permits no embellishment, art does. Napoleon crossed the Alps on a mule; art has placed him on a high-spirited horse, prancing on the edge of a precipice.

The original daguerreotypes placed under a microscope will show the tissue of garment or flesh, or whatever is under the glass, photographs will show the rough tissue of the paper.

Those curious to look upon the likeness of American statesmen—Webster, Clay, and others of the past generation—will find in Mr. Hoosack's collection much food for reflection upon the difference between the past and the present.

Pre-Raphaelitism in Dress

I am sometimes asked what is meant by "Pre-Raphaelitism" in dress. If one was required to furnish an exact definition of that term it would be very hard; for everybody who catches it up means a different thing. But we may say in a general way that the present movement in dress under the above name, which is gradually spreading, first among art circles who have discovered, then among aesthetic circles who appreciate, the laws which govern beauty, represents the common reaction that follows any bad system carried on long. Fashion generally begins well, fall into hideous extravagance, then a reaction against the extravagance comes, and so on, ad infinitum. But the loose term Pre-Raphaelite is extremely misleading. Artistic was a better word. Pre-Raphaelite might fairly mean anything that was in vogue before Raphael's day—from Eve's simple attire or the blue tattooing of the early Briton, up to the many preposterous head edifices which decayed with the houses of York and Lancaster. Some people think it only means the art of standing in impossible attitudes, and keeping on garments apparently pitchforked at one, like pictured saints, before their varieties had discovered perspective. Others suppose it means the most painful combination of coarse colors, arranged without any regard to the fitness of things—green hair, blue grass, etc. But the term, one of the nick-names that invariably attach to every reaction in its early days, properly applies to the forms of dress—simple without bareness, complex without confusion—and the colors harmonious, however varied, which mark, roughly speaking, the period of Edward III's reign, from 1327 to 1377. About this time, after the follies of fashion (temp. William Rufus and his immediate successors) were forgotten, and the equal vagaries of Richard II's reign not yet thought of, the modes in dress were for the most part graceful, natural and moderate. This is why Artistic is a better term for the present reaction than Pre-Raphaelite, as it implies the study of beauty rather than the worship of the grotesque, and limits beauty to no one brief period.—London Queen.

FOOTLIGHT PELLETS

CAN't somebody invent a noiseless corset for theater orchestras?

WOMEN stand on the corners nowadays and shriek through a toy whistle at car conductors.

SINCE the Call has got its new perfecting press, it treats its contemporaries with freezing and speechless contempt.

WHAT a beautiful sight—to see Loring Pickering and Charley de Young embracing each other among the cog-wheels of that perfecting press.

THE Post has got what it calls a "hell reporter"—that is, a gentleman who is deputized to interview ministers who still believe in a heated term in the future.

"SENECTITUDE" is a word which a Post reporter threw at its readers on Saturday. It means old age, we presume; but then, its obscurity is its chief virtue, and that reporter is entitled to some credit for snaking it out from among the senescent pages of his senectitudinous lexicon.

THE longest sentence on record was constructed by a Western judge. He sentenced a man for life, and afterward slapped two more years to the sentence because the prisoner called him "no gentleman."—Ex. That might not be so long a sentence after all. Say the man died in twenty years. Probably the judge's idea was to pack him in ice, and keep him in prison the two years in question. The judge did right in maintaining his dignity.

PROF. THOMAS A. EDISON, of Menlo Park, New Jersey, inventor of the speaking phonograph, is thus reported by The Weekly Sun interviewer:

"Why," says Mr. Edison, "Adelina Patti can sing her sweetest arias, and by this instrument we can catch and reproduce them exactly as sung. The matrixes can be copied the same as stereoscopic views, and millions sold to those owning the machine. A man can sit down in his parlor at night, start his phonograph, and enjoy Patti's singing all the evening if he chooses. The same with Levy's cornet playing. A matrix of his solos can be produced, and a million copies taken, and Levy's solos and Patti's arias can be given ten thousand years from now as perfectly and accurately as when these great artists were alive. If the last benediction of Pope Pius had been taken by the phonograph, the matrix could have been duplicated, and every true Roman Catholic on the face of the earth might have heard the benediction in the Pope's own voice and accentuation. There was a fortune in it. The matrixes could have been sold for five dollars apiece."

"Poor churches in the country," continued the Professor, "might have these machines rigged up over their pulpits, and by using the proper matrixes, could have Dr. Chapin, Dr. Bellows, Beecher, or any other great theological light expound to them in their own voices every Sunday; thus poor churches would save their money and get rid of the poor preachers. Nor is this all. A man in Europe has invented a machine by which he takes an instantaneous photograph. Let us suppose that he photographs Dr. Chapin every second, and we take down his sermon on the matrix of the phonograph. The pictures and gestures of the orator, as well as his voice, could be exactly reproduced, and the eyes and ears of the audience charmed by the voice and manner of the speaker."

"Whole dramas and operas," continued Mr. Edison, "his eyes sparkling with excitement, 'can be produced in private parlors. The instrument can be used in a thousand ways. Say I hire a good elocutionist to read David Copperfield, or any other work. His words are taken down by machine, and thousands of matrixes of David Copperfield produced. A man can place them in the machine, and lie in bed, while the novel is read to him by the instrument with the finest grade of feeling and accent. He can make it read slow or fast, can stop it when he pleases, and go back and begin again at any chapter he may choose. I could fix a machine in a wall, and by resonations any conversation in a room could be recorded. Political secrets and the machinations of Wall street pools might be brought to light, and the account charged to the devil. Kind parents could lie in bed and hear all the spooney courtship of their daughters and lovers. A man who loved the music of the banjo or the fiddle, could buy his matrix and listen to Horace Westcott or Mollenbauer whenever he liked. He could have the whole of Theodore Thomas' orchestra if he wanted it."

"To a certain degree," said Mr. Edison, "the speaking phonograph would do away with photography. A man could dictate to his machine whenever he pleased, turn the machine over to an amanuensis, and let him write it out. A lawyer through the machine might make an argument before a court, even if he had been in his grave a year. An editor or reporter might dictate a column at midnight and send the machine up to the compositor, who could set the type at the dictation of the machine without a scrap of manuscript. I tell you there is no limit to the possibilities of the instrument."

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No 135 Montgomery Street

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

An Explanation

Mr. JOHNSON, who played 'Polonius' to the Count Johannes 'Hamlet' at the recent representation at the Bowery, New York, who was struck with an egg intended for the count on that memorable occasion, recounts his experience thus: "The other night, in 'Hamlet,' the Count roughly ordered the prompter to whistle up the curtain while the overture was in midblast, and before the drum and trumpet had been brought up to give the usual flurry from the castle walls at the opening of the piece; and the manager had to call him to the prompter before he could be induced to go into the wings and mind his own business. 'I, sir, am the attraction here!' cried the Count, striking his breast triumphantly. 'It is me, sir, me, whom this enthusiastic multitude rush to admire, and I have some rights here which you are bound to respect.' 'Quit the stage, sir, till your cue is called,' thundered the manager, with a voice and manner that sent the actor-nobleman whirling into the wings. Just after the second act in 'Hamlet,' he came to me, and said in a triumphant tone: 'How art thou now, 'Polonius'?' 'Pretty well—considering,' said I. 'I am more than well—I am over-joyed—ravished! Hark!' as the chorus of yells, hoots, cat-calls, epithets, and the like came pouring around the sides of the curtains from the fun-furious crowds in front. 'Shouldn't that be music to my ears? Is there another actor on this continent who could command applause of that nature?' 'No, I don't think there is,' I replied. Then, again, just before the curtain rose in 'Richard,' he came rushing in among us all in a perfect agony of delight. 'Now, now,' he cried, 'the work goes bravely on! They're piling into the house in scores, swarms, myriads! Ha, ha! the Count's name is still a tower of strength!'—Boston Society.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of watershed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rich's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the most respect and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the opposite page these papers are listed in a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in the most selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one letter is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 letters to order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines square) will be inserted due time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.
Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and a pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

California Theater

"The Exiles" continues to improve with each representation. The artists are now at home in their characters and in sympathy with the audience. Altogether it is vastly improved since the opening night. It is playing nightly to full houses.

Grand Opera House

The present week will terminate "Article 47." Miss Ada Gray assumes the character of "Cora" in a most able manner, and the rest of the characters are well sustained. Mr. F. C. Bangs who will appear in the title role of "Sardanapalus," on Monday evening, is spoken of as possessing all the qualifications necessary for that difficult part. Miss Ada Gray will appear as "Myrrah," and Mlle Bonfanti will be "Queen of the Ballet."

Baldwin's Theatre.

"A Celebrated Case" continues to attract here.

Emerson's Opera House

The comedy played here is thoroughly American, and the very best of its kind. It contains more condensed wit than can be found in the whole of Mark Twain's works, and "Uncle Josh" gives expression to it in the most natural manner. Thompson's power to make the audience laugh is simply irresistible. Theater-goers will miss a treat if they fail to visit.

Metropolitan Temple

Another season of concerts, under the direction of Professor Rudolph Herold, will be inaugurated on Friday afternoon at this elegant music hall. The programme selected for the occasion embraces: "March," by Tannhauser; "Symphony" (In the Woods), by Raff; "Overture," by Weber; "Harpicounds," by Jungman; "Minuetto," by Bocherini; and the "King of Yvetot," overture by Adam. No doubt the present series will meet with the same success as the preceding, which result will be due not alone to the excellence of the performance, but largely through the energetic management of Mr. Charles Schutz.

The Fountain

This evening's programme embraces many popular selections from the most notable German and Italian composers. The cornet solos of Savinier continue to be a prominent feature in the entertainment. Lunch is served daily from 10 to 3. Dinner from 5 to 8. After which the concert commences. The proprietor, Mr. Casimir, is importer of some of the finest brands of Rhine and Moselle wines, and families can be supplied in any quantity in the original packages. He has also on hand the finest brands of Champagne and French red wines; also, imported malt liquors in glass and bulk. Visitors may feel assured that what liquors are served with refreshments are of the finest quality in the market.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

Miss ADA GRAY has doffed her blonde wig, and her "Cora" is thereby improved in appearance.

It is reported that Miss Eleanor Cary will succeed Miss Ellie Wilton as leading lady at the California.

"DONALD MCKAY, or the Hero of the Modoc War," has possession of the boards at Bush Street Theater.

THE Schmidt Quintette will appear at Mercantile Library Hall to-morrow evening in some of their choice selections.

At the Metropolitan Temple this evening the Rev. George W. Pepper will lecture on "O'Connell, and his Times."

CHARLES A. SCHMIDT will speak at Dashaway Hall on Saturday evening, on Free Speech, Duncan's Bank, and Mr. Dennis Kearney.

WHEN "Uncle Josh" is persuaded to have his life insured, he excuses himself on the ground that he can outlive most insurance companies.

A SIBERIAN dog-team made its debut on the stage of the California in dashing style last evening, and in the future will be one of the features in "The Exiles."

THOMAS has never been in this city a more laughable performance than Denman Thompson's "Uncle Josh." On Friday he gives a matinee and invites professionals to attend.

THE liberality of our J. W. Mackay has been seconded by the Emperor of Germany, who grants 75,000 marks from funds at his own disposal, in aid of German Art at the Paris Exposition.

MR. CHALLIS POPE has returned from Virginia City, after a very successful season at Piper's Opera House. If a favorable opportunity offers he will bring out "The Gascon" in this city.

THE case of "The Exiles" was tried in New York before Judge Donohue yesterday, who decided that plaintiffs could not sustain their claim to the title (they laid no claim to the drama) and dissolved the injunction.

THE many friends of Mr. Henry Edwards will be sorry to learn that he has resigned his position in the California Theater Company to accept a more lucrative position in Boston. His present connection with the California will terminate at the end of the present season of "The Exiles." The savans of Boston will gain what we lose, and the bugs and beetles of California will have to look around for another hunter.

MR. HAMERTON describes Meissonier as one of the most truth-seeking of artists. A tailor makes complete costumes of his models, and a painter goes scrupulously into the minutest details, not only about the costumes themselves, but also about the way in which they were worn. In order to study the action of horses at the gallop, M. Meissonier had a short railway made on his own land, on which he was drawn at the same speed whilst he took notes. He models horses for himself in wax, and has the models completely harnessed. He does not, like many figure painters, compose a picture from models in the studio and then add a landscape background out of his own head; but when the subject is an out-of-door one, he is careful to see and study the effect of open daylight on his materials. Mr. Hamerton says that Meissonier's "aim has been to paint a man quite perfectly on a small scale," and adds, that there is, he believes, no instance of a female figure in any exhibited picture by the French master.—Ex.

MONSIEUR GUSTAVE LIBOTTOT, a violinist of great talent, and a true artist, had been playing at a musical soiree. He had been enrapturing his audience, when the host introduced an old gentleman, who, after shaking his hand until he nearly dislocated his wrist, asked as a great favor to be allowed to call on Mr. Libottot and have a good look at his instrument. Next morning the artist was just finishing his breakfast, when in rushed the old enthusiast. After polite greetings on both sides, the visitor asked to see the "cello," and then, to Mr. Libottot's astonishment, drew forth a tape yard measure, and proceeded to take the length, breadth, depth, etc., of the instrument, noting it down in his pocket-book. "May I ask the object of all this measurement?" "Of course, my dear sir. The fact is, I am an amateur, and play the violoncello myself. I am perfectly enchanted with yours. I never heard such tone before in my life; so now I have the measure, I will, with your permission, have one made exactly like it, for my own use."—Ex.

A St. Louis girl stepped in the mud last Fall, and when it froze over, the owner of the land put up some fence and advertised a skating rink.—Bridgeport Standard.

Sam Bard has already made so great a success of the Baton Rouge Herald that he is said to be looking around for a suitable place to start his next paper.—Washington Post.

Almost every idea is already patented; but the man who shall invent a hootjack that will kill two cats at one throw, will find a clear field, and may realize from it his everlasting fortune.—Graphic.

A returned missionary was recently invited to a party, where all the ladies appeared in low cut dresses. Said he to his host, "I don't mind it at all; I've spent ten years among the savages."—New York Herald.

Is there a woman in all this broad, sunny land of ours who doesn't believe that carving knives are created and kept sharp and nice for the sole purpose of splitting kindling and opening fruit cases?—St. Louis Journal.

The most enterprising piano manufacturers in this country have already prepared their circulars announcing that they were awarded the "first grand prize" at the Paris Exposition for the best and sweetest toned instrument.—Norristown Herald.

A Kentucky man, who is pretty fond of his bitters, was seen in Stamford, last week, with a blue ribbon pinned on his coat. A friend inquired, "Have you joined the Marphys, Judge?" "Not exactly," he replied; "I only wear this in the hope that some one will ask me to take a drink under the impression that I'll refuse."—Ex.

The art of advertising is being brought down to a decidedly fine point; and when an agent sends you an inch advertisement to insert at your very lowest rates, and accompanies it with a six inch local notice, which he wants to put in for nothing, you can't help but admire his acreage of "cheek," and wish you had a gun that would shoot a hundred miles and kill the fellow you are thinking of, without taking aim.—Norristown Herald.

A rash young man in Boston asked a small but select dinner party, the other evening, the following conundrum: "Why is Longfellow like Lord Dunsire?" and when they had all given it up, replied: "Because he has got a Brother Sam." An icy silence fell on the company. His father resolved to leave all his fortune to an asylum for horse-car conductors, and his betrothed, casting upon him a glance of indignation that well-nigh fused her speech, said that henceforth, and even in a railroad collision, they must meet as strangers.—Chicago Tribune.

FREQUENTLY the public is edified with newspaper essays upon the "immoralities of the stage" and the "elevation of the dramatic art." The rank and file of the theaters are usually chosen for wordy press castigations, while, as a rule, managers are sympathetically complimented. The German proverb, "there is never a why without a because," will be found applicable to a solution of this problem. It is supposed that in the daily publisher's dictionary the words "theater manager" means dollars and cents, and it has been alleged as an open secret that the director of an independent morning paper and its evening accessory stipulate that before a manager can be pulled or noticed in either of those sheets, he must give the entire job printing patronage of his theater to the job show printing office belonging to the proprietor of these dailies. This, of course, conduces to the "elevation of the drama," and insures unbiased criticisms of the "immoralities of the stage." Another morning paper, which circulates largely among the masses, employs a verbose and somewhat confusing theatrical writer, whose published opinions have repeatedly been estimated as very valuable from a monetary point of view. Another morning paper revels in a fancy young person of foreign instincts. He translates, adapts, criticises, dabbles in management, and proves his ability to impartially review the business of the local theaters, and to aid in elevating the drama. These are not isolated examples of the reliable opinions supplied to order. But the "elevation of the drama" does not exclusively depend upon these gentlemen. Some few managers have discovered that the drama may be elevated by enterprise, and the circumstances attending "A Celebrated Case," "Champagne and Oysters," and "The Exiles" afford forcible illustrations. Shook & Palmer pay an enormous price for "A Celebrated Case" before it is played on any stage. It is their property. They take the chances of its success or failure. They employ the best talent in the country to interpret it, and spend a small fortune in accessories necessary to its success. Having risked so much in their own mind the public interest, another manager in another city straightway seeks to "elevate the drama" by not only announcing the same play, together with its success at Shook & Palmer's theater, but does this in anticipation of its assured production by its owners at another house one week later.

"Champagne and Oysters," a copyrighted American translation of a German farce, is similarly treated by another eager elevator of the drama. In this city the owners of "The Exiles" had arranged to repeat its Boston popularity at Booth's, but the management of the Broadway Theater, eager that New York should not be kept in suspense, contributes its quota to "The elevation of the drama" by announcing the Exiles for production at that house on the 2d. This version is stated to have been arranged by George Fawcett Rowe, and it is also gossiped that Mr. Schwab, the renowned translator of the short-lived "Sidonis," performed a similar service for "The Exiles." There can be no question that his familiarity with the subject will enable to reel off a roundly impartial report of its performances. The "elevation of the drama" is progressing, and if managers will only continue to benefit by the works of their confreres, aud critics combine adaptations with pulls and job printing, the local drama will become very much elevated indeed.—N. Y. Mercury, March 2.

PERFECT FIELD SPECTACLES, at Muller's 133 Montgomery Street

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of J. HERRMANN, 402 Kearney Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of best quality and superior articles for sale.

Visit to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicalians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BLOOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 31 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their new handiwork at the most reasonable rates.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearney St., near Post. Their principal office has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacture of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made, gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 133 Montgomery Street

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new waterworks opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 133 Montgomery St., near Bush.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICCO, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city; and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Turner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. 233 Free Art Gallery Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

A Disgraceful Audience

THE Dramatic News of March 2d has a long article on Boucicault, under the name of Mr. Dionysius Lardner, reviewing the wake scene in the "Shaughraun," from which we clip the following extract:

"The ball was started with the Shaughraun in Philadelphia, where the audiences at Fox's American Dive took objection to the wake scene played by the Boucicault Travelling Combination, and vented their fury in nightly showers of eggs and other articles of domestic consumption, such as cabbages, potatoes, and so on. When the Shaughraun Combination reached New Orleans, the people there having no political excitement for the moment, and, no doubt, hearing of the Philadelphia experience, took the same sort of objection to this revolting scene in the play, and plied the performers, in even a more furious manner than the Brotherly Love people, with eggs which are described as being in an extraordinary condition of decomposition. On one particular evening, while Conn was enacted by Mr. Mackay (who is stated to play the part better than Boucicault), and while the actor was lying on the stretcher supposedly dead, an egg was launched from the gallery with menacing aim and struck Mr. Mackay just below the chin. It was not so much the pain of the blow as the unbearable stench that caused Mr. Mackay to jump up from his reclining posture, advance to the footlights, and threaten to put a head on the man who threw that egg if he would only show himself. The man didn't show himself; and amid a scene of the wildest confusion the play was brought to a speedy close."

ADVERTISERS

Will FIND THE LIST OF BIG PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in 4x7, New York, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines square) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, and in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

McNEE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land, to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. Gentlemen: The artists of the Kallag Opera Company feel it a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. Those who are curious to see an illustration of life in Russia—a life-like representation of society from the palace in St. Petersburg to the cabin in the wilds of Siberia—can pay a visit to "The Exiles" and gratify their desire. The drama is gaining steadily in public favor, and will run till further notice.

Grand Opera House

"Article 47" will be withdrawn after the present week. A matinee will be given to-morrow afternoon, and usual performance in evening. "Sardanapalus" next week.

Baldwin's Theatre.

The present company has no occasion to complain of want of public appreciation; theirs is a celebrated case of success for the present.

Emerson's Opera House

If the audiences to witness the representation of "Uncle Joshua" continue to increase in the same ratio they have done since the opening night, the company will have to move into larger premises. Matinee this afternoon.

Metropolitan Temple

Herold Matinee, with full orchestra, this afternoon. See programme on fourth page.

Theatrical Gossip, Etc.

FOREBATH'S Circus will open about the 15th of April.

DURING the run of "The Exiles" in Boston, the houses averaged $1,500 per night.

MISS LISA TETTERHOEN will appear at the German Theater (California) on Sunday evening next.

At Howard St. M. E. Church this evening, Dr. Kalyneck will lecture for the benefit of the Ladies' Aid Society.

At the Lincoln Grammar School this evening, an entertainment will be given by the Teachers' Mutual Aid Society.

A MUSICAL and literary entertainment will be given this evening at Pacific Hall, by the First Universalist Society. Admission, 50 cents.

A BENEFIT in aid of the German Hospital Fund will be given at the Metropolitan Temple on Friday next. The Schmidt Quintet will be assisted by some of our best amateur vocalists.

"THE BLACK CROOK" is drawing immense houses in Virginia City, at Piper's Opera House. The scenery, painted by Volz for the California is being used, and the Kally Ballet Troupe astonish the Virginians by their mysterious evolutions. Fred Maier takes the part of "Rodolphe" and Miss Young appears as "Sialacta."

THERE will be a matinee performance this afternoon at Emerson's Opera House. Members of the profession have been invited by Mr. Denman Thompson to witness his portrayal of the live Yankee, "Joshua Whitecomb," and it will be a study for outsiders to watch whether actors can be made to laugh off the stage. Thompson's test will be a severe one.

As we announced some time ago, a grand Musical Festival will be given in this city sometime in May at the Mechanics' Pavilion. Mr. S. W. Bugbee who engineered the Camillo Urso monster concerts about eight years ago will supervise the present. The principal directors of music here and in Oakland will form separate orchestras to facilitate rehearsals, which will be united in one grand orchestra during the festival. For the past month a number of advanced amateurs has met every Saturday evening at the Commercial Hotel, and under the direction of one of our ablest professors, has rehearsed classic selections suitable for the anticipated occasion. The Handel and Haydn Society will meet this evening at the Metropolitan Temple for a preliminary rehearsal; those who took part in the Camillo Urso concerts are invited to come forward and join the present. The principal part of the gross receipts will be devoted to the formation of a free library in San Francisco and it is expected that the public will take enough interest and stock in the concern to make it a grand success and attain the object sought to be accomplished.

THERE are but few who in private life come up to the ideal which we form of them from their writings. It is said that Mrs. Siddons was as tragic in manner at the bedside as on the stage, and that one day when purchasing some calico in a store she terrified the clerk by suddenly asking, "Will it wash?" in a sepulchral tone as if she had been persuading Macbeth to kill Duncan. But as a rule we find that men who counterfeited emotion, no matter of what character, generally in their own natures form a contrast to that which they depict so well. When Liston, the comedian, was convulsing all London with his acting, a sad and melancholy looking man, hoarse and dyspeptic, visited Dr. Abernethy and asked him if he could cure him. "Go and see Liston," was the advice, and the answer was, "I am Liston." Cowper wrote his humorous poem of John Gullin when labouring under a fit of depression that almost resulted in insanity; neither Byron nor Moore could be styled religious men, and yet some of their sacred songs breathe as tender and reverent a spirit as do the hymns of Kable or Wesley. And instances might be given ad infinitum to show that a man's outward character, his other self, is not always in harmony with the thoughts that fill him when the inspiration of genius falls upon him. It is a well-known fact that Dickens was not fond of the society of children, and yet where can we find sweeter creations than those of little Nell, Dot or Paul? His child characters seem to live in an atmosphere which does not belong to earth, and there is no heart, however dulled or hardened by contact with the rough projections and angularities of every-day life, but what feels better as it follows their joys and sorrows. There was no more tender soul than that of Thackeray. His heart overflowed with love for everything animate and inanimate, and yet he stripped off the mantle of fraud and deceit which covered society and scourged it cruelly and relentlessly. No more scathing denunciations of wrong, no more pitiless invectives against kingly vices were ever poured out than in his lectures on the Four Georges, and those who knew him not when they heard them must have thought that he was an embodiment of venom and vindictiveness. — Baltimore American.

Boston Society publishes the following regarding the origin of the coming sensation, "Joseph Balsamo":

"It is certainly not less than four years since the idea of producing 'Joseph Balsamo' was first entertained at the Odeon. It was in 1874, during the successful run of 'La Jeunesse de Louis XIV.," that M. Duquesnel, the manager of the theater, struck with the remarkable element, from a theatrical point of view, contained in this celebrated romance, took the initiative in the matter. 'What superb dramas! what charming comedies could still be drawn from the romances of Dumas pere!' said he one day, to Alexandre Dumas. 'They are a veritable dramatic gold mine, waiting to be opened and explored.' 'That has long been my own opinion,' replied Dumas, 'but it is first necessary to find the skillful miner; find him and I give you carte blanche. Which romance would you select?' 'Give me Balsamo.' 'Take Balsamo; you could not have made a better choice.' Two months after these preliminaries,

M. Duquesnel, fell, one fine morning, like a bomb-shell into the mine de Villiers, exclaiming—
"Eureka!"
"What have you found?"
"The dramatic author who is to write the drama of 'Joseph Balsamo.'"
"Who is it, pray?"
"How! have you not divined already? Egad! it is none other than yourself, my dear friend."
"I?"
"You and no one else! I defy you to find a better."

"Come, now, you are just as bad as my father! It was his fixed idea to force me into collaboration with him, but I always refused. I have never been able to listen with anything like patience to the word collaboration. I long ago formed an unalterable resolution, never to enter into anything resembling it. I cannot write 'Balsamo' for you. I am exceedingly sorry, but"
"But, my dear friend you will not turn a deaf ear to my supplications?"
"I repeat, you are asking what is impossible; and remembering how handsomely you mounted 'La Jeunesse de Louis XIV.," it costs me great pain to refuse you. Stay! I consent to do one thing. I will read 'Balsamo' again, and if I find a play in it, I will divide it into acts and tableaux, and draw up a synopsis of the incidents, situations and scenic effects, from which you can have the piece written by any dramatist who understands his trade."

From that day forward M. Duquesnel resumed his excellent custom of sleeping, —as it has been said of him before— not on both ears, but with both ears open.

"He will come to it!" said he to himself, rubbing his hand in self-gratulation.

From time to time the manager of the Odeon manifested his interest in his darling project, either by letter or visit, and during one of the latter he again introduced the subject of "Balsamo."

"I have been thinking of you," said Dumas; "look there!"

So saying, he pointed to his writing table, where the volume of "Balsamo" was lying with its leaves separated.
"Bravo!" cried M. Duquesnel, rubbing his hands with greater satisfaction than ever.

The following summer Dumas left Paris and installed himself in his chateau at Puy, near Dieppe.

One morning in September, the inevitable Duquesnel made his appearance there, with the old smile upon his lips.

"First of all," declared the visitor, "I have come to see you; and then—to look for 'Balsamo.'"

"I have had no time to think of 'Balsamo'; I am finishing 'L'Etrangere,' the piece I intend for the Comedie-Francaise. I must read it in two months, so there is not a minute to be lost."

"The devil! you disappoint me. I counted on you so confidently for my winter attraction."

"Wait! wait a little! what if I should arrange the Russian piece you spoke of some time ago? How would that suit you?"

"You mean 'Schava a Schava?'"

"Precisely! Well, you shall have it in two months or six weeks; that will make you take patience."

A month after, at the end of October, 1875, M. Duquesnel received by the Western line of railway (Normandie), a parcel labelled "business papers." It was "Les Dancheff."

Two hundred consecutive representations of this drama enabled him, in truth, to be extremely patient. Most managers, at the present moment, would consent to be patient for less.

One day, Alexander Dumas came himself, in search of the manager of the Odeon, and said, in a positive and determined manner, "Decidedly I must renounce all idea of 'Balsamo.' It would have to be, in some sort, but a prologue to two other dramas, 'The Queen's Necklace,' and 'The Countess de Charny.' These would be necessary to complete the chain of action, to terminate the series of adventures begun in 'Balsamo.'"

"Bah!" answered M. Duquesnel, "that does not frighten me; three pieces are worth more than one."

There was nothing more to be said after that.

This patience, this tenacity, deserved to be recompensed in the end.

About five or six months after this, M. Duquesnel wrote to the author of "Canaille," to remind him that he counted upon "Balsamo," for the Exposition.

"You shall have it," answered Dumas. And this time he kept his promise, and this inaccessible drama was in the hands of M. Duquesnel.

If we are to believe the indiscrete revelations already made, this is not the melodramatic "Balsamo" of an author of ordinary power, but a great work, grand in its simplicity, beautiful, and of a serious value. The great writer has abandoned himself to his temperament; and in such passing as the episode of "Gilbert and Audrie," melodrama reaches that point of departure when it is almost transformed into the purest and most admirable comedy.

"Your child has been changed at nurse," some one remarked to M. Duquesnel.

"Not at all," replied he; "I have the infant I have been expecting. I knew all along what it would be when it came."

And now you see how, after four years of patient waiting, "Balsamo" came to be read yesterday, December 31st, 1877, to the artists of the Odeon.

Alexander Dumas does not read his plays like Sardou, who acts the part, or rather all the parts of the piece; nor like M. Legouve, who brings out his effects with an exquisite art, and an admirable delicacy of intonation. Dumas reads simply, clearly, and with extreme rapidity, in order, as he says, that his hearers may not have time to suffer; but he reads like a logician, who knows how to make himself understood.

"You are going to vast expense in preparing the mise en scene," said one of the artists to M. Duquesnel.

"Parbleu!" replied the latter, "I am too good a gamester, when I hold a strong hand to play for anything but high stakes!"

PERFECT PEBBLE SPIN TACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Central Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Clear Stand).

An extended assortment of SPINNING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the store of C. HERMANN, 42 Kearny Street and 900 Market Street. Large reduction in price of last season, and superior quality for sale.

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sun, sea and city, can here rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDENS, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoon to drink their national beverage and listen to the beautiful selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DISTERS may be found at 414 Sutter Street. Their store LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their new handiwork at the most reasonable rates.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & Co., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny Street, entrance on Post. Their principal center has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacture of Paris; and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from new and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouse opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERBICO, at 230 Kearny Street, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equaled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, auctioneer to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post Street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in English, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

recruiting for the Blue Ribbon Brigade

woman residing in Dover, Del., being tired of the constant potatoes of husband, determined to try a desperate remedy to cure him. One night he staggered into the house and said was a very sick man, and in a moment he was comfortably settled on the sofa in a drunken sleep. His face was a sh purple, his breathing heavy, and together he was a pitiable object. The doctor was sent for post-haste, and music applied to his feet and hands. When doctor came and felt his pulse, and named him, and found that he was only drunk, he said: "He will be all right in morning." But the wife insisted that was very sick, and that severe remedies be used. "You must shave his head," she urged, "or I will apply blisters," she urged, "or I will for some one who will." The husband's head was accordingly shaved close and blisters applied. The patient lay night in a drunken sleep, and notwithstanding the blisters it was not till morning that he began to beat about, dispirited by pain. About daylight he awoke most uncomfortable consciousness of tormented agonies. "What does this mean?" said, putting his hands to his bandaged head. "Lie still—you mustn't stir," said wife, "you have been taken very sick," a not sick." "O, yes, you are; you brain fever. We have worked with all night." "I should think you," groaned the victim; "what's the matter with my feet?" "They are blistered." "Well, I'm better now—take off blisters, do!" he pleaded, piteously. was in a most uncomfortable state—head covered with sores, and his feet hands were still worse. "Dear," he groaning, "if I should ever get sick his way again, don't be alarmed and for a doctor, above all, don't blister again." "O, indeed, I will—all that you were the blisters, and if you should have another such spell, I should be more frightened than ever, for tendency, I am sure, is to apoplexy, from the next attack you would be to die, unless there were the severest measures used." He made no further notice; suffice to say, he has never had her attack since.—E.C.

THE CELEBRATED

Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

with Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The artesian streams we have already described, and it remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 12 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in the San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Esmer's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. FURFUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County, or to the

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.

Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

California Theater

A special matinee will be given here on Monday, St. Patrick's Day, "The Exiles" will be rendered with its magnificent scenery—the winter scene in Siberia being considered by many as the masterpiece of Voegtlin—no better rendering of the drama could be desired than as it is now presented by the present company.

Grand Opera House

"Article 47," with Miss Ada Gray as Cora, this evening for the last time. On Monday matinee, "Sardanapalus" will be brought out in all the splendor of dramatic mechanical art. Students of history will find the Assyrian costumes and decorations a faithful reproduction of those belonging to the period of the tragedy, as nearly as modern information on the subject will permit. Mr. F. C. Bangs will assume the character of "Sardanapalus." Miss Ada Gray will appear as "Myrrah," Miss Katherine Corcoran as "Zarina," and the ballet will be led by Mlle. Bonfanti. Over 300 auxiliaries have been engaged to assist in battle scenes, marches, etc., and the production we anticipate will be another success for the management.

Baldwin's Theater

"A Celebrated Case still continues its celebrated success.

Emerson's Opera House

The invitation matinee to witness the portrayal of Joshua Whitecomb by Mr. Denman Thompson, at Emerson's Opera House yesterday afternoon, met with a response from his theatrical brethren which must have been very gratifying to the gentleman who assumed the title role, as well as to each member of the company. Professional stars formed a constellation in a different part of the firmament than where we usually direct our glasses to view them, and it was to us a most interesting study to watch, within the range of our vision, the effect of the different pictures in the comedy upon the actors present in the audience. Miss Ellie Wilton's sympathetic eyes appeared to grow dim over the miseries of "Tot's" mother, and her companion, Miss Alice Harrison, seemed to take much interest in the sayings and doings of "Roundy" and be pleased with his healthy appearance. Charley Goodwin was more attentive to his company than to the comedy. The huttons on Miss Annie Pixley's gloves must have been well tested during the applause given "Joshua" after he had flogged "John's" friend "Dolby"; and at each rally of "Uncle Josh," Mr. Tom Keene's mouth would assume the same shape it wore when he played the "Devil" in the Garden of Eden. If the chief purpose of a comedy be to make the audience laugh, then there can be no doubt about the complete accomplishment of that purpose, and the entire success of "Joshua Whitecomb" as rendered by the present company.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

The Cooks and Waiters Anti-coolie association will give an entertainment at Platt's Hall on Thursday evening, March 21st.

PROF. GUNNING's lecture on "The Segment of Earth's History recorded in California," was a very interesting resume of what is known about the physical geography of the Pacific Coast.

THE Herold Matinee yesterday afternoon was a successful commencement of the second season of classic concerts, to be given at the Metropolitan Temple every Friday afternoon, till April 19th.

On account of the great preparations for the production of "Sardanapalus," there will be no matinee at the Grand Opera House to-day. A special matinee performance of "Sardanapalus" will be given on Monday, March 18th, at 2 P. M.

On Sunday, March 24th, a grand gala performance will be given at the California Theater for the benefit of Miss Alice Harrison, Tom Keene and Mestayer, "standing room only," will be announced ten minutes after the doors are thrown open.

A CELEBRATED case of absent-mindedness occurred to one of the exiles in our midst, at the dining table of one of our hotels yesterday P. M. A professional gentleman, not unknown to fame, usually very self-possessed, but then apparently under the magnetic influence of a pair of lustrous eyes and during a charming flirtation, his mental faculties not properly directing the movement of his physical members, allowed one hand to hold a sugar basin while the other poured the cream into it. No doubt it was his intention to place the sugar and milk into his coffee cup, instead of mixing them in the manner pointed out by the attentive waiter.

FOREPAUGH's Great Circus, will open the present season in California at Haywards on the 28th current, thence travel Southward as far as Los Angeles, returning to San Francisco to open here on the 15th of April. The complete outfit of the show comprises an immense amount of animals, horses, property and paraphernalia, the two tableaux cars are considered the finest ever manufactured for exhibition purposes, and together cost nearly $20,000. The performers number about thirty, including Frank Melville, David Hawley, William Dillen, Sam Cox, Mrs. Burdett and Miss Palmiera as premiers. The business requires nearly 200 horses, and a train of twelve cars is necessary to transport the company while traveling. The young people of San Francisco had better commence to save up.

THE following eloquent tribute to the memory of the late James Hamilton was delivered by Henry Edwards, on Thursday afternoon, March 14th, at the rooms of the Art Association, previous to the funeral of the deceased:

"Far from his home, far from those who were nearest and dearest to him on earth, James Hamilton has passed away! The sudden manner of his taking off has brought with it a shock to those who knew and loved him, and it is hard even now to believe that he, whom, only a week ago to-day, I saw and conversed with, apparently in his usual health, should have journeyed into that mysterious land whose portals are opened only by the finger of Death! The men who by the power of their genius, dignity and elevate their race, and who become in the best sense his teachers, belong specially to no country, but by the magic power of their minds take all humanity into their embrace, and join all nations in one universal brotherhood! Such men therefore are benefactors unknown to themselves—they scatter blessings unwittingly along their pathway, and are entitled to the gratitude of the ages! The death of a great artist is a loss to the world, and the man whose remains lie cold and still before us, was no common man. His genius has made its impress upon the art-history of his adopted country, and when we, who now assemble to pay a last tribute of respect to his memory, shall have passed from earth, the name of Jas. Hamilton will live unshaken in the radiance of an almost imperishable fame, and his works be treasured among the greatest triumphs of the painter's skill. His Capture of the Serapis, and Burning of the Bon Homme Richard, are historical records of which America may be justly proud, and upon these alone the fame of our departed friend may well be permitted to repose. Little is known, even by his most intimate friends, of Hamilton's early life, but though Great Britain claims the honor of his birth, it was in America that his talent as an artist was fostered and found that appreciation which is so dear to persistent and struggling labor. For over thirty years of his life he resided in Philadelphia, and, as you know, nearly three years since he wandered to these

Western shores, on which his career came to this so sudden and unlooked for end. It will be fresh in the remembrance of you that when his Chase of the Smuggler was first exhibited in San Francisco, the lovers of art discovered that a great power had come among us, and that by his advent the community had been enriched by the accession of a master mind. In this city some of his finest works have found their proper position, and San Francisco may well be proud of the homage it has rendered to a genius so striking and so powerful as his. Had he been spared it is probable, from the indications of his later work, that even grander results than we have yet known, would have been given to the world, but they are not needed to insure his fame. Nor was his ability confined to his profession. He possessed a vast fund of varied information, and in his brighter moments a companion whose brilliancy of conversation won all hearts to him, and can never be forgotten by those who were admitted to an intimacy with him. He numbered among his friends most of the celebrated men and women of his time; and the late Charles Dickens, Dr. Kane, the Arctic explorer, and Charlotte Cushman always regarded him with the warmest feelings of affection. But he is gone. The skillful hand is cold in death, and the eyes which delighted in the changing aspects of Nature will behold them for us no more.

It would be well if we could take leave of him as an artist alone, without a thought of the imperfections of the man. But who of us shall judge him? Beneath the surface of his nature there welled up a spring of tenderness and love for all with whom he came in contact; and his kind and generous friend, Grace Greenwood, who, while she knew and prized his genius, knew also the weakness which was his besetting sin, spoke of him to me, as a child who needed a stronger will than his own to guide him aright, and place him above the temptation he found so hard to withstand. The one stumbling block of his life has destroyed many a son of genius, but it may be, that in the existence to which he has gone, he will see more clearly the imperfections of his career, and be enabled to help some poor, suffering brother, contending with the enemy which vanquished him.

So let him rest. If we can "point a moral" from the failings of his life, it is well for us to do so, but let us draw the kindly veil of charity over his foibles, and remember only the better nature which was so large a portion of the man before us. While we twine the garlands of memory above his grave, let the sweetness of the flowers bear with them the knowledge only of their beauty and freshness, and teach us to think but of those qualities in the character of our friend, which, like them, were lessons of loveliness and goodness, foreshadowing of a purity above the grossness of earth, the links which unite us to the Divine!

The hymn, "Rest, Spirit, Rest," was then sung, and the Rev. Dr. Stebbins followed with an impressive address and prayer. The casket was then removed and conveyed to Laurel Hill Cemetery, where it was deposited in the vault of Mrs. Ritchie Stewart. The pall-bearers were S. W. Shaw, S. M. Brooks, E. N. Jot, P. Mezzara, Henry Edwards, Barton Hill, J. M. McDonald and G. J. Denny.

PLUNDER

Bismarck blows his horn for peace. Toot on, great Tenton.

The Czar is said to be sick, nervous, emaciated, and wasting away rapidly. It is intimated that he has not long to live. After Victor Emmanuel, the Pope. After the Pope, the Czar. So they go, one Roman-off after another.

GRAY-EYES.—George Eliot's eyes are gray. That is the eye of persistence, and she will continue to write until she taxes the skill and patience of the oculist. Lavater declares the eyes of genius, when closely inspected, to be yellow. Physiognomy is at fault in two instances at least; those of Lord Byron and George Eliot.

The Father of his Country was an astute husband, and singularly just. "Martha," he said, three days after his marriage, "we might as well understand each other. I am prepared to admit that the late Mr. Custis was the best man that ever lived. He was a good provider and most excellent in every conceivable way. But he is dead. I am frank to say that I cannot weep over it. It is simply so. Let us not resurrect him. Let the dear old fellow rest in peace. He was too good for this world. We will not call him back. Let me hear no more regarding the late Mr. Custis, my dear." And those simple words, firmly spoken, secured Mr. Washington much peace and almost as much matrimonial happiness as though he had married the lady known as the Highland Beauty.

"What makes that noise?" asked a little boy on the train the other day. "The cars," answered his mother. "What for?" "Because they are moving." "What are they moving for?" "The engine makes them." "What engine?" "The engine in front." "What's it in front for?" "To pull the train." "What train?" "This one." "This car?" repeated the youngster, pointing to the one in which they sat. "Yes." "What does it pull it for?" "The engineer makes it." "What engineer?" "The man on the engine." "What engine?" "The one in front." "What is that in front for?" "I told you that before." "Told who what?" "Told you." "What for?" "Oh, he still, you are a nuisance." "What's a nuisance?" "A boy who asks too many questions." "Whose boy?" "My boy." "What questions?" The conductor came through just then and collected the tickets, and the train pulled up to the station before we could get all of the conversation. The last we heard, as the lady jerked the youngster off the platform was: "What conductor?"

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Collateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERRMANN, 407 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunbath and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 310 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufacture of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest sensations in business cards, to be had of L. DeRoussay & Co., 35 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warerooms opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Dantcheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERHICO, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post Street, where a full list of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

A Warranted Censure

There may be a great deal of fun in shouting silly nonsense and insulting an old man endeavoring to earn a livelihood on the stage, but we can't see it. However great the ridicule may be of seeing Mr. George Jones, known as the Count Johannes, attempt to play parts for which he is totally unfitted, yet it is unmanly, it is small, it is contemptible for audiences of men to go and hear him for the special purpose of drowning his feeble attempts in noise more consonant with a mad house than a theater. In fact the thing is played out, and we are glad that in this city the old actor has ceased to be a butt for the silly outpourings of a lot of much greater fools than himself.

Few of those who went to the Lyceum on Monday evening to indulge in this assign exercise were aware probably, that this same Jones was the original Claude Melnotte in America, and that many years ago, when the piece was young and the actor was young, and one of the best on the stage, he won great applause in the role from critical Boston audiences. Now a staggering man of sixty, he is of course beyond the possibility of playing the part well, but this does not excuse the pitiable scene that was enacted in the audience, and when this old tottering man came forward to the footlights, and called his audience blackguards and asses, and asked them to insult him if they pleased, but not a lady, he morally rose far above any of the numskulls he addressed. He said, "If anything displeases you in our performance it is your privilege to hiss it, but this play shall not go on if American men will deliberately insult the American lady who stands at my side." The rebuke was deserved and sooner than further witness the unmanliness of the "blackguards" the actor addressed, we left the theater. If this is fun, as the rising generation of Americans understand it, then more's the pity. But on the whole we are glad there is to be no more of it.—N. Y. Dramatic News, March 2.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the
Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rich's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Out-lets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in a well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required to illustrate advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines space) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7 only 10 cents per paper.

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.
Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.,
Gentlemen: The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is a pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

ACT 1. THE ROYAL PALACE FROM THE BANKS OF THE TIGRIS (By C. W. Witham) The King's Magnificence. The Royal Court. The love of the Greek Slave, Myrrha. The Conspiracy. Departure of Sardanapalus for the Hall of Nimrod in the

ROYAL GALLERY

ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE (By M. Strauss). The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle Bonfanti
ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham). Grouped on the Alhambra steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and peal follows peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equalled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvellous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King a Hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril.
ACT 4. THE DREAM OF HADES. The renewed attack. The rebels victorious. Parting of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the immolation. The Funeral Pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the Characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

The audience during the past week to witness "The Exiles" have kept pace with the improvement in the rendering of the drama. No better representation than the present could be desired. The company are now at home in their parts, and play them for all they are worth. Voegtlin's scenery is a source of never-failing delight. Special matinee this afternoon.

Grand Opera House

Byron's tragedy is the story of the last hours of the Assyrian empire. 'Sardanapalus,' the descendant of 'Semiramis' and of the mighty hunter 'Nimrod,' living in luxury, "steep'd, but not drown'd in deep voluptuousness" is conspired against by 'Arbaces,' satrap of Media, and 'Beleses,' a priest of Belus. The Queen 'Zarina's' brother, 'Salemene,' discovering their conspiracy, interviews the King and endeavors to awaken him from his indolence by pointing out his peril. All his argument to this effect is of no avail; the utmost he can get is the use of the King's signet ring, the possession of which secures the execution of his orders, even to the extent of death. With this he arrests the two conspirators, whose plan of action has been frustrated by a change of programme in a projected fete, 'Beleses' delivers up his sword at the command of 'Salemene,' but 'Arbaces' refuses and defends himself against the attack of the guards, whom he beats back; 'Salemene' draws, and while engaged with 'Arbaces' the King enters, ends the fight and restores the sword of 'Beleses' and pardons 'Arbaces.' 'Salemene' returns the King his signet ring and forms a resolution to try and save him in spite of himself. The Satraps are ordered to depart from Nineveh to their respective provinces of Babylon and Media. Instead of obeying this command they incite revolt amongst their troops and lead them in an attack against the palace of the King. Word of this is brought to 'Sardanapalus' while in the midst of a revel. He arms in haste and soon appears in the thick of the battle, performing prodigies of valor. The strife rages for a time with uncertain victory, until at last the rebels are beaten back from the palace and driven outside the city. The King has been wounded in the melee, and 'Myrrha,' (a Greek slave beloved by 'Sardanapalus,' the principal female character in the drama, and interwoven through it like a thread of gold), binds the fillet of the King's diadem with which he had bandaged his wound, and tends it with a woman's care, and watches over him in slumber. During the night the rebels are joined by other rebellious satraps and prepare to renew the attack upon the city, 'Salemene's' counsels the King to await within the walls; but the brave and impulsive monarch heeds not the advice and sallies out with his soldiers; the rebels are victorious, 'Salemene's' is slain. The King retreats to his palace where he is surrounded by the rebels who summon him to surrender. He sends the herald back with a golden present and tells him to ask an hour's truce to consider. During that time he orders his soldiers and slaves to bring faggots and "things as catch fire and blaze, with one sole spark" with frankincense and myrrh, and pile them around the throne. After his orders have been obeyed he commands his soldiers to depart, and when borne by the boats from the palace to blow one long blast on the trumpet. 'Sardanapalus' and 'Myrrha' are left alone; they nite in a parting libation, a long embrace, and at sound of the trumpet the King leaps on the funeral pyre. Myrrha applies the torch and the curtain falls as she throws herself in the flames.

The story of Sardanapalus may be considered a historical fiction of Ctesias, repeated by Diodorus Siculus in his Bibliotheca or History of the world. Byron locates Nineveh on the Euphrates, while ruins supposed to be those of that city have been found on the Tigris. A list of Assyrian Kings has been found recorded upon articles excavated from the ruins, and deciphered by Rawlinson, but neither the names of Semiramis nor Sardanapalus are found in the list of Assyrian monarchs.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., March 8, '78.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Last Saturday, Joe Murphy in "Mum O'Cre," in Schroder's Opera House, to a fine audience. Murphy has always drawn well here, and given complete satisfaction until the last time, when he played very poorly; in fact, I have never seen him to such great disadvantage. He ranted considerably and kept the house waiting unmercifully long. Joe is a very pleasant gentleman and we regret to see him thus detract from his well-earned reputation. Duprey & Benedict's Minstrels in Durley Hall on the 4th, to a fair house. The entertainment was a good one and gave satisfaction. Janauschek and company in "Catherine of Russia," in Durley Hall last evening. We have heard Janauschek when we thought her acting to be truly fine and showed her to be a genius, but last evening the opinion of the crowded house was just the reverse. There is nothing in the play, no real plot, and scarcely anything which constitutes a real tragedy. The support was good, much above the average. Their route is: Lafayette, Ind., 8th; Terre Haute, 9th; Ft. Wayne, 11th; Logansport, 12th; Indianapolis one week. Charlotte Thompson, with the Wallack Combination, in "Jane Eyre," this evening, and "Miss Minton" Saturday evening, in Durley Hall. They will draw immense houses, as Miss Thompson is very popular here. Route: Springfield, Ill., 11th and 12th; Lincoln, 13th; Decatur, 14th; Terre Haute, 15th. Barlow, Wilson, Primrose & West's Minstrels in Durley, Monday evening, 11th. Mary Anderson has changed her dates twice; now booked at Durley Hall, March 17th. The Iyer Sisters also have changed their dates, are booked for the 22d and 23d. John McCullough towards the last of the month. Lawrence Barrett has changed his date to "fair week," held in September. Florences in "Mighty Dollar" next month. "Danites" middle of the month; and Modjeska's date is at the last of the month.

Yours, NEMO, JR.

Virginia City Theatricals

VIRGINIA CITY, March 12, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT.—Dear Sir—Once more I drop you a few lines in regard to theatricals. Mr. Charles Pope closed a week's engagement last Sunday evening, having played "Richien," "Hamlet," "Ingomar," "Macbeth," "Richard III.," "Othello," and a repeat of "Richien" for the matinee, and "Hamlet" Sunday evening. The business during the week was fair, but would undoubtedly have been much better had the weather been less tempestuous and disagreeable.

The event of the week was the appearance of Judge R. H. Taylor, a prominent member of the bar of this city, in the character of 'Iago,' for the benefit of Mr. Pope, on last Saturday evening. The house was crowded; a great number of the audience no doubt being drawn to the theater by curiosity to see the Judge. The affair was anything but a success; for whatever may have been Mr. Taylor's object in attempting to play such a part as 'Iago,' and no doubt his intentions were good and friendly, still there can be no excuse made for Mr. Taylor or any one else appearing so imperfect in their lines as he was; for after his first speech until the end of the performance the prompter's voice could be heard all over the house giving him the lines. Had Mr. Taylor known his lines, he would no doubt have given a very good personation of 'Iago,' as was shown when he had the reading of the few passages that he was up in. Mr. Pope's performance of 'Othello' was very good indeed, and he was ably supported by the stock company. Miss Mary L. Young's rendition of 'Desdemona' was a very good piece of acting, parts of that kind being just suited to her, for though a painstaking little lady in everything she does, she lacks force.

Too much praise cannot be given the company for the amount of work done since they have been here (seven weeks); they have had to play a new bill every night, studying parts from night to night; and for the number of ladies and gentlemen constituting the company the amount of work done since the opening of the theater (seven weeks) has certainly been wonderful.

Last night, March 10, the Kivala party, supported by Piper's Company, opened in the "Black Crook," to a crowded house. They play here for one week, then go East, playing on their way in Salt Lake and other cities en route.

Piper's dramatic season closes next Sunday evening, March 17, for the purpose of reorganizing. In the meantime the house will be closed next week, and opened on the 24th by the Renz Minstrels for one week; then to be followed by Oliver Bond Byron for one week, supported by the newly organized company.

Immo has it that the new company is to be strengthened by Mr. Charles Pope as leading man, and in a short time, by Miss Katherine Rogers as leading lady. If such is the case Mr. Piper need have no fear of being able to play stock pieces during such time as he has no stars.

Hoping that everything is flourishing in Frisco,
I remain, yours,
BONANZA

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Colateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERRMANN, 403 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 310 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B. LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 103 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal cutter has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris, and with the experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest illustrations in business cards, to be had of L. DeLamerey & Co., 35 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warerooms opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic competition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERENCO, at 230 Kearn Street, stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city; and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post Street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

A Shilling a Night
From the New York Mercury

"I've only a shilling a night,
And she perhaps a thousand a year,
And yet I look, and forget, and dream,
And think of her as my dear."

"I look from the glittering stage,
Across the darkened pit,
To the circle, flashing with gems,
Where sometimes I see her sit."

"Does she know me from the rest?
Not she; to her casual sight
I'm only a part of the play—
A machine at a shilling a night."

"Yet I love her, though never a word
Has passed between us twain;
Though I know that the season over,
We never shall meet again."

"She rises to go, and the light
Fades all into darkening gloom,
And I go to my pauper meal,
And my cheerless attic room."

"And I dream of her, and the stars
Whisper around my bed,
Telling of joy in the life to come,
As they shine o'er my sleeping head."

"There's another world, they sing,
And perhaps in the glory there
I may meet with her in the shining throng—
My love with the golden hair."

"Tis a world of joy, a world of love,
'The world which sets this right,'
A world where even a thousand a-year
May mate with a shilling a night."

Buffalo Letter

BUFFALO, March 2, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—At the Academy of Music, for the past week, a spectacular play called "The Twelve Temptations," by Joseph C. Foster, has been the attraction, performed by Lucien Barnes' Combination, which consists of part of the Holman Opera Troupe and the dramatic company of the Royal Opera House, Toronto, Canada. Mlle. Augusta Sholke, a leader of the ballet was announced to appear; but neither she, nor an explanation of her absence was discernable. The houses were no slimmer than they should be, and the performance was not at all good. More sensational stuff next week—Frank Frayne in "Si Slocum," with his dogs and rifles. Eliza Wethersby the week after, with her own company, in their original serio-comic drama of "Hobbies," for three nights. Shelly's Adelphi is still the centre of attraction in the variety line—always a good show, to full houses. This week, among others, there are Marie Whittington and Newman, Charles and Carrie Austin, the Bohemian Brothers, King Sarabo, Tom Rogers, etc., all first-class specialists. We are to have another concert by Gilmore's famous band, on March 7th, in St. James Hall; a lecture from Henry Ward Beecher on the 6th; the Kellogg Opera Troupe Company a few days after; followed by Camilla Urso on the 15th.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Carmelita Rancho
CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre tracts, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

and sixth cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Carmelita Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superabundant and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes. Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Ketchikan Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBICK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

GRAND Orchestral Matinee

OF THE SECOND SERIES

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, March 22d, 1878

At 3 o'clock, P. M.

PROGRAMME...Part First

- 1 March, Friedrich Gungl
- 2 Les Preludes, Poem Symphonique Liszt
"What is our life but a series of preludes to that unknown song of which death intones the first solemn note? Love forms the lovely morn of every existence, but where is the destiny whose first voluptuous thrills of happiness, are never interrupted by some storm, the fatal blast of which dissipates its bright illusions, whose deadly lightning destroys its altar? What could be there thus cruelly wounded which after one of these tempests does not seek to lull its memories in the soft, sweet calm of country life? But man scarcely realises himself to taste of the beneficent that rest, the desire for which has lured him to the bosom of nature, when the trumpet sounds the signal of alarm, he rushes to his post of peril whatever may be the war which summons him to the ranks, only to find in the combat the full consciousness of self and the entire possession of his strength."
- 3 Violin Concerto, No. 9 in D minor L. Spohr
1st Movement, Allegro
First time in San Francisco. Mr. HERVEY HEYMAN, Graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Leipzig

Part Second

- 1 Overture, Fingal's Cave Mendelssohn
- 2 a Entr'acte from Manfred Beethoven
b Love Song Taubert
Strings only
- 3 Selections, Les Ingenues Meyerbeer

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.
Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unfaded admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We heartily commend them in the highest terms.

ACT 1. THE ROYAL PALACE FROM THE BANKS OF THE TIGRIS. (By C. W. Witham.) The King's Magnificence. The Regal Court. The love of the Greek Slave, Myrra. The Conspiracy. Departure of Sardanapalus for the Hall of Nimrod in the

ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE. (By M. Strauss.) The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle. BONFANTI

ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham.) Grouped on the Alabaster steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and peal follows peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equalled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvelous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King a Hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril.

ACT 4. THE DREAM OF HADES. The renewed attack. The rebels victorious. Parting of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the Immolation. The Funeral Pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the Characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"The Exiles" continues to attract full houses. The conflagration scene is considered the most realistic representation that has ever been given within the walls of a theater. "The Gascon" is in rehearsal and will be produced after withdrawal of "The Exiles."

Grand Opera House

For a first performance, "Sardanapallus" was a complete success. The promise of the management to the public has been met fully. We anticipate a run of at least a month to full houses. We defer notice.

Baldwin's Theater

"A Celebrated Case" every evening and Saturday matinee. "Agnes" on Monday.

Emerson's Opera House

Mr. Denman Thompson as the New Hampshire farmer, on a visit to his friends in Boston, every evening to full houses.

Bush Street Theater

Oliver Doud Byron in his own drama,
"Across the Continent."

Herold Matinee

At Metropolitan Temple, on Friday afternoon, Henry Heyman will perform a concerto for violin, by Spohr, and the rest of the programme is excellent, as usual.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

EMPEROR NORTON honored "Sardanapallus" with a royal interview last evening.

Notice that you have "Free Library" on the ticket you purchase for the May Festival.

The Female Musicians at the Tivoli Gardens continue to attract large audiences every evening.

The Count Johannes has a successor in the person of Master N. S. Wood, who has been playing "Hamlet" at Booth's, lately.

"The Exiles" at the Broadway, and
"A Celebrated Case" at the Union Square Theater, New York, are running to full houses.

An entertainment will be given by Mrs.
Goldswail, at Kessing's Hall, corner Howard and 21st Streets, on Friday evening, March 22d.

If our Eastern exchanges tell the truth, there will be very few star actors left in the United States after the Paris Expon-sition is opened.

SAMUEL PIERCEY is a rising artist, according to New York gossip. He is playing at Niblo's in a new melodrama, "The Serpent and Dove."

The benefit to Miss Alice Harrison, Keene and Meslayer, will be given at the Grand Opera House on Sunday next. An immense bill for the occasion is in preparation.

On account of the departure of Mr. Tom Keene and other members of the California Theater Company, "The Exiles" will be withdrawn after this week. "The Gascon" will be produced on Monday.

We acknowledge receipt from the publishers, Messrs. T. B. Peterson & Bros., Philadelphia, of a copy of Dumas' romance, "Joseph Balsamo," from which his son has dramatized the coming sensation of that name.

An amateur semi-monthly named "The Hornet" is one of the curiosities of San Francisco journalism. The illustrations are the handiwork of an enterprising young blacksmith, cut with a jack-knife during his leisure moments.

Boston Society, March 9th, tells us that "seldom has such unbounded enthusiasm manifested itself in a Boston audience, as that bestowed upon Mr. John McCullough on the occasion of his farewell appearance at the Boston Theater last Saturday evening. The vast auditorium was filled from pit to dome with an assemblage who showed their appreciation in persistent applause. After being called before the curtain for the fourth time, Mr. McCullough responded in a fitting and appropriate speech, wherein he thanked the public for their liberal support."

Cape Coast Luxuriance—An Eden of Roses

A great, indeed an inexhaustible, charm of the country is the wonderful profusion and variety of flowers which grow everywhere; precious things only to be seen here in stately glass houses and per favor of scientific head-gardeners, growing in wild abundance, hiding the ugliness of buildings, delighting the eyes and cheering the heart of the colonist. As the drawbacks to a residence in "fair Natal" are numerous and undeniable, it is right to dwell a little upon the exceeding beauty of floral nature there. If flowers could only be eaten, what a prosperous place Natal would be, or if the soil would only grow cereals as it grows flowers! To walk on the grassy downs is to walk among beautiful lilies in scarlet and white clusters, endless varieties of periwinkles, purple and white cinerarias, and golden hush-es of the Cape broom, which we all know here as so great a beautifier of landscape.
Tall stum lilies fill every water-washed hollow in the sprouts (or brooks), and and fern of all kinds abound. If the Kaf-firs would work with even moderate application, the formation of a luxuriant garden of fruit, flowers and vegetables would be easily within the reach of any dweller on the soil. The grass is always cleared away for a considerable distance round the house, because snakes are unpleasantly numerous, and grass affords cover for them; in the instances of fine gardens, a broad walk of a deep rich red color intervening between the house and the gardens, contrasts beautifully with the flower-beds, which are as big as small fields. The red soil is very destructive to clothing, but it adds to the beauty of the landscape.
"Green things," says the author, describing a Natal garden, "which we are astonished to see in England in small pots, shoot up here to the height of laurel bushes. In shady places grow many varieties of fern and blue hydrangea, and verbena of every shade flourish. But the great feature of this garden is roses, of at least a hundred different sorts, which grow untrained, unpruned, in enormous bushes covered by magnificent blossoms; each bloom of which would win the prize at a rose show.
Red roses, white roses, tea roses, bluish roses, moss roses, and the dear old-fashioned cabbage rose, sweetest and most sturdy of all; there they are at every turn —hedges of them, screens of them, and giant bushes of them on either hand." Add to this a bright, swift brook trickling through the garden, the constant sweet song of the Cape canary, and crowds of large butterflies of "all glorious hues," which are quite fearless and familiar, perching on the bowers and on the walks,
and one gets a delightful notion of a Natal garden.—Chambers' Journal.

PLUNDER

GIVING UP THE GHOST.—A player performing the "Ghost" in "Hamlet" very badly, was hissed; after bearing it a good while, he put the audience in good humor by stepping forward and saying, "Ladies and gentlemen, I am extremely sorry that my humble endeavours to please are unsuccessful; but if you are not satisfied, I must give up the Ghost."

"In God We Trust" will be the legend upon the ninety-cent dollar. What persons are represented by the pronoun We is uncertain. If the silver people, there would seem to be no ground for any other kind of trust than that which expects the penalties for violation of the eighth commandment. If the public creditors are possessors of the trust, it is well, for it is clear that they have good reason for giving no further trust to anybody on earth.

TALMAGE THE JESTER.—This crack jester of the pulpit delivered lately, in his amphitheater in Brooklyn, a lecture on "Big Blunders." He recounted a number of "blunders" which people commit, but failed to allude to his own entrance into clerical life as the saddest and biggest of all. The Rev. Talmage seems to have little reverence for Holy Writ. He fac-tiously alluded to the "fourteenth verse of the sixteenth chapter of Nicodemus," which said: "Gird and bear it!" We shall next hear of this saint in foolscap and bells talking of the eleventh commandment, or the third epistle of Peter.

THE UNKNOWNABLE.—It is about time to stop preaching and lecturing on hell. Not a man who talks about the matter knows anything more about it than a baby.
Learned divines and lecturers can employ their time better in telling people how to live and make themselves comfortable in this beautiful world of ours. This bothersome blatherskitten about hell does human nature much harm. Men and women have something else to think about than the gabble of persons who search in vain to know something of the Unknownable.

IN DANGER OF HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW.—
The Duke of Edinburgh, who married the daughter of Omar Alexander, commands the iron-clad "Sultan," belonging to Vice-Admiral Hornby's fleet. Public attention was some time ago directed to the fact that the duke and his wife did not hitch horses at the same harmonious matrimonial point, and the lady in a jiffy went back to papa and mamma, while the husband was sent a-sailing in the Mediterranean. If the Russian and British fleets should meet, and the former should capture the "Sultan," which does not rank as first-class, the Duke of Edinburgh would have, and may yet have on his hands, a bad case of mother-in-law. The irate empress would, no doubt, delight in having her son-in-law in St. Petersburg within excellent spanking distance.

An addition has been made to the manufacturing industries of our city by the house of B LEVY & CO., who have commenced the manufacture of GLOVES at 102 Kearny St., entrance on Post. Their principal outlet has gained his knowledge of the business in the manufactures of Paris, and with his experience thus acquired, he guarantees to give entire satisfaction to his patrons. Garments made to order fit and become the wearer better than those purchased ready made; gloves are no exception to this rule, and as the cost is no more than the imported article, and manufactured from newer and better material, intending buyers would do well to get acquainted at the establishment.

The leading establishment on the Pacific Coast for ALL STYLES OF ENGRAVING, will be found at 120 POST ST. The proprietors, Messrs.
Geo. M. Wood & Co., are prepared to execute orders for dies, monograms, visiting cards, etc., at the most reasonable rates. A large assortment of fine stationery always on hand.

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW CINNABAR
from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (also Collateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

The "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here
every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERRMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE.

NEW YORK, March 7, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—The season of opera, under the management of Mr. Max Strakosch, opens at Booth's Theater on the 18th of March, with Kellogg, Cary and Roze.

Theo. Thomas Band is giving symphony soirees at Steinway Hall, to good business. There is a rare treat in store for San Franciscans, as Theo. Thomas' Band goes to California in June.

Tony Pastor and his immense troupe drew audiences last week that were only limited by the capacity of the building.
Mr. Rice (formerly with Bryant's Minstrels), a colored prima donna, is way up in his business. The strength of the company includes the Fontainebleaus, the best in the business, Jennie Hughes, Ella Mayo, the Sharpleys, and others. Tony Pastor himself sings a clever song of his own composition "Turn Off the Gas at the Metre." The troupe will leave for their Western trip in July.

Harrigan & Hart, at their cozy little theater, The Theater Comique, doing an immense business with a strong company.
Their new sketch, "Sullivan's Christmas," proves to be a good card. The famous Harrigan & Hart Combination leaves New York for San Francisco in June, under the care of the well-known
Mr. M. W. Hawley. What a treat!

The play, "Our Boarding House," to fair business, with Nat Lingham as leading man, at the Standard (formerly Eagle) Theater.

"Our Bachelors," Robinson and Crane, continue to play to good papered business at the Park.

George Rignold to fair business in Harry V., at the Grand Opera House.

The Union Square runs "A Celebrated Case" to the largest business in the city.
The cast is probably the best which could be brought together, including Messrs.
Chas. F. Coghlan, J. H. Stoddard, Fred.
Goldwaite, Misses Agnes French, Eya French, Margaret Cane (Kate Paxton's sister), Sarah Jewett, Linda Dietz, and Mr. Nelson Decker, our old California friend.

Heller and his talented sister are performing to crowded houses at the old Fifth Avenue Theater.

The Germania and Stadt Theater (German) are doing a fair business. O. S.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135
Montgomery Street.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Daniebeck Manufactory at 11 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert
of classic composition, will find at The Fountain
a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8
and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERHICHO, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skillful artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he would not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Pillgrimage Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices
to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. See Free Art Gallery. Works of

The Opera Box

Well, we're here in good time, after all, ma;
How glad I am to take a box!
See there's Mrs. Jones, in blue velvet—
So handsome. I dote on blue fox.

Don't you think the 'troupe' must feel flattered?
The house is just crammed, such a crowd!
There's the Count in the balcony—look Kate!
Just across from us—quick dear!—he 'bowed.'

Throw your cape back, ma, over your shoulder,
Carelessly, so the lining will show.
There's Fanny Duval with her husband—
They're newspaper people you know.

He 'does the dramatic' or something,
She told me; they go everywhere,
That's one of her last winter's dresses—
Made over—quite well I declare.

How these singers do dress! My! what laces!
Those diamonds are perfectly grand!
Please lend me your opera-glasses—
I left mine at home on the stand.

Ma, I wish you would shut your libretto;
It's shoddy to stick to it so—
Looks like you weren't used to the opera;
Can't you read it at home when we go?

There, Charley Van Zandt and his cousin,
Young Ruyter, are coming our way.
Kate, shake out your train, it's all doubled,
Ma, where did you put my bouquet?
That's the "Miserere" they are playing;
It makes me feel awfully sad,
They played it at poor Ned May's funeral,
You know—What's it, ma—Mrs. Ladd?

Oh, yes, I forgot her reception;
She'll expect us. What time is it, Kate?
Half-past ten? very well, there's no hurry;
It's stylish, you know, to be late.

—Harper's Bazar.

MILT. G. BARLOW, the well-known negro comedian, now of Barlow, Wilson, Primrose & West's Minstrels, was first a printer and then a journalist. For a number of years he was the amanuensis and private secretary of the late George D. Prentice, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, and afterwards became city editor of that paper. He was induced to try his fortune as a comedian by the late Artemus Ward, who, coming into the editorial room late one night as poor Barlow was going over the copy of an incompetent reporter, trying to make a good item out of very poor material, said to him: "Milt, I have spoken for little more than an hour and have made three hundred dollars by my night's work, while you have been on duty from noon till after midnight, and for a whole week of such work make only thirty-five dollars. Now you have fully as much ability to please the public as I have. You can't be beaten as a teller of stories. Your Dutch, Irish and negro dialect is very natural and funny. Why, then, do you wear your life out in this horrid old office? The stage is your proper sphere, and the sooner you adopt it as your profession the better." Milt. took the great humorist's words seriously to heart. He considered that matter, and the result was that Milt. G. Barlow became one of the best old men darkies on the minstrel stage.—Phila. WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the
Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed, superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RITCHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHITBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

OF THE SECOND SERIES

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, March 22d, 1878

At 3 o'clock, P. M.

PROGRAMME—Part First

- 1 March, Friedrich.....Grieg
- 2 Les Preludes, Poem Symphonique.....Liszt
- 3 "What is our life but a series of preludes to that unknown song of which death intones the first solemn note. Love forms the lovely morn of every existence, but where is the destiny whose first voluptuous thrills of happiness are never interrupted by some storm, the fatal blast of which dissipates its bright illusion, whose deathly lightning destroys its altar? What soul is there thus cruelly wounded which attests of these temptations does not seek to bathe its memories in the soft, sweet calm of country life? But man scarcely resigns himself to taste of the benefit of that rest, the desire for which has lured him to the bosom of nature, when the trumpet sounds the signal of alarm, he rushes to his post of peril what ever may be the war which summons him to the ranks, only to find in the combat the full consciousness of self and the entire possession of his strength."
- 3 Violin Concerto, No. 9 in D minor.....L. Spohr
1st Movement, Allegro
First time in San Francisco. Mr. HENRY HEYMAN, Graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Leipzig

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs Sherman, Hyde & Co. Gentlemen: The artists of the Kallergary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

ACT I. THE ROYAL PALACE FROM THE BANKS OF THE TIGRIS. (By C. W. Witham.) The King's Magnificence. The Royal Court. The love of the Greek Slave, Myrrha. The Conspiracy. Departure of Sardanapalus for the Hall of Nimrod in the

ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE. (By M. Strauss.) The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle BONFANTI

ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham.) Gorged on the banquet steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and peal follows peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equaled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvelous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King a hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril.

ACT 4. THE DREAM OF HADES. The renewed attack. The rebels victorious. Parting of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the immolation. The Funeral Pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the Characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

An Artificial Voice

Any man who is dissatisfied with his voice can now become an orchestra, with woods, brasses, strings and a big drum, if he likes. In September of last year Dr. Foulis, of Glasgow, found the necessity of proposing the complete removal of the larynx of one of his patients. The man consented, chiefly with the view of escaping the lingering death which threatened him. It was accordingly done; and now at the end of four months a fair share of health has been regained, the windpipe and other parts implicated have healed so as to admit of the introduction of voice tubes, and the man has been shown at the University and before some of the scientific societies of Glasgow, where the professors and others were enabled to satisfy themselves of the reality of his speaking powers. For the sake of easy adjustment it consists of two tubes, which are placed in the wound separately, and fitted to each other by slipping the lower a little way into the upper one. A framework holding a vibrating reed is passed into a hole in the front of this tube, like a drawer into its grooves. When pushed home the reed plate slopes downwards, and the current of air from the lungs, impinging upon its free end, throws it into vibration. A continuous musical note is thus produced, which becomes modulated into vowels, consonants and words by the action of the mouth. All the reeds remain silent in ordinary breathing. The vowels are perfectly clear and distinct, both in whispering with the reed out, and in intoning with the reed in the tube, proving that the vowels are the product of changes in the shape of the mouth-cavity, and not formed by alterations of the glottis. The question of the reeds to be used was one of much interest. The first tried in Glasgow was of brass. Experiments have shown, says The Fall Mail Gazette, that many other materials, such as ivory, horn, cane, silver, or steel, will answer the purpose, and the patient, who is an ingenious mechanic, amuses himself in fitting them up. He has thus a variety of voices at command, and with one of his reeds, made of vulcanite, can positively roar. The softest and most natural notes are given by the non-metallic reeds; but the richest tone comes from a reed composed of an alloy of silver and brass.—N. Y. Clipper.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the state—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed, superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FARMER HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to F. E. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co., Gentlemen:—The artists of the Keffegary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is a pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

ACT 1. THE ROYAL PALACE FROM THE BANKS OF THE TIGRIS (By C. W. Witham.) The King's Magnificence. The Legal Court. The love of the Greek Slave, Myrrha. The Conspiracy. Departure of Sardanapalus for the Hall of Nimrod in the

ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE. (By M. Strauss.) The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle Bonfanti
ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham.) Grouped on the Alabaster steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and peal follows peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equalled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvelous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King a Hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril.
ACT 4. THE DREAM OF HADES. The renewed attack. The rebels victorious. Barring of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the immolation. The Funeral Pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Considering the great attractions elsewhere and the season of Lent, "The Exiles" continues to draw good audiences. The drama as rendered now, is almost a reconstruction of the play as given on the opening night. Miss Ellie Wilton is no longer herself but "Nadesda," and Keene has become "Schelm," the Russian chief. We are sorry that the debutante, Miss Teresa Selden, has so little opportunity in her part to display her ability; enough, however, is there to give an index to latent power. "The Gascon" is in rehearsal and will follow "The Exiles."

Grand Opera House

The present spectacular representation develops to better advantage the capacity of the stage, than anything else that has ever been produced at the Grand Opera House. No scene of Voegtlin's in "Henry V.," although treated in a style unsurpassed, gave the same idea of largeness that is given in the interior view of the Hall of Nimrod; considering how much of it is done on flat surface the perspective effect produced is really wonderful.

There has never been produced here a more gorgeous dramatic spectacle, and we predict for it a long, successful run.

Baldwin's Theater

Last week of "A Celebrated Case." A special performance of this play will be given Sunday night.

Bush Street Theater

The present week will close the engagement of O. D. Byron. On Monday evening Nick Roberts' Humpty-Dumpty, with Grimaldi as clown, will be placed on the boards.

Emerson's Opera House

"Good wine needs no bush," and the public has discovered the quality of Thompson's Down-Easter, and visits him in crowds nightly.

Metropolitan Temple

Herold Matinee to-morrow afternoon. An unusually attractive programme offered. See fourth page.

The Fountain

The programme for to-night embraces some of the most popular selections from our celebrated composers. There can be no better way of receiving musical education combined with entertainment than frequent visits to this concert hall. The field gone over comprises the choicest gems of modern instrumental music, and as they are rendered by a first rate orchestra, some idea of the conception of the composer may be formed. Admission free. Concert every evening at 8 o'clock.

Tivoli Garden

For a quiet hour of pleasure in the evening, listening to selections of the most popular pieces of song, dance, and operatic music, this semi-suburban place of amusement will be found worth visiting. Free concert every evening by the celebrated Vienna Ladies' Orchestra.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

CHARLES F. COGLAN is reported to play "Jean Renaud" to perfection.

We trust that Miss Rose Eyttinge will add "Myrrha" to her repertoire.

THE Shaughraun Combination, which closed in Louisville, March 2d, cost Bon-cieault $6,000.

MISS CARRIE WYATT is playing with Kate Claxton "The Two Orphans" on a starring tour in the East.

HENRY GEORGE will lecture at the Metropolitan Temple on Tuesday evening next, and tell why work is scarce, labor restless, and wages low.

CHILDREN are not allowed to appear in any capacity upon the English stage. A manager was fined in London lately for the infringement of this law.

MRS. DIOM BODICAULT (Agnes Robertson) will make a starring tour through the United States next Fall. Two new plays have been written by Tom Taylor expressly for her.

MISS NEILSON is playing at the Haymarket, in London, her roles of Shakespearean characters. She will be followed by Sothorn. Harry Jackson is at the Princess Theater.

ON account of the continued success of "The Exiles," it will continue on the boards at the California for at least one week more. Harry Edwards will assume the role of "Schelm" on Monday.

A GRAND concert in aid of the German Hospital Fund will be given at the Metropolitan Temple to-morrow evening. The Schmidt Quintet, assisted by Mrs. Henry Norton, Messrs. Nello, Wolf and Renling, will perform some select numbers.

HARRISON & HART will leave New York for San Francisco in June. There will be no need of their importing "A Celebrated Hard Case;" they can find as many as they want of them here around Leidesdorff Street, or the Police Court, every morning.

A YOUNG lady of this city, Miss Ada E. Bartling, who assumed the character of "Gertrude" in "A Loan of a Lover," at the late entertainment of the "As You Like It" Literary and Dramatic Club, is reported as having developed unusual talent in the conception of and portrayal of that character.

THE present is the last week of "The Exiles." Mr. Tom Keene and other members of the present company leave on Monday to join the Krality Ballet Troupe in Chicago. The benefit given to Miss Alice Harrison, Keene and Mestayer, on Sunday evening, will be a farewell one for the present at least.

THE Dramatic News says "that New York is getting crowded with colored tramps of all descriptions, who, under the impression that half a hundred "Uncle Tom" parties are going to start out, crowd the sidewalk in front of the Union Place Hotel every morning, until it looks like an impoverished slave market.

THE Krality Ballet Troupe closed a very successful engagement at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, on Sunday evening. A farewell benefit was tendered Misses Young and Katy Mayhew on Monday evening. Among other selections the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet" was given, with Miss Young as "Juliet," and Fred. Maeder as "Romeo."

"THE EXILES" is not meeting with the same success in New York that it received in Boston. Rowe's translation and material changes in the drama are considered to be very weak, and not equal to the version of Pillet, which was refused by several managers. In the latter, "Schelm" is left to perish in the flames, and the finale brings about the complete vindication of "Lanine."

WE have been favored by our friend, Mr. McCabe, Theatrical Agent of this city, with the following item regarding the movements of Menara. John Jack, Charles Derby, Misses Annie Firman, Lizzie Ingles, and company. On the voyage to Honolulu they gave two performances on board the steamer; one for the benefit of the Merchants' Orphan Fund for Seamen. They opened at the Royal Hawaiian Theater on February 28th, and gave great satisfaction. On Tuesday, March 12th, they were to play for the benefit of the Fund for Relief of Disabled Firemen. Miss Lizzie Ingles writes that she is dead in love with Honolulu, that she is having a jolly time going out riding and sea bathing every day. She expects to leave on the 19th and arrive in San Francisco about the 30th current. Levy has been giving concerts in Honolulu with indifferent success.

PLUNDER

"We find that he came to his death by calling Bill Jackson a liar," was the verdict of a corner jury out West. "Nough said!"

A YOUNG lady says, "she don't think much of the telephone, for it's no fun for a young fellow to whisper in a girl's ear when his mouth is a dozen miles away."

"AND Doc. Tuilith to the fore also," eagerly whispered another observer. "He won't waste any time prospecting for a location if Bob is right in his sulphuric estimates."

"I MEANT to have told you of that hole," said a gentleman to his friend, who, walking in his garden, stumbled into a pit of water. "No matter," said the friend, "I have found it."

DURING her recent engagement in New Orleans, Aimee appeared in two operas every evening—from half past seven until ten, and from half past ten until one. What can this woman be made of?

FANNY ELLSLER is still living, and is eighty-four years of age. Fanny was the first theatrical celebrity who came from France to salute the United States, and made her first appearance in Boston, at the Tremont Theater, on the 7th of September, 1840. Fanny Ellsler carried America by her exquisite grace, even as Jenny Lind conquered all hearts by her beautiful voice.

A "DIGGER" from California, eulogizing the climate, says: "There's a mountain there—the Sawyer Nevada, they call it—with a valley on each side of it, the one hot and the other cold. Well, git on the top of that mountain with a double-barreled gun, and you can, without moving, kill either summer or winter game, just as you will."

"What! have you ever tried it?" "Tried it? Often—and should have done pretty well, but for one thing."

"Well, what was that?" "I wanted a dog that would stand both climates. The last dog I had froze off his tail while pntin' on the summer side. He didn't get entirely out of the winter side, you see."

A Definition

A NOSE is described as an instrument which pierces by force of pressure—metaphorically, a man who, using his tongue as a bradawl, drains the spirit out of his hearers. There are small noses and big noses, the smooth and the grooved nose; but they all worry alike. The smooth nose is the idler who wishes to make others keep him company. There is nothing personally disagreeable about him. He is chatty and imaginative, but he has hidden his talent in a napkin, and his idleness is contagious. He accounts an hour as nothing, and cuts large slices out of one's afternoon. He not only hinders the busy man from working, but leaves him in a state of laugher unfit for business. He proposes little dinner parties, tickets for the theater—outings too attractive to be withstood; he leads one on to talk on one's pet subjects, for he can be a patient listener at times, and he knows one's weaknesses; so that the value of the time wasted in his company can only be estimated when he is gone. This it is that makes him so insidiously dangerous. When his knock is heard one's first impulse is to protest; but the craven desire for conversation instead of work steals over one at the sight of the smooth bore's smile, and so another day has to be added to the tale of mis-spent moments. But the days of small talk are passing, and those of tall talk are come; so we have the grooved bore, or bore with one hobby. When a harp has one string, that one, at any rate, changes its pitch with every variation of the weather; but when a man has one topic, no turn of current events, no efforts to vary the conversation will alter his topic in the least. He is like the drenching-spout in a manger, which stuffs food into the unwilling mouth of the cow tied to the rack. The unconscious selfishness which is the characteristic of all bores, in him reaches such a point that his victims are tempted to doubt its unconsciousness. —Ez.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Colateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Clidkerling & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114½ Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERNICO, at 230 KEARNY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILLIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post Street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

Rich ladies about to be married think Worth the man most worthy of patronage.

The full name of Modjeska is Modzejowska—they 'jeska-ll her Modjeska for short.

A PARAGRAPH is running through the English newspapers that an American in Indianola has been thrice divorced and that in each case the judge decreed that he must keep the mother-in-law in the house and support her, and now he has three mothers-in-law.

THE Bostonians seem to have lost their heads over the Countess Bozenta. We are more used to nobility here. Every other Italian that's seen on a potato wagon coming in from the Mission is pretty sure to be a genuine Count. It might be a good move for our Emperor to pay Boston a royal visit.

A GERMAN paper says that the largest amount ever received by a singer from a single performance was that received on one occasion by Gloslop in Paris. She had a contract with an opera company for three years at 25,000 francs per annum, but during that period she only sang once, receiving therefor 75,000 francs for a single evening. Mlle. Soutag once took in £2,000 as her share on benefit night, and Malibran had, in Paris, a salary of 75,000 francs, and benefit night and a leave of absence, during which she received as much as her salary amounted to. Shortly before her death she signed a contract for 600,000 francs, which is more than Patti ever received.—Ex.

Cucamonga Rancho
CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES
is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,
WITH WATER FREE
one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.
LOCATION
Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.
Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast end south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.
At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.
There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.
Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.
RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.
For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

GRAND Orchestral Matinee
OF THE SECOND SERIES
FRIDAY AFTERNOON, March 22d, 1878
At 3 O'CLOCK, P. M.
PROGRAMME—Part First

- 1 March, Friedrich.....Grieg
- 2 Les Preludes, Poem Symphonique.....Liszt
"What is our life but a series of preludes to that unknown song of which death intones the first solemn note. Love forms the lovely morn of every existence, but where is the destiny whose first voluptuous thrills of happiness are never interrupted by some storm, the fatal blast of which dissipates its bright illusions, whose deathly lightning destroys its altar? What soul is there thus cruelly wounded which after one of these tempests does not seek to bathe its memories in the soft, sweet calm of country life? But man scarcely resigns himself to taste of the benefit of that rest, the desire for which has lured him to the bosom of nature, when the trumpet sounds the signal of alarm, he rushes to his post of peril whatever may be the war which summons him to the ranks, only to find in the combat the full consciousness of self and the entire possession of his strength."

WEBER
PIANOS ARE THE BEST
San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.
Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.
Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

ACT I. THE ROYAL PALACE FROM THE BANKS OF THE TIGRIS (By C. W. Witham.) The King's Magnificence. The legal Court. The love of the Greek Slave, Myrrha. The Conspiracy. Departure of Sardanapalus for the Hall of Nimrod in the

ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE. (By M. Strauss.) The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle BONFANTI
ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham.) Grouped on the Alabaster steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and peal follows peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equalled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvelous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King a Hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril.
ACT 4. THE DREAM OF HADES. The renewed attack. The rebels victorious. Parting of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the immolation. The funeral pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the Characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

The last performances of "The Exiles" will be given to-morrow afternoon and evening. It deserved much better recognition from the public than it has received. The departure of Keene on Monday, would necessitate a remodeling of the cast, and the management have concluded to bring out "The Gascon" instead of continuing "The Exiles." Mr. Charles Pope will appear on Monday evening.

Grand Opera House

"Sardanapalus" with its gorgeous costumes and magnificent scenery continues to attract crowded audiences. The farewell benefit tendered to Miss Alice Harrison, Messrs. Keene and Mestayer, will be given at this house on Sunday evening.

Baldwin's Theater

A matinee of "A Celebrated Case" will be given to-morrow afternoon, and the performance on Sunday evening will be the last. It has had a very successful run. Sardon's comedy of "Agnes" will be given on Monday.

Emerson's Opera House

Crowded houses every night to be amused with the sayings and doings of "Uncle Joshua."

Bush Street Theater

Last nights of "Across the Continent." Benefit of Oliver Dond Byron this evening. On Monday, Nick Roberts' "Humpty-Dumpty," introducing the clown "Grimaldi," and Miss Louise Boshell as "Columbine."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

ALICE OATES and company are playing at the Park Theater, Brooklyn.

The Rentz Female Minstrels will appear at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City, next week.

CHARLES FECHTER, supported by Miss Lizzie Price, is playing at DeBar's Opera House, in St. Louis.

Beecher is lecturing on "Wastes and Burdens of Society." He ought to know something about waists.

"NICK TIMES FOR MARRIED PEOPLE" is in rehearsal at the Grand Opera House for the Sunday evening benefit of Keene, Mestayer and Miss Alice Harrison. A feature in the entertainment will be the songs, dances, and banjo solos of Miss Louise Sylvester.

THERE will be two performances at the Metropolitan Temple to-day. In the afternoon the Herald Orchestra will give the second concert of the present season. The selections are worthy of the occasion, and include as principal pieces: "Les Preludes," by Liszt; Mendelssohn's Overture to Fingal's Cave, and a Violin Solo, with orchestral accompaniment by Professor Heyman. The evening performance is given in aid of the German Hospital Fund.

KIRALEY's grand spectacle, "A Trip to the Moon," will be brought out on Monday, April 1st, at Haverley's Theater, Chicago, with the following cast: 'Prince Caprice,' Miss Alice Harrison; 'Prince Fantasy,' Miss Grace Plaisted; 'Microscope,' Mr. T. W. Keene; 'King Kosmos,' Mr. W. A. Mestayer; 'King Pin,' Mr. Lewis Harrison. Voegtlin's scenery will be reproduced, and the ballet will include Emma Palladino, Josephine de Rosa, and Arnold Kiraly.

THE Hanlon Brothers on March 1 completed one year of their engagement at the Walhalla Theater, Berlin, Prussia, and during that time one of their pantomimes had a run of one hundred and forty-two nights, the pantomime they were then playing in had reached its one hundred and fifty-fifth representation on February 13, and one of their comic acts has been on the bills every night since they opened. They will perform in Paris during the Summer, and intend to return to America in September with a new entertainment which they have been preparing for the past four years.—N. F. Clipper.

THERE is a very pretty quarrel going on in Berlin, and some of the most distinguished patrons and professors of music are anything but harmonious or in concord with each other. The great violinist, Joachim, head of the Royal Academy of Music at Berlin, is bitterly hostile to the Wagner Societies, and, we are told, conceives that "carrying round the hat" on behalf of the Bayreuth Festival is derogatory to the art. But the Wagnerites are not cast down. They continue to give entertainments and to hold meetings, where Herr Joachim is abused in good set terms, and the Academy of Music fares no better. The journals of Berlin array themselves on opposite sides; some fiercely defend the opera of the future, their rivals severely ignoring Wagner and all his works. The quarrel is causing infinite scandal, and can do no possible good, for the more reasonable lovers of music are quite as ready to appreciate what is good in Wagnerism as they are to discard his more advanced theories.—Ex.

THE BEST YET.—T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, Pa., are now publishing a new edition of Charles Dickens' novels, which for beauty and cheapness far surpasses any ever issued. It is called "Peterson's American Edition," printed on fine white paper, from large clear type, loaded with some of the original illustrations as selected by Mr. Dickens and designed by Phiz, Chiswick, Browne, MacIse, and other artists, and bound very gorgeously in red velvet, gold and black, with the cover filled with the author's principal characters, which he has made so world famous. There in one corner is the immortal Pickwick, in another the well-known Micawber, the learned Capt. Cuttle, poor little Oliver Twist, the misguided Grandfather, the mean, hypocritical Pecksniff, the mercenary Squeers, Boots, The Beadle, etc., and all of this for the small sum of $1.25. This edition will be found for sale at all book stores, news stands, and on all railroad trains, or any person sending the publishers $12.00 will receive the first twelve volumes as fast as published, by mail, postage paid, and at this low price everyone that is fond of a handsome book ought to subscribe. Address all orders to T. B. Peterson & Brothers, No. 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

THE late James Hamilton, Artist, was born near Belfast, Ireland, Oct. 1st, 1819. He came to America with his parents in 1832, and settled in Philadelphia. The Phila. Evening Bulletin mentions that when Charles Dickens visited America he was introduced to Mr. Hamilton by Grace Greenwood, and, in return for the sketch in colors, named "What are the Wild Waves Saying," which the artist presented to Dickens, Mr. Hamilton received a favorite edition of the works of the great novelist, with a flattering autograph note. At the sale of Dickens' effects the sketch was sold for $300. Hamilton's illustrations of Dr. Kane's "Arctic Explorations," published in 1856, attracted general admiration at home and abroad, and were highly praised by competent critics. Among the best known and most admired of his pictures are: "Solitude," "An Egyptian Sunset," "The Haunts of the Sea Owl," "Wrecked Hopes," "The Finding of Perdita," "Moonlight Scene Near Venice," "On Such a Night as This," "Portia's House at Belmont," and several subjects from the Tempest; "The Scepter of Egypt Shall Depart," "The Equinoctial on Brigantine Shoals," "Boston Harbor," "The Capture of the Serapis by Paul Jones," "Old Ironsides," and other marine battle pictures. Mr. Hamilton was a painter of real genius, with a highly poetical temperament, which suggested to him continually subjects from literature and history that were adapted to his gifts. He was as great a master of color as Turner, of whom he was a follower, though not an imitator. In conversation he was brilliant and original, and if he had not devoted himself to art, he would have been equally distinguished in some other pursuit.

PLUNDER

THE Short is the name of a newspaper soon to be issued in Brenham, Texas.

A MINISTER by the name of Chalk has lately been sent into Africa as a missionary. He ought to be able to make his mark on those dark people.

A MAN was sitting for his photograph. The operator said, "Now, sir, look kindly pleasant. Smile a little." The man smiled, and then the operator exclaimed, "O! that will never do; it is too wide for the instrument!"

A YOUNG husband says that when his wife wants trinkets she brooches the matter in his hearing, as she is dependent on him for the cash. Although he takes care to lock it up, her persuasion is so great that he generally, with a fond embrace, lets her have it. He is a jewel of a husband.

GEORGE FRANCES TRAIN is called "an ungrateful son of Boston." He said not long ago: "It was my misfortune to be born in Boston. I apologize to Boston for it. A meaner place I never knew. It was founded by a miserable lot of Pilgrims kicked out of England into Holland, and then paid to keep away from Manhattan Island."

AN old "rounder" says, regarding kissing: "Now, there's what they call kissing under the mistletoe. Who wants to kiss a girl if he knows she has got to let him in, and knows he's got to do it, and everybody's looking on to see fair play? No sir! that takes all the life out of it. The way to do it is to catch her off-hand and take the gathers out of her dress and pull her ribbons to pieces and knock her back hair down, and hear her say: 'O! all to herself, and then go away to a quiet place and think it over.'"

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERMANN, 602 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

Female Police Aspirant

Dr. Mary E. Walker has applied for the post of special policeman on the Washington force, on the ground that she is the only woman in the United States who is qualified to hold such a position, as she is the only one who ever held a commission in the United States Army. The Commissioners were somewhat startled by this application, and not one of them had the wit to see that the small boys were behind it. Such is the fact. Whenever she has appeared in the streets with Mrs. Tillotson, a sister dress-reformer, the urchins have followed her and mocked her, saying: "There goes Dr. Mary and her dad;" "Doctor, give me a chew of tobacco;" "Pull down your vest," etc. One day last week, as she tells a reporter of the Washington Post, she became desperate, and when one little black brat threw a piece of dirt at her she just went for him, and, catching him by the nape of his neck and the seat of his pantaloons, "shook him good." Now her object in wishing to be appointed special policeman is to protect herself and sister Tillotson from the insults of these unruly boys. She purposes, when she gets a commission and a badge, to have a crook put upon the handle of her cane, so as to catch the little scamps when they insult her.

THE eccentric American, Miss Thompson, who had her horse shod with gold in Edinburgh, is in Spain astonishing the natives. She put up first at a little town just over the French border, paying extravagant sums for services, and amusing herself by throwing gold into the streets for the children to scramble for. The police persuaded her to go to Saragossa, where she would be safer, but she came back again, and it's a wonder that brigands haven't robbed and murdered her before this. A thief did steal her gold watch and $1,000 a short time ago, but she refused to appear against him.—Ex.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Collateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

Visitors to the city and pleasure-seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral music of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouses opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Hatched Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. BRILLIOT, at 230 KERN STREET, upstairs, convinced us that as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Jewellery, he could not be equalled by any in this city; and the samples of his work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every patron.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Brunner & Oppenheim, has removed to 212 Post Street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Re-toucher, 212 Post.

Princess Souvaroff

THE minions of gossip in New York have had a rare feast during the past fortnight. The victim is the Russian princess Souvaroff, over whom society has gaped, wondered, and raved for some time past. It seems that the New York Sun published an article copied from the London Truth, which reflected rather severely on the royal princess' financial status, and averring that in a suit against her in France, to recover $12,000 borrowed money, she had succeeded in avoiding payment of the same, by making over all her property to a friend who enjoyed her confidence. At the recent Liederkrantz ball in New York, she is said to have worn enough diamonds to pay the above debt four times over. She is spoken of as a most sumptuous-appearing personage. On the occasion above mentioned, she wore a white satin dress almost encrusted with diamonds, and bore an immense train. Also, diamond bracelets, a tiara, rings, and ear-rings, as well as a stomachier, which made up a dazzling parure. It is reported that she has gone back to Russia for the purpose of bringing before the Czar the insult which she claims has been inflicted upon her by the press, and proposes to make the issue an international one. The New York Times says: "That when she threatens to go back to Russia and cause the Imperial Government to undertake, first diplomatic, and then warlike measures against the United States, she shows that the possession by marriage of a name known throughout the world, does not always carry with it a corresponding amount of discretion." Mr. Dana rather has the princess there.—Boston Society, March 9th.

Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES
is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,
WITH WATER FREE
one-sixth cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION
Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed, superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RIOR'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

SECOND

GRAND Orchestral Matinee

OF THE SECOND SERIES

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, March 22d, 1878

At 3 O'CLOCK, P. M.

PROGRAMME...Part First

- 1 March, Friedrich.....Gungl
- 2 Les Preludes, Poem Symphonique.....Liszt
- What is our life but a series of preludes to that unknown song of which death intones the first solemn note. Love forms the lovely morn of every existence, but where is the destiny whose first voluptuous thrills of happiness, are never interrupted by some storm, the fatal blast of which dissipates its bright illusions, whose deathly lightning destroys its altar? What soul is there thus cruelly wounded which after one of these tempests does not seek to bathe its memories in the soft, sweet calm of country life? But man scarcely resigns himself to taste of the benefit of that rest, the desire for which has lured him to the bosom of nature, when the trumpet sounds the signal of alarm, he rushes to his post of peril whatever may be the war which summons him to the ranks, only to find in the combat the full consciousness of self and the entire possession of his strength.
- 3 Violin Concerto, No. 9 in D minor.....L. Spohr
1st Movement, Allegro
First time in San Francisco. Mr. HENRY HAYMAN, Graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Leipzig

Part Second

- 1 Overture, Fingal's Cave.....Mendelssohn
- 2 a Entr'acte from Manfred.....Reinecke
b Love Song.....Tanbert
Strings only
- 3 Selections, Les Huguenots.....Meyerbeer

Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE. (By M. Strauss.) The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle. BONFANTI

ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham.) Grouped on the Alabaster steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and peal follows peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equalled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvelous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King's Hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril.

ACT 4. THE DREAM OF HADES. The renewed attack. The rebels victorious. Parting of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the Immolation. The Funeral Pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the Characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

This evening will be the last of "The Exiles." Mr. Charles Pope in "The Gascon" on Monday.

At the German Theater, to-morrow evening, Miss Lena Tattenborn will appear. Mr. August Lauber is the recipient of a benefit.

Grand Opera House

"Sardanapalus" to full houses every evening. To-morrow evening, the farewell benefit, with farewell addresses of Miss Alice Harrison, Mr. T. W. Keene, and Mr. W. A. Mestayer. No doubt their many friends will unite in rendering the benefit a substantial recognition of their deserving merit.

Baldwin's Theater

Manager Maguire publishes a card stating that on account of parties in San Jose and Oakland wishing to have an opportunity of seeing the "Celebrated Case," to enable them to do so, he has postponed the production of "Agnes" to the evening of Tuesday, and "A Celebrated Case" will therefore be given on Monday for the last time.

Emerson's Opera House

A matinee performance of "Joshua Whitcomb" will be given to-day especially for ladies. Evening as usual, and next week the comedy will be continued.

Bush Street Theater

Performance to-morrow evening will terminate the engagement of O. D. Byron. Grimaldi, the clown, will appear in "Humpty-Dumpty" on Monday.

Metropolitan Temple

R. Herold's second orchestral matinee of the second series took place yesterday afternoon. The audience, although small, owing presumably to the Lenten season, was a select, and a most appreciative and sympathetic one. The improvement of the artists composing this orchestra is decidedly marked from week to week. We are proud to claim such a musical spirit as Mr. Herold, the manager, in our city; he has made these choice concerts justly to deserve their continued popularity. Surely yesterday afternoon "music's golden tongue" might have been heard to "discourse most eloquent music."

In an unusually attractive programme the most interesting and beautiful selection proved to be "Les Preludes" (Poem Symphonique). The first part, "the soft sweet calm of country life" was portrayed with delicate nicety; one had for a moment in the mind's eye a charming glimpse of rural life, and truly the cares of the bustling city without folded their tents like the Arabs, and "as silently stole away." One had a strong impulse to stave out with Charles Cotton, "Farewell thou busy world, may we never meet again." However, the last part of the composition is so stirring and inspiring and was performed with such power and spirit that "when the trumpet sounded the signal of alarm" the reverie ended, allowing the mind to enter into the noble sentiment and enthusiasm of the concluding strains. The performance was cordially applauded. Mr. Henry Heyman, a graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Leipzig, gave a scholarly violin performance. The audience showed their pleasure most heartily in applause and the young artist was quite handsomely favored with flowers—a fit tribute to music. Mr. Heyman deserves to rank among the first violin artists on the coast, if indeed he be not the protagonist. His playing was an important feature in yesterday's performance. Mr. Heyman displayed just enough of his skill to make the audience eager for further tests of it. It is to be wished that his talent will be displayed frequently in these recitals. The "Entr'acte from Manfred" by Reinecke (strings only), although well rendered was too mournful in style to please a general audience, while the little scrap which followed, "Love Song," by Lambert, met with rapturous applause—in fact was twice encored. A sad commentary on public taste, the combination of notes were pretty enough but the little air became indeed insipid upon a third hearing. How fickle and uncertain is a musical audience that such a fancy as this should seize it while often a great and grand work fails to quicken its pulse!

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

ABOUT one fifth of "The Danites" is said to be the work of the author of "Helen's Babies."

A SPANISH dramatic company, under the management of Senor Angel Molla, will perform at Pacific Hall on Sunday evening.

AMATEUR dramatic performances are now quite the rage in the British Metropolis. A number of the playwrights paint their own scenery.

"THE Flying Dutchman" is the title of Robert Buchanan's new play. We will publish one on the first of April, named "The Flying Bakery."

In Paris a new play has been brought out named "The Hunchback Demon," and the actor who assumes the title role is a veritable hunchback.

Dixon understands French better than he does Celtic. The word shaughran is a verb, and the noun derived from it meaning a loner is a Shrauganee.

"ORFEO," by Monte Verde, is said to be the oldest overture known, and an operetta "Robin and Marion," composed by a French troubadour, named, Adam de la Hale, and performed in the year 1282, before the King and Court of Naples, is said to be the oldest dramatic work of which we have any knowledge.—Ex.

THE following jeu d'esprit is from the London Figaro: "Patti made a most stupendous, immense and unparalleled success at Rome last Sunday. King Humbert sent a bouquet 1700 yards in circumference. The College of Cardinals attended in full uniform to witness 'La Traviata,' and when the wicked old gentlemen returned to the Vatican they had twenty bowls of punch and twelve dishes of macaroni, after which they unanimously elected Madame Patti Pope."

SPEAKING of the violin playing of Pablo de Sarasate, the Leipzig correspondent of the Evening Bulletin says: "As he stepped on the stage, like a hero, he was greeted by a thrice repeated trumpet flourish, and the audience, as if determined not to be excelled, spared neither lungs, hands nor gloves in its more than enthusiastic greeting. For a while it seemed as if applause was to be the only music for the rest of the concert. How he played, after the storm had subsided into an intense silence, is indescribable; but the effect was thrilling and altogether wonderful."

TO-morrow evening, at the Grand Opera House, will be the last opportunity for some time in this city to witness the specialties of our favorite actors, Keene, Mestayer, and Miss Alice Harrison. They leave next week to join the Kralfy Troupe on a starring tour through the East, in "Trip to the Moon" spectacle. The performance to-morrow evening will embrace "Nice Times for Married People," a Grand Olio, introducing Miss Alvina Heynold and Mr. Robert Bonner, a farce of "The Good for Nothing Nan," and Miss Louise Sylvestre in her own melodrama. An immense audience will, without doubt, assemble to hear the parting words of the beneficiaries.

THE annual musical festival at Brighton, Eng., began on Tuesday, Feb. 19th, under the direction of Mr. Knbe. This gentleman deserves the highest credit for his encouragement of native talent. His orchestra of forty-eight players is English to a man, and every one of his twenty-five soloists, with the exception of Mesdames Stirling and Osgood, who are Americans, are English, also. Among the works performed have been the "Lalla Rookh" of Messrs. Wills & Clay, and the "May Queen" of Sir Sterndale Bennett. Miss Kuhe, daughter of the director, has made a very successful debut as a pianiste during the festival, playing Schumann's Concerto in A minor, with excellent technique and expression.—Ex.

PLUNDER

TO the committee of a prominent school of art, Mr. Ruskin wrote lately from Oxford: "Nothing can advance art in any district of this accursed, machine and devil-driven England, until she changes her mind in many things, and my time for talking is past. I lecture here, but only on the art of the past."

A CORRESPONDENT tells me that at a London Theater, the other night, when a very small audience assembled to see a very poor play, a friend of the author remarked to an acquaintance: "A damned thin house. I suppose it's on account of the war." "No," said the other; "it's on account of the piece." My correspondent wasn't to do it again. I have seen the weak joke before.

A SNOBBED ARGYLL.—The Marquis of Lorne, husband of the Princess Louise, is not happy. His royal relations look down upon him, notwithstanding he has prepared a new version of the Palanis of David and an excellent brand of whisky has been named after him. If he had the pluck of that Earl of Buchan who, toward the end of the last century, took high and bold Scottish ground against English exclusiveness in the House of Peers, the young Argyll would bear the royal sun-bomb loftily and contemptuously.

Our John

The name of McCullough now stands alongside those of the most eminent actors of our time. His method of acting is worthy of profound attention and study. It is conspicuous for its breadth and nobility which have been manifested in his roles of "Virginius," "Othello," "Spartacus," "King Lear," and "Jack Cade," during the past week at the Boston Theater. Mr. McCullough has had a deservedly long and successful engagement, and he has displayed a versatility and completeness of acting as rare as it is wonderful. But while an actor of such great fulfillment as McCullough plays before us, we may trust him as a worthy successor of the great ones now dead and turned to clay, and as an inheritor of their glory. A great actor is one who, having passions, learns his text, and knows his range of voice and motion. Mr. McCullough compasses all essentials. It was through his representations of "Virginius" and "Othello" that he first gained access to the hearts of the Boston people, and largely through them does he maintain against all comers his hold upon their affections. Considered as works of art, they are no better than his "Coriolanus," his "Damon," and neither of them is more carefully elaborated than his "King Lear," but his portrayal of the sufferings and wrongs of "Virginius," the profound sympathetic interest he wins or commands for him, and the fine play of the emotions he excites in his behalf will always make this role a favorite with the people who enjoy such riot of feeling as only McCullough can produce in the whirlwind of his passion. He never appeared to better advantage in "King Lear" than he did on Friday night, and from the beginning to the close of the performance his every movement was eagerly watched, his every utterance commanded attention. He was the King in every situation. Great was he in his humiliation in his struggle to forget his dignity, and all his sufferings; still greater in that mournful appeal to be raised from the depths of his distress at the death of "Cordelia."—N. Y. Dramatic News.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Collateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Nuttall Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest sensations in business cards, to be had of L. DeRoussay & Co., 35 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

The "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICCO, at 240 Kearny Street, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equaled by any in this city; and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post Street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

An I-rate Passenger

"I want to know if this is a steam injun or a boss car?" yelled a woman with a complexion like an old boot, as she hooked the conductor in the coat collar with the handle of her umbrella, and pulled him back with a jerk that came very near stretching him out on the hay.

"Really, mum, I don't understand you," stammered the young man.

"You don't, eh? No, I'll be bound you don't, but if you don't stop this car, and that mighty sudden, too, I'll give you a taste of this umberell over your wooden head that you will understand. Here I've been motionin' to you, and a hakin' my fist at you for the last two minutes, but there you stand grinnin' like a chessy-cat at the gals on the sidewalk an' never onest shyn' your eyes around to see how your passengers is comin' on. There now, help me out with my baskets, an' look sharp about it. You've carried me five blocks furdin' I wanted to go, an' I want you to tell the man what runs that car comin' yonder to pass me back free. I'm a patient woman, an' never say much, but I've got lot's of influence, young man—for my man is fireman in a printin' office down town—an' if you know which side of your bread has the butter on you'll attend to business a little sharper the next time I'm a'ord. That's all. You hear no."

Said Mr. Hallam, the historian, godfather of Hallam Tennyson, the Laureate's oldest son, on the occasion of the christening: "Why not give the child your own name, as well as mine? Why not call him Alfred Hallam Tennyson?" "For fear," said the deep-voiced bard, "for fear he should turn out a fool! Let his name be Hallam only!"

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. 841 unimproved acres. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed, supplied and unobstructed water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Apples, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rene's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to G. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Death at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! on his violin.

Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the willows comes cries and moanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Running, leaping high—each one in his shroud.

Zig-a-zig-a-zig! see them flitting by,
Hear the dancers' hooves clashing horribly!

Pat! the dance is over, sudden though it be,
All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee!

ACT 1. THE ROYAL PALACE FROM THE BANKS OF THE TIGRIS (By C. W. Witham.) The King's Magnificence. The Legal Court. The love of the Greek Slave, Myrrha. The Conspiracy. Departure of Sardanapalus for the Hall of Nimrod in the

ROYAL GALLERY

ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE. (By M. Strauss.) The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle. BONFANTI

ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham.) Grouped on the Alabaster steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and peal follows peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equalled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvelous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King a Hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril.

ACT 4. THE DREAM OF JADES. The renewed attack. The rebels victorious. Parting of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the Immolation. The Funeral Pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the Characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

Admission as usual, One Dollar. No Extra charge for Reserved Seats

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"The Gascon" will be given here, with Mr. Charles Pope as 'Artaban,' during the present week. On Monday next, April 1st, Mr. John Owens will appear in "Dot" as 'Caleb Plummer.'

Grand Opera House

The benefit of Keene, Mestayer, and Miss Alice Harrison last evening was, no might have been expected, a bumper. The seating capacity of the Grand Opera House is 2,500, but at the smallest estimate, 3,000 must have been packed together there last night. On the appearance of the beneficiaries in the comedy of "Nice Times for Married People," they were each received with storms of applause.
Tom Keene's share being prolonged until he spoke a few words of recognition.
Miss Ellie Wilton acted and looked the part of "Mrs. Younghusband" in a charming manner, and nothing could excel the rendering of "Mrs. Coddle" by Miss Alice Harrison. Widner's orchestra gave during the evening a schottische, arranged from the lullaby of Fritz, a perfect gem of dance music, and executed in a faultless manner. No audience was ever in better humor with the actors and performance.
The farewell address was spoken in good style, but the effect was not so good as would have been a few impromptu words from each. It was early this morning when the audience was dismissed, well pleased with the entertainment. "Sar-danapalus" this evening and during the week.

Baldwin's Theater

"A Celebrated Case" this evening, and
"Agnes" to-morrow.

Emerson's Opera House

Denman Thompson commences the third week of "Uncle Joshua Whitcomb," with no falling off in crowded audiences.

Bush Street Theater

"Humpty-Dumpty" will be brought out this evening, with the celebrated clown, Grimaldi, in the leading part.

The Fountain

Saviner every evening in cornet solos, and a very choice selection of popular operatic and dance music at the free concerts every evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

KENNEDY's "Uncle Tom" Company have met with much success in Sacramento.

A BENEFIT has been tendered to Miss Maggie Chambers, to take place at the Grand Opera House on Sunday evening next.

The next Herold Matinee will be given on Wednesday Afternoon, April 3d—a change which will be found by the majority to be for the better.

FOREPAUGH's Circus and Menagerie will exhibit at Hayward's on Thursday, and after a tour south as far as Los Angeles, will return to this city and open here on Monday, the 15th of April.

It is quite probable that the production of "Agnes" to-morrow evening, at Baldwin's, will be the cause of a suit against Shook & Palmer by Miss Agnes Ethel for infringement of copyright.

The funeral of the late Joseph Maguire yesterday showed the respect in which the deceased was held; the funeral service was most impressive and the music of a class that when once heard dwells long in memory.

Musical circles have awakened to the importance of the May Festival. Rehearsals are in progress throughout the state, and we may look forward to the accomplishment of the greatest musical event in the history of California, when all the orchestras are united at the Pavilion in May.

MAUD GRANGER will support John Mc-Callough during his four weeks' engagement at the Grand Opera House. New York, commencing April 22d. Miss Granger is now performing at Park Theater,
New York, with Robson and Crane, in "Our Bachelors," doing the character of Mrs. Eve Clinton. Although the leading female part, there is little to do, and very poor material to work with, the lines hardly offering Miss Granger an opportunity to resort to the old arts of stage trickery that so successfully mend the broken wares offered by thoughtless dramatists.
Yet to a casual looker-on this fault is lost sight of in the trails of merit that seem to come from laughter's happy land and in the elegant display of wardrobe which adorns the fair actress. One old lady said that "the diamond necklace that sparkled on her throat reminded her of the milky way." Miss Granger has accepted for perusal, with intent to play, an entirely new, original and emotional piece, from the pen of Mr. Oscar R. Reers, that has been through the hands of able critics, who have pronounced it a work of art.—N. Y. Mirror

PLUNDER

TROUSERS AND SKIRTS.—Mrs. Jane Swinhelm hits the men a blow which she means shall tell. She profoundly "despises" a fellow who bitches up his trousers when he picks up anything. Darling, how about those skirts which the gentler sex are always picking up in a way that is making every adorable member round-shouldered?

The editor of the London World, writing of the late actor, Tom Stuart, remarks that before him is a letter from Dickens, in which, speaking of a very bad play called "The Life of an Actress," produced the previous evening at the Adelphi, he says: "Stuart, as the Duke, with a tin star on his breast, surrounded by the British female aristocracy in blue boots, was tre-men-dous!"

"I've got it," said Counsellor Arundel to Judge Elcock yesterday. "What's that, Counsellor?" "Oh, Stokely's sewer project is nowhere." "I'm glad to hear it," said the Judge, "but what's the nature of it?" "The cheapest method in the world for heating street cars in winter." "Ah, indeed! How so, Counsellor?"
"Carry a woman half a block farther than she wants to go." Then they both smiled.

A PAINTING by Gabriel Max, now on exhibition at the Austrian Art Union, is exciting attention in Germany. It is called "The Child Murderess," and represents a mother with a little baby, whom she has loved and killed, in her arms, crouching in a desolate place by the side of a stream, and giving the little bleeding head one passionate kiss before throwing it into the water. In point of color and execution it equals, if it does not excel Max's most famed works.

"Beckwith!" shouted the brakeman on the B. & M. yesterday morning at the first station west of Glendale, and a hissing passenger jumped up and ran out to get something to eat. He was mad when he came back. "Thith ith a nithe plathe to get hweckfuth," he said. And then the congregation threw its hat on the floor of the car and stamped up and down on it, and yelled and roared and howled until conductor Stanchfield came in and said he would close the services if the noise wasn't stopped.

At the Imperial Opera at St. Petersburg, recently, a prima donna, on the occasion of her benefit, was called out more than twenty times. At last she advanced to the footlights, and, addressing the audience in the Russian language, offered to show her gratitude by singing a national Russian song. The song was received with enthusiastic applause; but the prima donna was much disgusted when the management subsequently fined her 2,000 francs for "addressing the audience without permission."

ARDENT lover:—We do not think you should remit your attentions to the girl simply because her father kicked you out.
Go to the old man and say to him frankly that if he repeats the action you shall regard it as an insult. It was surely rather unladylike for the young woman to hop upon a chair and shout, "Go in, dad! Give him a hister! He's been loafing around here long enough." But probably it was merely an excess of feeling. An oyster stew and two spoons will make it all right again.

A SAILOR was attempting to make his way along the crowded sidewalk in front of Fulton Market, when one of his eyes—or, as he expressed it, his "port sidelight"— came violently in contact with the ferule of a large, brown gingham umbrella, which a venerable Quaker gentleman was carefully carrying under his arm.

"Rig in your boom!" shouted the enraged mariner; "what the blue blazes do you mean by workin' through a crowded roadstead in such a lubberly fashion as that?"

"Friend," was the mild reply, "I presume that it is my umbrella that thou art apostrophizing."

"Eyes in be blowed," said the wrathful tar, catching at the sound of the last syllable of the big word; "it was blasted near puttin' my eyes out; if you can't rig her up for an awnin' or use her for a settin'- pole, why the devil don't you leave her at home?"

"Thy speech is rough and thy manner is violent," was the still milder response;
"but there is much of justice in thy plea,
and if thou wilt come with me into the adjacent saloon we will take comfort together."

"All right, my boy" (the mariner was placated); "you couldn't say it better if you'd been to sea all your nat'ral life."

A Difference of Opinion

The Chicago Inter-Ocean has the following, which shows what McVicker's super-think about Kate Claxton and "The Two Orphans." "Scene—Robert Reed's dressing-room in McVicker's. Picard (his role) has just come from the stage, seats himself, intending to take it easy during the wait. Outside two aspirants for dramatic honors are seated on a table. They, emulating the example set by the most noted actors, have determined to begin their professional career at the bottom round of the ladder, and occupy the honorable position of supes. The merits and demerits of actors, actresses, and plays are under discussion. Mr. Reed whips out his note-book, 'shorthands' their remarks, which we print verbatim: 'I tell you what it is,' says Supe No. 1, with emphasis, 'this 'ere play of the Orphans is done finer than any play ever was in this town.' 'What d'ye say?' screams Supe
No. 2, rolling from the table in sheer disgust. 'Dis 'Two Orphans' dey re now givin' us! What ye givin' me? I guess you fell down an' hurt your head when you was young to give such talk as that!' 'Well,' says the first speaker, quietly, 'where'll you get it done better?' 'Where?' ejacu-lates the other, astonished at the utter ignorance of his antagonist, 'where! Now you jes' wait till de 'Claxton gang' come to the Adelphi. Hey'll show you sceneries an' actin' dat'll double-discount dis
'ere show (McVicker's). 'What's the matter wid you, Supe No. 1 returus; 'dis
'ere company is one of the best stock companies in the country.' 'Wha-a-t!' laughing contemptuously. 'What're you givin' me now. Why dese McVicker people are only characters. Dere ain't a star among 'em,' adding, as a clincher, 'An' Claxy's party is all stars.' Supe No. 1 is evidently in a corner, but, after a short pause, asks: 'Well, wot's the difference between a star an' a character actor?' 'De difference?' replies No. 2, quickly. 'Then with reflection in his tones, he continues:
'Well, I don't know de difference, but de people dat pays dere money tinks dere is a mighty big difference. 'Where does 'Claxton get her stars, smarty? You know so much, j'aps you'll tell me that.' 'Is the next conundrum asked by the advocate of McV's theater. 'Where does she get 'em?
Why all over de country.' 'I thought they was country stars,' returns No. 1, with a satisfied air. 'Why I mean, says
No. 2, angrily, 'she goes around de country, an' when she sees a man to fit a part she grabs him,' clutching at an imaginary star, and in a defiant tone the speaker adds: 'Dat's where she gets 'em.' This explanation No. 1 apparently could not overcome, so, thinking he would effectually crush his opponent, he says: 'Now, you know so much about 'The Two Orphans' jes' tell me who wrote it.' A sarcastic laugh greets the delivery of this riddle. 'Why, give me somethin' easy,' adding, as if it was his duty to enlighten the ignorant whenever opportunity offered:
'Why, de man dat wrote de 'Two Orphans' was McKee Rankin.' 'That shows how much you know 'bout it, for 'twas Gus Daly and Boucicault.' 'Curtain!'

A Philosophic Farmer

Thus, like Egypt with its Nile inundations, those districts of Cape Colony—otherwise almost barren—are annually fertilized. But, unlike Egypt, the country is unprovided with any means of utilizing to the full extent the advantages thus conferred. No appliances are prepared for the purpose of storing the water thus brought down; no artificial channels are cut for directing it and spreading it over a large area; and when the short rainy season has passed, the inhabitants are content to sit and wait for the next "periodical." A characteristic story is told by a colonist who visited the locality some years ago: "I strolled along the banks of the river, and was much struck with the extremely fertile appearance of the soil and very little which had been done for turning it to account. It seemed as if the Creator had done everything for the country, and man nothing. Scarcely any rain had fallen for some time past, and the river had not overflowed its banks for more than a year. The stocks of grain and vegetables were getting very low. The farmer was complaining much about the long protracted drought; and when he had finished, I took the liberty of pointing out how he could, by leading out the stream for the purpose of irrigation, or by fixing a pump to be propelled by wind, on the river's bank, secure an abundant supply independent of the weather. He seemed to listen with some interest to the development of my plans; and I had begun to hope that he had decided upon doing something to relieve himself of the difficulty; but eventually, after turning round and scrutinizing the whole horizon in the direction of the river's source, as in search of some favorable symptom, he yawned heavily, and merely observed in Dutch: 'O, it will rain some day!'"—Chambers' Journal.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed in a well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $400 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, map, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

- 2 Fantasia, Souvenir de Bellini.....C. Bertram

Solo for Clarinet, with Orchestral Accompaniment
Mn. JOSEPH WADA
- 3 Dance Macabre.....St. Saens

Zig-a zig-a zig! Death with cadence gay,
Beating with his heel on a tombstone gray,
Death at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! on his violin.

Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the willows comes cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Rumpling, leaping high each one in his shroud.

Zig-a-zig-a-zig! see them flitting by,
Hear the dancers bones clinking horribly!

Pat! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be:
All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee!
—HENRI CAZALIS
- 4 Overture, William Tell.....Rossini

WEBER ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.

Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

ACT 1. THE ROYAL PALACE FROM THE BANKS OF THE TIGRIS. (By C. W. Witham.) The King's Magnificence. The Royal Court. The love of the Greek Slave, Myrrha. The Conspiracy. Departure of Sardanapalus for the Hall of Nimrod in the

ROYAL GALLEY

ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE. (By M. Strauss.) The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle. BONFANTI

ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham.) Grouped on the Alabaster steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and behold follows a peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equalled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvelous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King a Hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril.

ACT 4. THE DREAM OF HADES. The renowned attack. The rebels victorious. Parting of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the Immolation. The Funeral Pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the Characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

The romantic drama, "The Gascon," was brought out here last evening. It has been placed on the stage in the usual careful manner of the California Theater management. The costumes are of the handsome and picturesque style of the Elizabethan age, and the scenery is in keeping with that period.

Mr. Charles Pope as 'Artaban, the Gascon,' was in his best vein, and looked and spoke the character well. Miss Ellie Wilton as 'Mary Stuart' gave us a portrayal of an episode in the life of that handsome and unfortunate Queen, in the most unexceptionable manner, and the part of her poet lover was rendered by Barton Hill in a forcible and apparently truthful way. The 'Lord Maxwell' of Henry Edwards, and the Scotch and French lords by other members of the company, were well taken, with perhaps one exception, namely—the part of 'Sir Henry Darnley'—which seemed a little out of keeping with the rest of the cast. Bishop as the Master of the Royal Company of Comedians made, as usual, the most of his share; and the 'Mary Carmichael' of Miss Frankie McClellan was all that could be desired. "The Gascon" during the week and Saturday matinee.

Grand Opera House

"Sardanapalus" continues to attract good audiences, and will hold the boards till further notice.

Baldwin's Theater

"Agnes" will be produced this evening.

Emerson's Opera House

Denman Thompson has entered upon the third week of his successful delineation of Eastern life, in the character of 'Joshua Whitecomb,' and the public are not yet wearied of the representation. Next week a rival in the same line will appear on the boards of the California.

Bush Street Theater

A season of pantomime was inaugurated here last evening which bids fair to become a success. It is a novelty for the present and a vast improvement on anything that has been offered at this place of amusement for some time past. Grimaldi has not been over-rated; as a clown he stands at the head of his profession. His tricks are of the most amusing kind, and apparently inexhaustible and his acrobatic feats are given with the ease of a practiced gymnast. The variety business introduced, especially the tumbling of the Almonte brothers, is first rate as a whole, although the cartoon business could be left out to advantage, as it is done no better than almost any of our school-boys could execute, and just so much waste time to the audience, the same may be said regarding the Irish character introduced—that is, that it could be left out to advantage—neither fun nor instruction being offered, and considered next door to being an insult, by a large portion of amusement patrons.

The Fountain

Free concert this evening. A choice selection will be given. Savinier will perform. Open after theater hours. Refreshments served to order. Best brands of cigars and liquors. Families supplied.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

This evening at the Metropolitan Temple Henry George will lecture.

"Oh! love while love is left to thee," is the title of a chorus for male voices, at present quite popular in the East.

"The inner workings of the temperance praying band" is the subject announced to be treated by "Happy Jack" at Platt's Hall next Saturday evening.

Mr. C. H. Ladd is in the East arranging for the construction of monster telephones to be used in connection with the May Festival.

An Eastern exchange in announcing a proposed visit of Jules Verne to America, calls him the most accomplished liar of the nineteenth century.

MESTAYER'S 'Eve' on Sunday evening at the au revoir benefit of Miss Alice Harrison, Tom Keene and himself was made up and given in the most ultra style of burlesque, and a little beyond anything ever before seen in that line.

Boston theatrical managers make a point of announcing the attendance of certain prominent gentlemen, when they are present on first nights. And if they are not there they prove themselves equal to the emergency by having it said, for example, as was done in Tuesday morning's papers in connection with a certain performance: "Prof. Longfellow, Ralph Waldo Emerson and T. Bailey Aldrich also had tickets for the occasion, but were probably prevented by the storm from attending."—Phila. Evening Bulletin, March 14th.

An amusing incident occurred one evening last week. A couple of young men were passing along Sixteenth street, just after dark, when one, espying a tom hopping along the sidewalk, clapped his hat over it, with the remark: "Here's a mocking bird!" Several ladies and gentlemen who were passing gathered around. A policeman also stopped. Cautiously raising the hat, the other inserted his hand. "Don't lift it yet; I've got it by the tail feathers—they might pull out," said he. It was getting highly interesting. The one with the hat raised it a bit, and the tom gave a little hop—just enough for everybody to see it. "It has escaped from some cage; give me it—I'll take charge of it," said the officer. Again inserting his hand, the man seized the slimy cold insect, and placed it in the hand of the policeman. The officer no sooner touched it than, with a chill running through his blood, he opened his hand, and the horrid tom jumped right among the ladies. There was a succession of screams, a few forcible expressions from the gentlemen, a rapid retreat by two bold, bad young men, a disgusted policeman, and silence again reigned supreme.

A DISPATCH from Baltimore states that in the United States Circuit Court Judge Giles rendered his decree in the case of Shook & Palmer, of New York, against W. J. Gilmore, of the Holliday Street Theater, praying for an injunction restraining Gilmore from performing the drama, "A Celebrated Case." The decree states that the complainants, by assignment from Samuel French, the assignee of Adolph D. Ennery and Eugene Cornon, the authors of the drama, are exclusively entitled to the manuscript of said drama, and the exclusive right to represent, and cause to be represented, the same in the English language in North America. The Holliday Street Theater has therefore closed.—Ez

KING ALFONSO went to a Madrilene theater with Signor Carnova de Castillo. The play was wretched, abominable, and execrable. "How do you like it?" said the minister, just as a waiter entered the royal box with ices. "Splendid—it's the finest play I ever saw in my life," said the King. The premier, astonished, expressed his dissent. "Between us," said the young King, "it is probably the worst play ever written, but I didn't wish to say so before the waiter. I didn't know but what he might be the author, and so couldn't take the risk of hurting his feelings—see?"

EVERYBODY remembers that it was the Baron Von Wallhoffen who won the lovely Lucca. A recent decision of the court compels the baron to bear the costs of a lawsuit brought against the lady; and as his purse is not barren, of course he will have to come down with the dust. Let him comfort himself, however, in the thought that if this lawsuit had never been instituted, the appended lines would probably have been lost to the world.

For better or worse he took her—
The angelic and beautiful Lucca—
And now he must pay
What the judges shall say.
Thought it lessens his stock of ices

"O! my husband is quite a paragon of perfection," said Mrs. A. to Mrs. B. "Ah, indeed! Don't he drink any more?" asked Mrs. B. "No," said Mrs. A. "About two months ago he came home intoxicated, and I told him if he ever did so again I'd go home to ma, and he don't drink now." "That accounts for it," said Mrs. B. "The other night my husband met him in the street hanging to a lamp-post, and asked him why he didn't go home, and he said he would as soon as he got sober." When Mrs. A. and Mrs. B. pass each other in the street now the coolness is as thick as a quart of ice cream.

THE Georgian way of reviewing Miss Mary Anderson: "The struggles with love and modesty which rage in the delicate shell of her soul, when begging her estranged lover to tie not to the field of blood to meet her brother's wrath, were grandly given. The touching colloquy with the king, when her father's very statue supported her quivering form high above the plane of vice; was as exquisite as reality, and as the shimmering moonbeams bathed her regal figure in a perfect flood of chastity, the audience seemed to forget the play and applaud the being divine. She was twice called before the curtain."

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

BLOOMINGTON, ILL., March 18, 1879.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Friday and Saturday, the 8th and 9th, Miss Charlotte Thompson, with Wallack Combination, in Durley Hall, to good houses both nights, and what was very unusual here, the matinee was well attended. Friday evening, "Jane Eyre," and Saturday evening, "Miss Merton." Miss Thompson, although a favorite here for some time, has gained new and many friends by her acting. The support was good. Barlow, Wilson, Primrose & West's Mustrels in Durley Hall on the 11th, to a splendid house. Route: Dayton, 19th; Des Moines, Iowa, 20th; Council Bluffs, 21st; Omaha, 22d; Lincoln, Neb., 23d; St. Paul, 26th and 27th; and Minneapolis, 28th. Swedish Quartet, Durley Hall, April 2d and 3d. Emma Thursby, Durley Hall, April 23d. Florence in "Mighty Dollar," March 25th. Fanny Davenport soon. Bishop in Anti-Spiritualism, Durley Hall, 21st and 22d. The long-wished-for want, the coming of Miss Mary Anderson, playing to-night in "Evadne," at Durley Hall. Miss Anderson will draw a good house I am sure, although unknown except by a few. She comes under the management of John Whorton, of Ben. DeBar's Opera House, St. Louis. John McCullough, and Kellogg-Cary Concert coming out time not definitely settled as yet.

Bloomington is favored with a good hall and a first-class manager—I refer to Durley Hall and Dr. Geo. S. Smith. Durley Hall was built by Judge David Davis a few years ago. Last year the hall was leased to John W. Davy, Esq., who is so well known to the theatrical profession. Mr. Davy selected Mr. Smith as its manager, and a better choice could not have been made. I need not bestow eulogiums upon Mr. Smith, for the character of the troupe who visit his hall testify as to his management. Durley Hall has been under the management of Dr. Smith for the past six years, and the popularity of Durley is greatly due to his untiring efforts to serve the public.

It is a fact conceded by everyone that Bloomington has more shows and of a better class than any other town in the state, except Chicago. Why it is so is no doubt due to the appreciativeness of the people and the management of Dr. Smith. Mr. Newell Abbott, manager of Schroeder's Opera House, is still in Europe on business. The Opera House has not been opened since the advent of Joe. Murphy, nearly four weeks ago. Dr. Schroeder is a very genial and pleasant gentleman, and whose experience has prejudiced him against the "showing" business. The trouble with the Dr. is, that he devotes more time to the outside (and probably more paying business) and less to the interests of his hall. We hope that he will reform in this particular, for we wish him success. Yours, NEMO, JR.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ENRICO, at 250 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Gold Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Fine Jew Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Turner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. His Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

Rachel

Many years ago, a French writer said of la grande tragedienne Rachel; "That little girl has received of Heaven a great gift, but with it she has neither heart nor brains." That she was endowed with a great gift is undeniable. In the dramatic art, which she made the study of her life, Rachel as nearly approached perfection as humanity may. Nothing in the world, it is said, could be greater. Madame Waldo's charge of want of brains, probably meant, simply, a—crick! Rachel's ignorance of matters in which it was her business to be informed, clearly demonstrates that there "were some leaves torn out." It is said that pure whim was the only apparent motive which led her to accept or reject plays. We quote verbatim from able authority: "Neither were her costumes always in character, her first dress in 'Marie Stuart' being regal in brilliancy, notwithstanding the Queen of Scots is imprisoned and intentionally deprived, by Elizabeth, of every article of luxury, even to a looking-glass! So unenlightened was Rachel on the subject of her heroine, that, after her debut in Schiller's drama, a good friend thought fit to present the counterfeited Stuart with a history of Scotland; yet the extraordinary dressing continued to the end, for Rachel was vain. Naturally content with the beauty of her Greek head, it was some time before she could be persuaded to wear a wig in 'Adrienne Leconvreux,' and her only objection to Madame de Girardin's very objectionable play of 'Cleopatra,' was, that the author should have given her farce the plebian name of Antony! Again, in attempting comedy, Rachel showed an extraordinary mental hallucination, if not weakness. We are told that she never was so happy as when arrayed for Moliere's soubrettes, in which she made a complete fiasco."—Boston Society.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outsides," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the
Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 50 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Riche's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to G. E. CHUBBICK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

WEBER

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs. Sharman, Hyde & Co.

Gentlemen: The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and a pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the act on meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

ACT 1. THE ROYAL PALACE FROM THE BANKS OF THE TIGRIS. (By C. W. Witham.) The King's Magnificence. The Royal Court. The love of the Greek Slave, Myrrha. The Conspiracy. Departure of Sardanapalus for the Hall of Nimrod in the

ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE. (By M. Strauss.) The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle. BONFANTI

ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham.) Grouped on the Alabaster steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and peal follows peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equalled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvelous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King a Hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril.

ACT 4. THE DREAM OF HADES. The renewed attack. The rebels victorious. Parting of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the immolation. The funeral pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the Characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

Admission as usual, One Dollar. No Extra charge for Reserved Seats

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"The Gascon" is meeting with better success than the public awarded "The Exiles" and will be continued during the week and Saturday Matinee. "The Exiles" will at some future time be re-produced after the drama has been translated nearer the original. John E. Owens will appear on Monday as 'Caleb Plummer.'

Grand Opera House

"Sardanapalus," now drawing excellent audiences, is in a fair way to continue for some time.

Baldwin's Theater

Sardou's drama of "Agnes," with Miss Rose Wood in the title role, was given here last evening, and for a first performance was a decided success. We defer notice.

Emerson's Opera House

The high jinks of San Francisco are now the chief patrons of this place. Thompson has struck a bonanza in "Joshua Whitcomb."

Bush Street Theater

"Humpty-Dumpty" will gain in public favor for some time. It is really an excellent performance and one that young people cannot fail to like. Considering the storm last evening the audience was good.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

BLONDIS is in the East Indies giving the natives cricks in their necks.

TONY PASTOR will open at the Walnut Street Theater, Philadelphia, April 29th.

THE drama of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was first produced in New York in August, 1852.

"JAMES MELVILLE," of Mazeppa fame, will give the Oregonians a specimen of the wild horse of Tartary.

A BENEFIT concert has been tendered Miss Ellen Consten, and will take place at Platt's Hall, on Tuesday, April 2d.

THE Thorne branch of the Union Square Company are at McVickar's, Chicago, playing "A Celebrated Ouse" to big houses. Haverly's Minstrels are drawing

Referring to Miss Kellogg's taste for fried onions, an Eastern paragrapher inflicts the following strong item: "Kellogg's frying-pan is rarely idle when her leisure from stage duties will permit indulgence in the great pleasure of her existence—preparing her onion banquet with its attendant pungent and almost irrepressible perfume."

ROSE EYTINGER has inspired an Eastern poet, and this is the way he overflows:

Here's health to ye, Egypt's fair daughter,
Who kept the old kings in hot water,
And drank in a bunch
Fifty pearls in your punch;
Be me soul, 'twas an illegal starter.

With the Rosy Tinge beaming so sweetly
And flushing your dark cheek so nately,
I'm out of countenance
With Ruddy's red pate,
And me alms are laying completely.

Your form and your features entice all,
Your smile and your dimples are nice all,
You've captured us here,
Ye hold prisoner.

Wid your letters of Marc and reprisal
You seem to be rather complacent,
Wid the loss of your needle so recent;
But ye'll making a shift
Wid what ye have left.

"Hush, Patrick, you're gitting ludicrous."
Good-bye to ye, Mistress O'Patra;
No flower from the Isle of Sumatra
Is as tempting as our Full-blown Lotus flower.

Yours truly,
PATRICIA McATRA.

Bill—"I say, Mary, run and ask Jule to come and play with us." Mary—"You know, Bill, mother says you ain't to call him Jule; his name's Julius." Bill—"Well, what does sis call me Bill for then? I shan't call him Julius until she calls me Bill-us."

A VICKSBURG negro fell from the deck of a steamboat the other day, was sucked under a coal barge, came up in time to catch his breath before he slid under a raft a mile long, and finally scrambled ashore down at Warrentown, about seven miles below, with the remark: "No use tryin', ye kaint drown a deep-water baptist!"

ONE day, so goes the story, His Honor, the Mayor, was out driving, and in one of his tangents turned into a railway track, along which, after a high-mettled prancer, his carriage glided swiftly until it brought up behind a Conestoga wagon, whose stalwart owner was perched up aloft with a ten-year-old clay pipe in his mouth. He was in no hurry to proceed, and His Honor, after some moments of forbearance, sung out, "Hey, there!" There was no turn of the head, no intimation of the struggle with the pipe. The Mayor waxed wroth, and with a reddening countenance loudly rendered the cavatina—"Say! why don't you get out of the track?" He of the Conestoga was still as adamant. "Will you get out of the track, or won't you?" This time the statue turned, and slowly emitting the smoke said, "No-o-o!" "I'll have you arrested!" "Arrest and—?" The Boettner turned to his horses with the sentence unfinished. "I want you to know I'm the Mayor of the city!" "Oh, are you? Well, I'm the stud-horse of Buck's county, and I get out for no fellow like you." And he didn't.

THE THEATER, 1978.—The performance will begin with "The Baby Show," after which a tin can will be given to the boy eating a pie first. First time of "Hamlet." Between the first and second acts the boy who puts his shoes off and on first will get a scent. Assuming that the Prince of Denmark was a "crank," the role will be assumed by a real lunatic. Among the diversions of the evening may be mentioned sack-racing, trundling a wheelbarrow blindfolded, climbing a greased pole, high jumping and high kicking (by our ballet and all the company). The manager prides himself on employing the best "kickers" in the business. The manager will eat a quail every day for thirty days (if he can get it). The biggest bills (unpaid) of the season will be presented. In keeping with the character, "Hamlet," the man with the inverted brain will appear standing on his head. Hlog-guessing in the lobby. The proprietor will spare no expense (of others) to make the Charlatan the most popular resort in the city. In rehearsal, "The idiot spy," with a live idiot in the cast (other idiots in the audience).

A WRITER in "Mayfair" gives us some figures of the sums paid star performers of the past generation:—

The celebrated impresario, Luigi Riccaboni, who, in 1716, went to Paris at the direct invitation of the regent, paid his first stars, the Flaminia, Sylvia and Violletta, twenty sous per diem each. Of course they participated in the receipts besides, and as the first representation, which took place on the 18th of May, 1716, resulted in a yield of 4,967 livres, they certainly obtained a tolerably good income. Napoleon I., who personally was not fond of music, was nevertheless exceedingly liberal to singers. Catalina sang twice before him at St. Cloud. He sent her 5,000 francs for these performances, conferred upon her a pension for life of 12,000 francs per annum, and placed the Opera House at her disposal for two concerts, the net profits of which were 50,000 francs. The diva was not, however, quite satisfied with this. After Napoleon had heard her in St. Cloud he called upon her in her dressing room and asked: "Where are you going to, madam?" "To London, sire." "Remain in Paris and you shall have 100,000 francs and two months leave of absence." The lady bowed quietly and went to London, where she had engagements. She was there engaged for the season for 250,000 francs, and her leave of absence gave her as much, and she was paid 5,000 francs to sing "God Save the King" at soirees. Blanis, a relatively obscure prima donna, was engaged at the Parisian Opera in 1827, with an annual salary of 36,000 francs for life. She died young. Gloslop had a similar contract with the Paris Opera, viz.: 25,000 francs per annum. During a period of over three years she only sang once, and thus in one evening earned 75,000 francs, perhaps the highest sum a single performance ever yielded to a singer. The largest receipt that Mile. Sontag ever took was in London, where, on the occasion of her benefit, £2,000 was handed over to her. In Paris she received 36,000 francs for the season, and a benefit night. Malibran had, in Paris, a salary of 75,000 francs, a benefit night, and a leave of absence, during which she earned as much as her salary amounted to. In 1823 she was engaged at Drury Lane for forty representations, for which she received £3,200 and two benefits, with a guaranteed receipt of £2,400, or altogether, £5,600 for ten weeks. Shortly before her death, she signed an agreement for 600,000 francs, which is more than Patti ever received.

Dancing as a Fine Art

In dancing, the performer professes and avows that he shows grace and agility. Bearing this in mind, it will perhaps be a sufficient definition to say that dancing is a rhythmical and agile motion of the body for the sake of such grace and such expression as the motion may involve. Now the general estimate of the expressiveness of dancing is a rather high one. Adam Smith, in his essay on the imitative arts, says that it is much more expressive than music, and perhaps more so than any other art. He remarks, indeed, that our dances at the present day have little imitation in them, but he seems to think that they were in some cases derived from more expressive types. Thus he tells us that the minuet, in which the woman, after passing and re-passing the man several times, gives him first one hand, then the other, then both, was originally a Moorish dance; presenting emblematically the passion of love. Most writers, however, while admitting that our modern dances can hardly be said to imitate anything, assures us that anciently all dances were imitative and expressive. The present condition of dancing, considered as a fine art, is certainly anything but encouraging. The ease with which it may be degraded has been only too fully turned to account, and one cannot wonder that many persons discountenance it altogether. Here and there a dancer may be found who really tries to evoke something like grace and beauty from the art, but any intelligent pursuit of its higher developments is conspicuous by its absence. The vast majority of modern dancers are mere posture-makers, or else vigorous gymnasts kicking up their heels in defiance of all laws of beauty or modesty; the ballet consists principally of the grouping of differently-colored dresses—in itself not a bad thing, if the dancing connected with it were worth seeing; but the premiere danseuse is usually a person distinguished by the extreme paucity of her dress, who places herself in a variety of unnatural attitudes, and displays movements and gestures which in their merely artistic aspect are ugly, and from a moral point of view something worse. The decline of the art has been aided by the wholesale introduction of what may be called the monkey-and-lobster element, in which persons clad in a ridiculous parody of the skins and shells of apes, alligators, oysters, and the like, go through a series of frantic gyrations which are supposed to do duty for dancing. Upon this our theaters now largely rely, together with a gorgeous display of scenic glitter and as lavish a presentment of the human form as the management may venture on. In the midst of such a state of things it is hard to realize how much poetry might characterize the art of dancing. We must remember, however, that most things in the world are liable to corruption, and the fact that dancing has been applied to ignoble uses is no argument against its capability for better things. Nothing that is really beautiful ought ever to be despised by us, and that the human mechanism is exquisitely beautiful no one will deny. Not only is the human form, the crown of God's creation, beautiful, but the movements with which it is endowed are capable of exhibiting the very perfection of grace. We think it well to take pleasure in the bending of the harebell, the waving of the cornfield, the dance of the forest-leaves; we fail not to delight in the bound of the fawn, the fit of the swallow, the majestic sail of the sea-gull. Surely it would not be wise to ignore in the movements of our own marvellous human frame a source of greater aesthetic pleasure still. A dancer who is worthy to be called an artist will find out all kinds of subtle graces and delicacies of movement, and set them before us with all simplicity and refinement. There is in such movement a beauty which should be connected with none but pure and wholesome thoughts—a beauty given us to be enjoyed, which, if we use it rightly, will lighten our hearts and recreate our minds, and so make us fitter to deal with the more serious duties and difficulties of life.—Tinsley's Magazine

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Collateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

Visitors to the city and pleasure-seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to 1 TOEPLITZ, 235 Dupont Street second door from Sutter. Work first-class and prices reasonable.

Go to the "P. CEN (EMER) KID (GLOVE) STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Kearny) and select your Gloves.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new waterrooms opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect these of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

The leading establishment on the Pacific Coast for ALL STYLES OF ENGRAVING, will be found at 120 POST ST. The proprietors, Messrs. Geo. M. Wood & Co., are prepared to execute orders for dies, monograms, visiting cards, etc., at the most reasonable rates. A large assortment of fine stationery always on hand.

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERNICO, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equaled by any in this city; and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

PHILLIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTIST'S MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Exhibitions. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

A Cautious Witness

An Englishman, who recently brought suit against a railway corporation for damages caused by an accident on the line, not only went into the witness-box well crammed, but even took his note-book with him. He referred to it so often that Sergeant Ballantine took it out of his hands, and himself introduced it in evidence while cross-examining the witness. The book contained a written account of the accident in the form of an address to the jury, interspersed with remarks, such as "Take it easy," "Don't get flurried," "Take care." These, the plaintiff candidly admitted, were to act as warnings to him in giving his evidence. Sergeant Ballantine then questioned him as to the meaning of the figures 1, 2, 3, which occurred from time to time in the note-book, and it appeared that these were intended as reminders to the witness to count three before answering any question put to him. The entry, "Never mind him," referred to the learned Sergeant himself. The success of this thoughtful gentleman—he won the suit and obtained $1,250 damages—may encourage American witnesses to adopt a similar system of notes and checks for use in the box.—Ex.

A GRANGER stood at the corner of Post Street and Montgomery, yesterday, curiously watching the peanut man, as he methodically turned the crank of his ouster. After expectantly waiting, until patience ceased to be a virtue, the unsophisticated tiller of the soil blurted out: "Hello! you feller, why don't you play nuthin'?"—Ex.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cent is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Clinton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 109 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Elks, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars, etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHURCHILL, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

OF THE SECOND SERIES

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, April 3d, 1878

At 3 o'clock, P. M.

PROGRAMME...Part First

1. March, Frederick Charles.....Bliss
2. Symphony in G minor.....Mozart
 - a. Allegro
 - b. Andante
 - c. Menuetto Allegro
 - d. Allegro Assai

Part Second

1. Overture, Flying Dutchman.....Wagner
2. Fantasia, Sonnets de Bellini.....C. Beruan Solo for Clarinetto, with Orchestral Accompaniment
Ma. JOSEFA WARA
3. Dance Macabre.....St. Saens
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! Death with cadence gay,
Heating with his heel on a tombstone gray,
Deaths at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! on his violin,
Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the will we comes cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Running, leaping high—each one in his shroud.
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! see them flitting by,
Hear the dancers bones clicking horribly!
Pst! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be,
All must now away—ock-crow bids them flee!
—HENRI CAZALIS
4. Overture, William Tell.....Rossini

Gentlemen: The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

ACT 1. THE ROYAL PALACE FROM THE BANKS OF THE TIGRIS. (By C. W. Witham.) The King's Magnificence. The Regal Court. The love of the Greek Slave, Myrrha. The Conspiracy. Departure of Sardanapalus for the Hall of Niurod in the

ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE. (By M. Strauss.) The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle BONFANTI

ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham.) Grouped on the Alabaster steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and peal follows peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equalled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvelous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King a Hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril.

ACT 4. THE DREAM OF HADES. The renewed attack. The rebels victorious. Parting of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the Immolation. The Funeral Pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the Characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

Admission as usual, One Dollar. No Extra charge for Reserved Seats

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"The Gascon," with Mr. Charles Pope as 'Artaban,' supported by Mr. Barton Hill and company, is drawing good audiences. A matinee will be given on Saturday.

Grand Opera House

Lord Byron's plays were not written for the stage; nor, if we except "Sardan-apalus," are they fitted for it; their inherent qualities assert this, and experience confirms it. They were hissed off the stage in London at a time when the re-fluent wave of public opinion was favorable to the author, and the belief generally prevailed that he had been first executed, then tried, and finally accused.

"Manfred" is the worthiest of these productions. It represents a character which, in seeking relief from the consciousness of crime, essayed in vain

"Philosophy and science, and the springs Of wonder and the wisdom of the world."

and finally dies, flinging scorn at the spirits from whom he had previously sought "oblivion, self-oblivion." "Manfred" is a play to be studied, not acted, and is destined to retain its rank as the strongest and perhaps the most powerful production of the nineteenth century. "Sar-danapalus," as an intellectual effort, is infinitely inferior to "Manfred;" it has, however, considerable merit. The author employs language with great force, and,
in this respect, it resembles his nervous prose writings. The characters are not grand, we feel some interest in 'Myrrha,' 'Zarina' and the aspiring Mede, but no deep sympathy, (unless it be sympathy of pity, certainly not of approbation) while 'Sardanapalus' provokes only contempt and disgust. And yet it is the only one of Lord Byron's plays which has been a theatrical success, the reason is obvious.
Probably no other drama gives equal scope for spectacular effect; and by this is meant not the common-place, vulgar, sensation-producing exhibitions which frequently thrust themselves upon the stage, but an effect of the highest order—the representation of people and events long since passed away.

The spectacle represented by this play is one of the most interesting in ancient history. It is that of the First Assyrian Empire, which existed for more than 1450 years, attaining its greatest power and magnificence when 'Sardanapalus' ascended the throne. Here were the great cities of Babel and Nineveh—the former with its religious strength, its quays and bridges, palaces and hanging gardens and the Temple of Belus. The play, however, involves only the latter city, but the opportunity for scenic effect could not be surpassed. The Summer Palace, the Hall of Nimrod, the Royal Galley, the Funeral Pyre, the Conflagration and vast pageantry require, and give scope to the highest powers of the artist. The present production at the Grand Opera House evinces careful study and excellent taste. The closing scene, representing the desolation which befel the empire is a master piece of scenic effect. It is probable that this drama has not been put upon the stage more completely and with better effect since it was played at Mr. Kean's benefit, at the Royal Princess Theater, in 1853.

Mr. Bangs' creation of 'Sardanapalus' is certainly interesting and exhibits powerfully many of the qualities of that character, but it differs somewhat from the histrionic character. History represents 'Sardanapalus' as the embodiment of ef-feminacy, luxury and cowardice. He discarded the sword for the distaff, passed his time in the company of women, dressed and painted like them and placed all his enjoyment in feasting, rioting and infamous pleasures. On being informed of the conspiracy against him he hid himself in the innermost part of his palace. He never deviated into manliness, but was softer and more effeminate than his female companions. He ordered two verses to be put upon his tomb, importing that he had carried with him all he had eaten and all the pleasures he had enjoyed, but left all else behind. Mr. Bangs' creation does not display this complete effeminacy; on the contrary, it shows some spasms of courage and resolution. This may, however be required by the play itself. In the introductory speech, 'Salmeneus' says

"In his effeminate heart
There is a careless courage which corruption
Has not all quenched, and lateat energies
Repress by circumstances, but not destroyed—Steeped, but now drowned, in deep voluptuousness."

At any rate this deviation from 'Sar-danapalus' true character, whether it be the design of the actor or required of him by the poet, relieves the character from being certainly exhibited in the most abject plight of which human nature is capable, besides producing sudden transitions which Mr. Bangs turns to good advantage by masterly acting.

Baldwin's Theater

Our notice of "Agnes" is crowded out on account of other matter.

Emerson's Opera House

"Joshua Whitcomb"—third week, to good houses every evening. The matinee performance tendered the dramatic profession some time ago was a good stroke of policy in the management. It laid the foundation of the present successful run.

Bush Street Theater

"Humpty - Dumpty" to good houses every evening. Grimaldi is an excellent clown, and Miss Louise Boshell enacts
'Columbine' in a very graceful and agile manner.

The Fountain

The proprietor of this popular place of amusement and refreshment saloon, has lately returned from Southern California, but still in delicate health. His effort to to give the public a knowledge of the most popular musical authors, is meeting with a reasonable measure of success.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

Levy, the cornet player, has arrived from the Sandwich Islands.

Kelly & Leon have been quite successful at the Queen's Theater, Sydney.

The steamer from Australia has brought to our shores Miss Ada Ward, the handsome English actress.

Besides her histrionic talent, Miss Ada
Ward is a reputed member of the Blue Stocking Brigade.

Mr. L. M. Bayless, the husband of Mary Gladstone has met with indifferent success in Melbourne.

Among the passengers per Zealandia were Mr. Valentine Vow, ventriloquist, and Mr. C. J. Crouse, agent of Salisbury's Tronbadours.

Miss CARO TRUE will appear in the character of 'Zoe, the Octoroon,' on Saturday evening, March 30th, at the San Jose Opera House.

MASTER LEOPOLD LICHTENBERG, the young violinist, is expected here next month. We may expect to hear him at the coming May Festival.

The dramatic profession have tendered Miss Maggie Chambers a benefit, which will be given on Sunday evening at the Grand Opera House. Bonicault's "Colleen Bawn" is underlined.

MR. RICHMOND THATCHER, the agent of Miss Ada Ward, who arrived in the Zealandia from Australia, is at the Palace, and rumor whispers that he is after Monsieur
Levy for some unsettled balance.

MISS JULIA WILSON who has so ably given the character of 'Tot,' at Emerson's Opera House, during the present run of 'Joshua Whitcomb,' was born in New York in 1860. On her first appearance in the character, about two years ago, she made a decided hit, and at once became a favorite with the public.

During the representation of "The Exiles" at the Walnut, on Friday evening of last week, as Harry Meredith in his shirt sleeves, but clothed with all the blood-thirstiness of Col. Palkine, was making his stealthy way into the "Ferryman's Hut on the Angara," in the fifth act, with murderous designs upon Max Walcott and Carcassin Howard, some excited individual in the gallery, whose sympathies of right and justice got the better of him, suddenly exclaimed at the full compass of his lungs: "Look out! He's just behind you!" This considerate warning was received with shouts of laughter, which broke out again and again, and for the moment there was a carnival of mirth both on and off the stage.—Phila. Mirror.

Napoleon's Parvenu Ideas and Gutter Aristocracy

The masquerade ball was a species of amusement much favored by Napoleon, as it afforded great facilities to the spy system. The police took care to inform themselves of the costumes which each person would assume, so that each mask was known to them. Fouché and his myrmidons were ubiquitous; no word was lost to them, and even the Emperor himself wandered through the rooms playing the exalted part of spy. Napoleon despised women; they brought soldiers into the world, and there, in his opinion, their use ended. "How many children has she?" was his question upon being introduced to a lady; he respected her according as the number was few or large. He required that all his officers should marry, and as husband and wife were frequently separated a day or two after the ceremony for many months together, and as the ladies had not usually been brought up in the most rigidly moral schools, the morality of this society is better left to the reader's imagination. Nothing more splendid, however, than this parvenu Court, gorgeous in splendor, and embellished with all that was exquisite in pictures and statuary, the spoils of the Italian campaign can be conceived. Upon being created Consul for life, Napoleon restored all the Court officers, giving them, however, new names; for example, the chamberlains were called prefet du palais;
he had his petites levees and his grand receptions, and days fixed for receiving each order of society. The costume of each was rigidly prescribed. Senators must be habited in velvet embroidered with gold, tribunes in velvet embroidered with silver, councillors of state in bright blue velvet; while the consuls were attired in scarlet embroidered with gold. Upon the establishment of the empire the ceremonials were fixed with equal rigidity;
every person, upon entering and quitting the presence, must make three distinct reverences to the Emperor, and the Empress, and to all members of the Bonaparte family, none of whom must be addressed without permission. During the theatrical representations frequently given at the Tuileries, no person was permitted to laugh, or to applaud. David, the savage Terrorist, the painter of Marat, he who offered to drink the hemlock with Robespierre, the sublime republican, de-based his genius to paint the formulary of these ceremonies, while in the album of Isabeau, still to be found in the Bibliotheque du Roi, are preserved pictures of all the costumes. A mixture of coarseness and slavish obsequiousness to the Emperor and his belongings were the distinguishing traits of Court manners. Napoleon modeled himself partly upon Augustus, partly upon Louis the Fourteenth. He caused triumphal arches to be raised, hunted at Fontainebleau, and gave magnificent fetes at Versailles; but even these were military; representations of Marengo and other great battles being their principal features. Upon his marriage with Marie-Louise he was more anxious than ever to restore the traditions of the old court, and many of the old aristocrats, who had until now held aloof, gathered around the Austrian luminary. From that time officers were not permitted to attend the assemblies in uniform; court costume was de rigueur. Inflated titles were cast about in wholesale profusion; Cambaceres, the old regicide Jacobin, was now His Serene Highness the Prince de Parme, and that spawn of the gutter, the vile Terrorist, Fouché, His Excellence the Duke d'Otrante. Even the very Sana-clottes jeered at this gutter aristocracy sprung out of itself, and England, the only power that dared, held it up to the scorn of Europe in ceaseless caricatures.—Temple Bar.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135
Montgomery Street.

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE
from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Collateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest
of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here
every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert
of classic composition, will find at The Fountain
a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8
and 12 every evening.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed
in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICCO, at 200 KAESE STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city; and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices
to suit the capacity of every purchaser

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

BUFFALO, March 17, 1878.

Ed. FOOTLIGHT:—The event of the past week has been the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company, which gave one performance on Thursday last, to a house crowded from pit to dome. The opera chosen was "Il Trovatore," in which Miss Kellogg as "Leonora," Miss Cary as "Azucena," Mr. Graff as "Maurico," and Mr. Verdi as "Count de Luna," won for themselves golden opinions. They were all in excellent voice, with the exception, perhaps, of Mr. Verdi, who was suffering from a cold; the other parts were fairly taken; the chorus was not exceptionally good; and the orchestra, though small, was better than the medium. They leave here for Syracuse, New York, Boston, Providence, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington.

Eliza Wethersby and company occupied the boards of the Academy of Music the fore part of the week, playing "Froliques" and "Cruets," sitting through the performance will just enlighten one as to the nature of the plays or plots, as well as the names will indicate; "Froliques" is not good and "Cruets" is worse. Mr. W. C. Goodwin, Jr., is the attraction; his imitation of popular actors is good.

Mr. Robert Frazer's Pantomime Combination played the balance of the week to good houses.

John A. Stevens this week in his new play, "Unknown."

Jno. C. Williamson and Miss Maggie Moore the week after in "Struck Oil."

At Shelby's Variety Theater fresh talent is announced, including Mlle. Adela Franzini, the lady velocipede rider, Ben. Gill-fole, Blanche Selwyn, Morgan Sisters, etc.

Miss Bertie LeFranc, the pedestrienne, accomplished the feat of walking 100 miles in 28 hours last Monday and Tuesday, in St. James Hall, having a few minutes to spare.

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the north and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Pigs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit trees at a reasonable cost.

Richter's Farm & Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Zig-a zig-a zig! Death with cadence gay,
Beating with his heel on a tombstone gray,
Death at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,
Zig-a zig-a zig! on his violin,
Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the willows comes cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Rumpling, leaping high—each one in his abode.
Zig-a zig-a zig! see them flitting by,
Hear the dancers bones clashing horribly!
Pst! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be,
All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee!

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.
Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.
Gentlemen.—The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action on the keys requires of the most exacting musician. We heartily commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

This evening and Saturday matinee will be the last performances of "The Gascon," which has been running during the week to fair houses. "Richard III." tomorrow evening. On Monday evening, through the medium of John E. Owens, the audience will hear a telephonic discourse in words painted by Dion Boucicault from the conception of Charles Dickens, of "Dot, or The Cricket on the Hearth."

Grand Opera House

"Sardanapalus" with magnificent costumes and scenery, still holds the boards to good houses. The "Colleen Bawn" will be given on Sunday evening at the benefit of Miss Maggie Chambers, and the profession have volunteered in sufficient numbers to fill up a most attractive programme for the occasion. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be, by general request, given next week, with new songs and plantation scenes. Monday, April 8th, "Evangeline."

Baldwin's Theater

"Agnes" continues to draw good houses. It will be followed by "One Hundred Years Old," another novelty for theatergoers. "Agnes" matinee to-morrow.

Emerson's Opera House

Our humorous friend, "Uncle Joshua," will require a new suit of clothes pretty soon, if his present good fortune continues. The majority of the audience every evening is from the class of our most substantial burghers.

Bush Street Theater

Grimaldi in his amusing tricks and gymnastics every evening. What a harvest the management would reap if the season was only Christmas! "Isn't it splendid all through!" was the critical exclamation of one of the fair patrons of "Humpty-Dumpty" as she was leaving the performance of last evening, and her verdict will be the opinion of all who visit that really good pantomime. Grimaldi seems to have an inexhaustible amount of tricks, and they are given in an easy and natural way. Miss Boshell as "Columbine" is very graceful, and her slack wire performance is the very best in that line that has ever been given here. The variety business introduced is much ahead of the usual exhibitions in that class. Matinee to-morrow.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

THE play of "Our Boys" is still running in London, where it has been played continuously at one theater for nearly four years.

MISS CORA LEOTARD is announced to appear at Pacific Hall on Saturday, March 30th, in connection with some kind of gift enterprise.

MR. J. O. BARROWS has returned to the city and is busy in the organization of an immense attraction for his benefit on Sunday, April 7th.

"MY LAST FRANK" is the title of a small volume from the pen of Miss Ada Ward, bearing the imprint of New Zealand Times office, Wellington. It is a story of an episode in the life of the authoress.

THE Australasian speaks in very complimentary terms of the 'Lady Macbeth' of Miss Ada Ward, giving her credit for an original conception of the character, presumably more in conformity to Shakespeare's idea.

MISS BESSIE TURNER, of "The Celebrated Beecher Case," is playing in Collier's Celebrated Case Company, under the stage name of Beta Avery. We are willing to bet a very large amount that she will eventually find her way to San Francisco.

A SELECT programme has been arranged for the benefit of Miss Maggie Chambers on Sunday evening. We may look for the "Colleen Bawn" being given in an unexceptionable style, considering the first-class talent underlined in the cast. We trust the attendance will be worthy of the occasion.

JUST previous to the rise of the curtain last Wednesday night, at the California, there occurred a pleasant little act which was not down on the bills, viz.: the presentation of a handsome gold locket to Capt. B. K. Hodges, by his boys, as a mark of their esteem and respect. Mr. Edwin Ford made a short but effective presentation speech, to which the surprised recipient fittingly replied.

THE Hawaiian Gazette of March 13th, gives a short sketch of John Henry Jack, then playing an engagement at the Royal Hawaiian Theater, Honolulu, and speaks of him as a good actor, and patriot with a large soul under his jacket. Of all the pieces given the play of "East Lynne" appears to have made the greatest impression on the Kanakas—so much so that a Royal request was issued for a repetition. Jack is in raptures with the climate and would like to tarry another month, but his Australian engagement places this beyond his reach.

PIPER'S OPERA HOUSE re-opened last evening to an attendance which must have cheered the heart of its enterprising manager. Long before the curtain rose every seat in the house was occupied, and the aisles were filled with chairs, while far to the rear those who had come late were to be seen standing in deep ranks around the house. The attraction which brought together this great audience was the first appearance of Madame Rentz' Female Minstrels and Mabel Santley's Burlesque Troupe. The company had been liberally advertised in advance, and Virginia City anticipated a rich and rare treat. The audience was not disappointed. The entertainment is something novel in its kind, and must not be judged by the severe rules which are applied to the higher ranks of dramatic art. Its object is to please, and create fun, and this object is fully served, as the frequent bursts of applause amply testified. Miss Ella Love has a sweet voice and gave the gem of the evening, the beautiful "Chaconne," in a manner which secured an encore. She and her sister, too, in their jig took the audience by storm. The trapeze performance of Rosita Leonie is one of the finest and most daring ever given on the coast. The performance of Viola Clifton is noteworthy for the rapidity of her changes of costume, and Miss Montague has a pleasing voice, capable of better usage than she makes of it. Nothing particular need be said of other performers, except that they contribute acceptably to make up an entertainment which is very enjoyable. The troupe will perform every evening this week, and at the matinees on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons.—Gold Hill Evening News, March 26th.

WHERE's that fellow that asked us some time ago, "why the girls should persist in wearing red skirts?" Let him barken unto this from the Danville Intelligencer. "Some girls in Latrobe were attacked by rattlesnakes, and frightened them away by flaunting their red petticoats. Dear, dear, why didn't Eve think of that?" There, now!

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

Theatricals in New Zealand

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Since I last wrote you theatrical matters have not improved in this colony, and there are a great many actors walking around doing nothing. The Italian Opera Company and the Soldene Opera Bouffes Company have been doing big business everywhere they have been, and the result is, that theatrical companies have been knocked out of employment, or have had to clear out to the small country towns. The Italian Company is now playing in Auckland, at million prices, and to crowded houses, while Emily Soldene and her company have been likewise attracting large audiences at Dunedin, Christchurch, and Wellington, where they now are.

"The Great Ben. Allah," an American illusionist and ventriloquist, has been performing and holding "gift distribution" at Wellington. Business not encouraging, and Ben. not nearly as good a ventriloquist as E. D. Davies.

Harry Eastwood, formerly agent for Batchelder's Panorama, has been appointed custodian of the new theater in Wellington, which will be opened shortly.

Tom Mugitts and his company terminate the season at the Princess Theater, Wellington, to-night. The house will be shortly re-opened for a series of variety entertainments.

Bostwick Reid, champion swordsman and Scotch athlete, is making the town of New Zealand and doing moderately well. He will probably accompany Cooper & Bailey's Circus to South America, after they go the rounds of New Zealand. They are expected at Dunedin from Adelaide in a few weeks.

Mr. W. C. Dillon, son of Charles Dillon, tragedian, has become lessee of the Theater Royal, Wellington.

Mr. Charles J. Crouse, business agent for Salisbury's Tronbadours, leaves by this mail for San Francisco. The Tronbadours are playing to big business at Christchurch.

Sothern's son is at present fulfilling an engagement at the Queen's Theater, Dunedin under Mr. J. L. Hall's management.

G. W. Rockefeller's U. S. Minstrels have been making lots of money. They are now at the Gaiety Theater, Christchurch.

Mr. J. B. Steele and Mrs. Walter Hill are the principals in a company which inaugurated a new season at the Princess Theater, Dunedin, on Feb. 25th.

Messrs. Howard and Walton have taken a company over to Wanganui, where they are doing a fair share of business.

Charles Wheatleigh left for Melbourne some time ago.

THE COINAGE OF ENGLAND, although it has suffered less than that of any of the older countries, has still undergone great debasement, which has begotten misery and trouble enough to make her experience of great value. At the time of the Norman Conquest, the silver or money pound weighed twelve ounces, the system of coinage being the same as that of Charlemagne, and it was continued untouched until the year 1300, when the standard was tampered with by Edward I. By increasing the number of shillings made from a pound, he set a pernicious example which was followed only too well, so that in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, 54 shillings instead of 20 were counted out of the pound weight of silver. Up to the reign of Henry VIII., although the weight was decreased the sterling fineness was not debased; but that eminent head of the Church, after dissipating the immense wealth which he received from his father, resorted to the most disgraceful means to supply his riot and extravagance. He so adulterated and degraded the silver coinage that the pound sterling contained but four ounces of silver, £28s. of it being equivalent to the pound sterling of five hundred years before. Under the reigns of his children, Edward VI., Mary and Elizabeth, the fineness of the coin was gradually restored and its degradation arrested, so that it was the boast of Elizabeth that she "had conquered now that monster that so long had devoured her people." The coinage of England has had nothing further to endure at the hands of her princes.—E. H. Le and in Popular Science Monthly for March.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

BIERSTADT, the artist, once proposed to Dr. Mary Walker. He proposed that she get out of his studio, and she agreed.

THE man who casually dropped in at a blacksmith's shop and sat down on a piece of white-hot iron didn't leave a very good impression behind him. He took it with him.

MR. JOSEPH JEFFERSON has found leisure in the intervals of his theatrical work, to paint three pictures for the Spring exhibitions abroad. They have just departed—one for the Paris Salon, one for the Royal Academy, and one for the French Gallery in Pall Mall.

IN the Auburn prison choir the first tenor is a guarder, while the bass and soprano are merely burglars. This bears out what we have previously remarked about amateur tenors.—Buff. Exp. There is nothing unusual about it. We know plenty of tenors who murder everything they lay their hands on; and lots of basses and sopranos who are constantly breaking in where they have no business.—Phila. Evening Bulletin.

"I HAD more money than he to carry on the suit," said a very mean individual who had just won a lawsuit over a poor neighbor, "and that's what had the advantage of him. Then I had much better counsel than he, and there I had the advantage of him. And his family was all while the suit was pending, so he could not attend to it, and there I had the advantage of him again. But then, Brown is a very decent sort of a fellow after all." "Yes," said the listener, "and that's where he had the advantage of you."

'CHEAP' OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No 135 Montgomery Street

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Collateral Bank), or corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

Visit at the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families meet here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

The "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Dittcheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICCO, at 230 KEARNY STREET, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of his fine work he had on exhibition for sale were of the most elaborate character. In design of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser

GOSSIP FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT

Robert Heller is playing to fair paying houses at the old 5th Ave. Theater. His programme is an excellent one.

"The Exiles," at the Broadway Theater, has been improved very materially since its first night and runs very smoothly, to the largest business in the city.

Robson and Crane are still the attraction at the Park Theater, in their farcical comedy of "Our Bachelors," and the probabilities are that their stay will be prolonged beyond the original time.

Mr. Henderson, of the Eagle Standard Theater, has shown himself to be an excellent caterer of the legitimate in having engaged such artists as John E. Owens, Maggie Mitchell and others who will follow.

"Sullivan's Christmas" has been the success of the past week at Harrigan & Hart's cosy theater to large houses. Harrigan & Hart are excellent comedians, authors and composers, and their name is a fortune at this theater. Mr. M. W. Hawley is the Manager.

The entertainment given this week at Tony Pastor's Theater is probably the best yet presented. The handsome Richmond Sisters, Charles S. Rogers and Mattie Vickers, the Kernells, Irene Worrell, Niles & Ryan, Frank Bush, Snow Brothers, and a long list of good performers are keeping the audience in a constant state of merriment. Wm. Hayle and Tony Pastor in his comical song of "Turn off the Gas at the Meter."

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already got out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their homes built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars, etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Solo for Clarinet, with Orchestral Accompaniment
Mr. JOSEPH WIND
3. Dance Macabre.....St. Saens

Zig-a-zig-a-zig! Death with cadence gay,
Beating with his heel on a tombstone gray,
Death at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! on his violin.

Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the wallows comes cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Running, leaping high—each one in his shroud.

Zig-a-zig-a-zig! see them flitting by,
Hear the dancers bones clashing horribly!

Pat! the dance is o'er, a sudden though it be;
All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee!
—HERALD CAZALIS
4. Overture, William Tell.....Rossini

ACT 1. THE ROYAL PALACE FROM THE BANKS OF THE TIGRIS. (By C. W. Witham.) The King's Magnificence. The Royal Court. The love of the Greek Slave, Myrrha. The Conspiracy. Departure of Sardanapalus for the Hall of Ninrod in the

ROYAL GALLEY

ACT 2. THE SUMMER PALACE. (By M. Strauss.) The magnanimity of the King. The Grand Assyrian Festival, introducing Grand Ballet, led by Mlle. Bonfanti

ACT 3. THE HALL OF NIMROD. The Festival Continued. (By C. W. Witham.) Grouped on the Alabaster steps recline the ladies and their attendants. When the feast is at its height, and as a toast is about to be drunk, "To the god, Sardanapalus," a vivid flash of lightning illuminates the entire scene, and is followed by a terrific crash of thunder, which seems to shake the place to its foundation. All in attendance, apparently paralyzed, crouch down in great fear, and peal follows peal in rapid succession. By a skillful arrangement of lights, the atmosphere of the stage appears to be highly impregnated with sulphurous vapor. The lightning and thunder effects have seldom if ever before been equalled in their close approach to nature. The effect is marvelous. The outbreak of the rebellion. The King a Hero. The repulse of the rebels. Grand Tableau. The end of a day of peril

ACT 4. THE DREAM OF HADES. The renewed attack. The rebels victorious. Parting of the King and Queen. The fatal news. The preparation for the immolation. The Funeral Pyre. The lovers die together. The last of the race becomes extinct forever. Grand Conflagration. Over 300 people engaged in the Characteristic Marches, Battle Scenes, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME
California Theater

Mr. Charles Pope as 'Richard III' this evening. On Monday evening Mr. John E. Owens will commence a short season in Dickens' "Cricket on the Hearth," as 'Caleb Plummer.'

Grand Opera House

Byron's "Sardanapalus" will be withdrawn after this evening's performance. To-morrow the benefit of Miss Maggie Chambers will afford theater-goers an opportunity of seeing 'Myles Na Coppaleen' assumed by the beneficiary, probably the first time in California that a woman has taken the character. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be re-produced on Monday.

Baldwin's Theater

"Agnes" is meeting with a success equal to that of "A Celebrated Case." It will be continued till further notice.

Bush Street Theater

The present "Humpty-Dumpty" company is one of the best pantomime troupes we have ever had here and it is running to good houses. Matinee to-day.

Emerson's Opera House

"Uncle Joshua Whitcomb" still continues the attraction here.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

The Rentz Females are at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City.

MARY ANDERSON is announced to play at Omaha this evening.

Dumas' "Joseph Balsamo" has proved a failure in Paris.

"Our Boys" has had the longest run in London of any play on record; next to it comes Sheridan's "School for Scandal."

MAGGIE MITCHELL has not met with success in "Mignon." She is more at home in the less pathetic part of "Fanchon."

THE "Ne'er-do-weel" of Gilbert, lately produced in London, is spoken of as a dull comedy. Mrs. John Wood succeeds it at the Olympic in "Faint Heart Never Won Fair Lady."

ST. L. BARRY has made a tremendous hit at "Gaspard," the miser, in "Les Cloches de Corneville" at the London Folly. John Hyslop plays the 'Marquis' in the same opera.

THE next Herold Matinee will be given at the Metropolitan Temple next Wednesday. A very select programme has been arranged for the occasion which will be found under Amusements.

THE Dramatic and Musical Mirror tells us that "success on the Pacific Coast and success in the critical Atlantic States is altogether a different thing." The proposition may be inverted and come out all right.

THE following note addressed to the manager of Drury Lane Theater is preserved in London, as a dramatic curiosity:

PALOR OF THE RED BULL, 6 o'clock.
SIR: Your puff Mackready can play for you this evening, for I am dimmed if you get any play out of me. His insufferable conceit galls me. An ugly swab. Yours in rage, EDMUND KEAN.

MARIE ROZE has made a most favorable impression in the East in "La Favorita," she is spoken of as a very handsome woman, knowing how to use her good looks to best advantage, possessing a voice under perfect control and of good quality, more especially in the middle register. Those who have seen and remember the triumphs of Grisi in the same opera, will be able to form an opinion of the talent of Marie Roze.

MISS MAGGIE CHAMBERS, whose personations of Irish character at the California Theater are always pleasantly recalled by theater-goers, presents an unusually attractive bill for her benefit at Grand Opera House to-morrow evening. Bonciani's romantic and pathetic Irish drama of the "Colleen Bawn" will be given with a cast that has probably never been equalled in this city. Miss Ellie Wilton, one of our most popular and deserving actresses, assumes, for the first time in San Francisco, the role of "Eily O'Connor." The sweetness and gentleness of the simple and loving Irish Colleen, will be interpreted with all the grace which distinguishes Miss Wilton's assumptions of pathos and ingenuousness. Mr. Harry Edwards, Mr. Barrows, Mr. Billings, Mr. Grismer and Mr. Walter Hannan sustain important characters in the play. Miss Chambers on this occasion will appear as 'Myles Na Coppaleen.'

Miss Chambers has always been particularly happy in her dialect delineations and will assuredly present an artistic and clever portraiture of the happy-hearted 'Myles.' Miss Annie Pixley appears in a budget of popular songs, and Miss Louise Sylvester in the protean barletta of "In and Out of Place." It will be noticed that the volunteers represent all of our theaters and their efforts cannot fail to make an unexceptionable and enjoyable evening's entertainment.

THE Graphic makes public the following first epistle from a hazed student:

"PRINCESTOWN, March 12, 1878. Dear Father:—Your valuable letter on foreordination and predestination has been received, but to tell the truth, my dear father, I have been lately occupied with the great concerns involved in protecting my own body from the handling of certain of my youthful fellow beings. I find here, I endeavored at first, with all my strength, to turn my right cheek when they slapped the left, and heap coals of fire upon the heads of my enemies, but when they also shaved one side of my head and kalsomined my body with whitewash, to say nothing of plastering me all over with caricatures sent from the Graphic, my evangelical spirit broke down, took flight and temporarily departed. The spirit was willing, but the flesh was weak. Dear father, for aught I know, I may have slain an adversary, for I poked one Soph in the eye with a club, and I fear that the contents of the shut-gun, whose trigger in a moment of sinful excitement I pulled, must have peppered someone of Belial, judging from the generous use of profane language I heard immediately after. However, we prevailed over the enemy, as did Joshua, the son of Nim, over the heathen who would have hazed him if they could. I find in historical Scripture much precedent for taking up arms against our enemies. Moses slew an Egyptian. David and Jonathan were men of war. Saul was a fighter. We must fight or perish. Send me some powder and shot, the copy of Baxter's "Saints' Rest" you promised me, grandfather's sword of Bunker Hill, 29 cartridges, and a copy of the "Thirty-nine Articles." If we had a small mountain howitzer to place on the roof of the chapel it would contribute materially to strengthen our position.

Your affectionate son,
JONATHAN CALVIN EDWARDS."

PLUNDER

An invalid Frenchman who hired a horse every morning early from a livery-stable particularly desired the hostler to see that the horse had nothing to eat before going out. "Because," he remarked, "monsieur le docteur he say I mus' tak' ze gentle exercise on ze empty stomach."

Moody tries to prevent the sale of his portraits, because he fears that the people will regard him as a participant in the profits, and the dealers who follow him from place to place have been unable to get good pictures. One of them confesses that he has sold thousands of photographs of a man who looks like Moody.

MR. LOCKE has somewhere made a distinction between a madman and a fool: a fool is he that from right principles makes a wrong conclusion; but a madman is one who draws a just inference from false principles. Thus the fool who cut off the fellow's head that lay asleep, and hid it, and then waited to see what he would say when he awoke and missed his head-piece, was in the right in the first thought, that a man would be surprised to find such an alteration in things since he fell asleep, but he was a little mistaken to imagine he could awake at all after his head was cut off.

A DISTINGUISHED scientific savan has lately discovered that all the ills which "people of active minds" are heir to come from cold feet, and cold feet come from overheating the brain with excessive intellectual labor. When an intellectual person sits down to study his brain begins to work, and the blood at once begins to rush up from his corns to his hair. His brain gets hot, and his feet get cold, and at last his head gets such a pressure on it from the blood it has drawn out of his toes that one of two things will happen—either the blood must be coaxed into his feet or his brain will become explosive.

An ornament worn in the cap of 'Hamlet' by Edmund Kean has had curious fortunes. When the relics of this great actor were dispersed, an admirer bought this one, and the central paste brilliant was replaced by a real diamond, and the ornament converted into a brooch, which, after being worn by its possessor for many years, was lost in a horse car. A poor woman found and offered it for sale, but the wary jeweler, having happened to test one of the paste stones surrounding the real diamond, judged its value accordingly and would not buy. The owner offering a handsome reward, the Kean brooch was at last recovered.

GRANT is in Greece. He was escorted into the Piræus by three iron-clads, and has generally had a good time. The day after his arrival he received a deputation of Athenian statesmen, who waited on him to present him with an address of welcome. The distinguished guest listened respectfully to the remarks of the spokesman, and then nudged his accomplished son.

"Jesse," he whispered, "tip 'em some of their own language. Where's all your Greek? Jump in."

"I don't want to, father," pleaded the young man.

"What did I pay for your education for then?" was the angered parent's reply, "go on along: don't you hear what the gentleman's saying to you—'Boulenontrou biblanton bubelomenai hutsensouni kipsoun peisilenthau'."

"Yes, papa," responded Jesse meekly, "but he's only fooling you."

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warerooms opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to F. TOEPLITZ, 225 Dupont Street, second door from Sutter. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

The attendance of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely: The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bunnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, and no description could do them justice.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

PHILLIP OPPENHEIM, successor to Burner & Oppenheim, has removed to 219 Post street, where a full line of ARTISTS' MATERIALS, Brushes, Frames, Paints, Oils, Varnishes, etc., can be found. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on exhibition and for sale. Remember, 219 Post.

Those who love their Coffee uniformly PURE, nice, DELICIOUS and WHOLESOME, are respectfully invited to try our Pure Compressed Article. We desire that the proof of its quality be a trial. French Differences

A CORRESPONDENT of the Pall Mall Gazette, writing from Paris under date of March 3d, says:

"M. Paul de Cassagnac has just fought his fifteenth duel, and comes out of it victoriously, after his wont. M. Thomson, a brother deputy, called him 'grotesque;' he retorted with the epithet 'insolent,' and the upshot was that M. Thomson was run through the neck, though happily the injury was not serious enough to debar him from shaking hands with his antagonist before they separated. One might here indulge in some commonplace on the frequency of violent scenes in the French Chamber, and on the puerile folly of the armed encounters which follow them. This is the third duel between deputies since the opening of the session in November, and one was nearly taking place between Senators, when M. Batbie dispatched his seconds to the Duc d'Audiffret-Pasquier. It is obvious that such squabbles do not tend to enhance the dignity of parliamentary proceedings, nor to cool the ardor of party strife, but if it be argued that they denote any degeneracy in the modes of French political warfare, this is going too far. The tone of French debating has become much calmer than it used to be. The members are habitually more courteous to one another than they were a generation ago. Even when they break out into personalities, these are exempt from the savage virulence which marked the speeches delivered during the palmy days of French debating under Louis Philippe. I was not present at last Friday's debate, but I have often heard M. Paul de Cassagnac speak, and have always noted the consternation which his gamineries produced even among his own friends. The other day M. Raulier was almost beside himself with impatience, and Baron Haussman kept making signs to the orator to leave the tribune. The young deputy for Toulon disregarded these appeals, and spoke on sturdily for three hours; but his swaggering style and boist'rous rudeness are not in keeping with the spirit of these times, and when they do not provoke amusement, which is their usual fate, they excite only disgust."

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Colonial Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

Visitors to the city and pleasure-seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

Go to the "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your gloves.

The leading establishment on the Pacific Coast for ALL STYLES OF ENGRAVING, will be found at 120 POST ST. The proprietors, Messrs. Geo. M. Wood & Co., are prepared to execute orders for dies, monograms, visiting cards, etc., at the most reasonable rates. A large assortment of fine stationery always on hand.

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HEHRMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest innovations in business cards, to be had of L. DeLonguey & Co., 35 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 318 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

The "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 111 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Italian style.

A Fortunate Cook

Some interesting stories sometimes come to light in regard to the Italian lotteries. A cook at Rome once dreamed of a certain number, which he immediately bought at the lottery; the number won, and he received 100,000 francs, upon which he gave up his position as cook, and becoming a gentleman of elegant leisure, proceeded to dissipate the fortune as fast as possible. He accomplished the feat in two years, and returned to his profession of cook. Within a year he dreamed of another number, bought it, and won this time a still larger amount. Having in his former experience become tolerably conversant with the science of spending money he was enabled to finish his task this time in eighteen months. Again he became a cook, this time to an American gentleman temporarily staying in Rome. One day the man came to him, and announced his intention to leave. "But you will stay until next month, when I shall break up, as I intend going to Naples?" "No," "Why not?" "I shall cook no more." "What is the matter?" "Nothing; but I do not need to cook now; I am a man of fortune." He had dreamed again, bought the number, won again, and had half a million at his banker's.

Du CHAILLU mentions an African chief who had three hundred wives, yet it only costs him three cents a year to dress each one of them. This is not so very remarkable. We can pick out a man in our town who has only one wife, and it doesn't cost him a cent a year to dress her. On the contrary, it costs her about one hundred and fifty dollars a year to dress him.—Ex.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FARMER HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the willows comes cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Running, leaping high—each one in his shroud,
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! see them flitting by,
Hear the dancers bones clicking horribly!
Pat! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be;
All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee!

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:

Gentlemen,—The artists of the Kellogg Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

One of Voegtlin's masterpieces will be introduced this evening—a fairy transformation scene—in the Dickens-Boucicault drama of "Dot, or the Cricket on the Hearth." The character of "Caleb Plummer," assumed by Mr. John E. Owens, is reported as being one of his best conceptions.—Nous Verrons.

Grand Opera House

The drama of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be re-produced this evening, and continue during the week. On Monday, April 8th, Rice's Opera Bouffe Extravaganza, "Evangeline," which has had so much success in the East wherever played, will be placed on the stage, and in a style unequalled by any previous production. A novel feature in the piece will be "The Lone Fisherman," who is a silent partner in the performance.

Baldwin's Theater

Second week of "Agnes." Levy has been engaged, and will, entre acts, execute cornet solos.

Emerson's Opera House

The success of Denman Thompson and company is more complete than they could reasonably have anticipated. "Joshua Whitcomb" enters on the fourth week, with no apparent falling off in public favor. What effect the Owens' engagement at the California will have on a continuance of success, remains to be seen.

Bush Street Theater

The eccentric tricks of Grimaldi, in "Humpty-Dumpty," have awakened public curiosity, and this place of amusement is well filled nightly. The performance is the best of its kind, and being a novelty, will continue for some time a prominent attraction.

The Fountain

This ever popular place of entertainment continues to enjoy its full share of public patronage. The evening concerts are well patronized, and the orchestral selections are chosen with good judgment from the works of our most popular composers.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, ETC.

THE "New Cuckoo Polka" is the title of Bodecker's latest contribution.

GOVERNOR LATHAM's collection of paintings sold in New York, March 25th, realized $101,325.

SIGNOR GARIBOLDI will sing an aria from Verdi's "Atila" at the Coursen Benefit, Platt's Hall, to-morrow evening.

"A TOUR ROUND THE WORLD" will be given at the Grand Opera House next Sunday evening, at the benefit of Mr. J. O. Barrows.

To-morrow evening, at Platt's Hall, a benefit will be given Miss Ellen Coursen. A host of our first-class talent has volunteered for the occasion.

FOREPAUGH's Circus has started on a successful season. The performance is spoken of as being excellent, and especially the bareback riding of Frank Melville.

At the coming May Festival there will be a chorus of at least 2,000 voices, and the orchestra will contain over 100 performers. Season tickets for sale at Sherman & Hyde's; price, $5.00.

HEROLD's next matinee will be given on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Joseph Wrba is underlined for a clarinet solo, and the celebrated "Dance Macabre" of St. Caens will be given as part of the programme.

We have received the April number of The Sunbeam, an amateur monthly of this city, now in its second year. It is a very creditable production, and we wish success to its enterprising young publishers.

GOSSIP FROM N. Y. DRAMATIC NEWS, MARCH 23d

Bache and Gardner, of Niblo's, have accepted another "American play," by one Elliott Dodd, called "Niaforica," a play on the world California. Mr. Gardner, before he accepted the piece, insisted there should be a moon in it. He believes it doesn't so much matter what the play is, so long as there is a good effective moon playing on the shimmering waters, and that about ends his ideas of management. By the way, Leverna has been fired out of the management, and John McCool goes back.

Among the English actresses who are coming over next season are: Ada Cavendish, Agnes Robertson, and very probably Adelaide Neilson, who is said to have made in England $12,000 this season, against $72,000 she made in this country last season. No wonder she wants to come back.

"A Celebrated Case" continues at the Union Square to large audiences. Mr. Clarke continues his artistic performances at the Fifth Avenue to very good business. "The Heir at Law" is in preparation, and we shall have an opportunity of seeing his "Dr. Pangloss," which the English considered so excellent. Let us hope there will be a cast worthy of the star. Robson and Crane are still at the Park Theater playing "Our Bachelors." Another play of the same stamp, called "Our Aldermen," is in preparation, and Mr. Harley Merry is exerting himself.

The opera season at Booth's was inaugurated on Monday evening, under the happiest auspices, i. e., a full attendance of the most fashionable character, a remarkably fine performance, and a general feeling of success. There is no doubt that by this performance Messrs. Strakosch and Duff have assured the prosperity of their season of three weeks. The able impresario wisely chose "Aida" as the best work wherein to test the full measure of his strength with the public. It is but just to say that this great work never had a better rendition in this country. Had Mr. Strakosch been able to give as satisfactory a performance when the opera was first given in 1873, it would have attained more popularity. What was then lacking was the star, which is now supplied in Kellogg, for Miss Cary had then not reached the height of her now well-founded reputation. In all other respects the performance was fully equal to that of years ago.

Musicians waver between "Rigoletto" and "Aida," as to which deserves the palm among Verdi's works. To our mind there can be no comparison. One is a perfect exemplar of the Italian School, but in "Aida," the maturer judgment of Verdi had seized the beauties to be found in the German School, and he made the happiest combination of the two that can be found in any existing work. The massive harmonic orchestral and choral effects are combined with a continuous flow of the sweetest melody. There may be no one concerted moreau equal to that marvel of imagination, the Rigoletto quartette, but the ensemble of the first and second acts are grander and more powerful than anything in the earlier work. The Egyptian hymn, which runs throughout the work, is a majestic, warlike refrain, while Verdi never wrote anything more plaintive than Aida's Amor Fatal.

The duet of the third act only falls short of that of "The Illeguents," to which "Aida" may be compared in many respects, and the finale is exquisite in pathos.

Some Common Mistakes

A story has found its way into print to the effect that a fashionable young lady in Brooklyn, while witnessing a recent performance of "Hamlet," turned to her companion and asked: "Which is Shakespeare, anyway?" When told that Shakespeare was merely the author of the play, she shook the diamonds in her ears reflectively and added: "Oh, I thought he was one of the actors!" Some natural yet erroneous impressions may be drawn from this exaggerated bit of satire. The first of these is that an actor, even when he treads the highest walks of art, is forced to appear before a good many persons who are altogether unable to appreciate his work. Now it may be exceedingly discouraging to play to empty benches, but it must be even more discouraging to play to blockheads. Not that the Brooklyn young lady is to be counted a blockhead—oh, no! She is simply the type of a numerous class—a class which patronizes the stage, and spends a considerable sum of money for books and paintings, and so lives in the belief that it encourages literature, art and the drama. So far as the mighty dollar goes, this belief is well founded. But the idea must, at times, intrude itself upon the mind of the true artist that there is some higher motive in art than money. If he be an actor, the desire will be as strong as natural to play before appreciative auditors. Even diamonds in pink ears will not always compensate for such inquiries as "Which is Shakespeare, anyway?" A second and seemingly obvious conclusion to be drawn from the story is this: The theater gets its support from all classes of society, and to be popular, nowadays, it must not be too deep. Here is the real secret of the flood of gush and gore, platitudes and powder, which has swept over the stage. The playwright of experience will tell you that good work is not wanted; high art is nonsense; fine writing counts for nothing. He will point triumphantly to "Mulberry Sellers" and "The Mighty Dollar," and explain to you that this is the kind of stuff you must produce if you would make a successful play. This may seem reasonable enough, and no doubt the experienced playwright is himself fully convinced of the soundness of his own logic. But, as a matter of fact, he makes a most serious mistake. So too does the actor who fumes and frets under the belief that his audiences are not able to perceive the greatness of his performance. The real moral which ought to be drawn from this Brooklyn girl's remark is that stupidity is so rare an exception among American theater-goers that it at once becomes conspicuous. Let the actor play his prettiest, and he will find that all the merit he possesses will be discovered by the audience. And as for the dramatist's striving to write down to what he calls the level of public taste, let him make one honest effort to write up to that level. If he reaches it, his success will be assured.—N. Y. Clipper.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mini employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

PLUNDER

Just note the difference. A man grabs quilts and sheets at one clutch, yanks them down and dives into bed. A woman carefully turns down each cover, smooths off the pillow, and slides under the sheet as neatly as she puts away her latest bonnet.

A LONDON hostess apologized to Count Schouvsloff the other night at a political party for the stupidity of a servant who had announced him as Count Shuffle-off; but as the Austrian and German representatives were announced immediately after under the names of Beast and Monster, the Russian diplomat passed on smiling.

A MEDICAL restaurant has been lately established in London, on the principle that disease can generally be cured by a special system of diet, and that they are caused chiefly by improper food. On the entrance of a visitor, a physician asks him regarding his ailments. His meal is then prepared, and he is allowed to eat no more than is presented to him. At the close he is dismissed to smoke a medicated cigar and sip coffee or camomile tea, or whatever beverage may be considered advisable.

SEVER PASHA, according to the semi-official Vienna Politische Correspondenz, told a Greek banker a few days ago that as Turkey had lost her European possessions, all she could hope to retain in that part of the world was a footing at Constantinople under Russian patronage. But she was still strong enough to aspire to the renovation of her Asiatic Caliphate, and in the pursuit of this new policy would have to constitute herself the enemy of England and the antagonist of the Empress of India. What, then, could suit her better than to make common cause with Russia in Asia? The English would soon learn that if Turkey needed English support in Europe, England cannot dispense with Turkish help in Asia.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Collateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Famale Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

Go to the "P. CENTEMER" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 8 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary), and select your Gloves.

The leading establishment on the Pacific Coast for ALL STYLES OF ENGRAVING, will be found at 130 POST ST. The proprietors, Messrs. Geo. M. Wood & Co., are prepared to execute orders for dies, monograms, visiting cards, etc., at the most reasonable rates. A large assortment of fine stationery always on hand.

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERRMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

ILLUSTRATED ADVERTISING CARDS, all styles. Over 500 pictorial designs. All the latest sensations in business cards, to be had of L. DeRocera & Co., 35 Post St., San Francisco. Send for Catalogue.

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 318 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

The "P. CENTEMER" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114½ Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and sent in the latest Parisian style.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with inferior in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICSON, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewels, he could not be equaled by any in this city; and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purse-bearer.

E. BUTTERICK & Co's Spring Patterns, the most reliable, stylish and popular. Agency 124 Post Street. Send stamp for Catalogue.

Wonderful Curiosity

E. Hicks Hayhurst, who represents the Sixteenth Ward so ably in Councils, is a great scientist, and also a great wit. The other day, meeting Selectman King, he stopped him, and in the most serious manner said: "Uncle Sammy, I've got to tell you that I last evening saw a most wonderful anatomical curiosity. Most wonderful." "Ah, indeed! What was that?" asked Sammy. "A young man with two heads on his shoulders." "Gracious!" exclaimed Sammy, "why that's almost equal to the Siamese twins." "It would be," said Hicks, "if it were not for one drawback." "And what is that?" asked the now greatly interested gentleman from the Eleventh. "Dam't, one of them was his girl's," and then Hicks went on to quote from Shakespeare, but Sammy had had enough.

SOME years ago, when Macready was performing in Chicago, he was unfortunate enough to offend one of the actors. This person who was cast for 'King Claudius,' in 'Hamlet,' resolved to pay off the star for many supposed offenses. So, in the last scene, as 'Hamlet' stabbed the usurper, that monarch reeled forward, and after a most spasmodic finish, stretched himself out precisely in the place 'Hamlet' required for his own death. Macready, much annoyed, whispered, "Die further up the stage, sir." The monarch lay insensible; upon which, in a still louder voice, 'Hamlet' growled, "Die further up the stage, sir." Hereon, 'Claudius,' sitting up, observed, "I believe I'm king here, and I'll die where I please."

ADVERTISERS

known as "Patent Outsides," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells have had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Death at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,
Zig-a-zig-a-zag! on his violin.

Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the willows comes cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Knocking, leaping high—each one in his abroad.

Zig-a-zig-a zig! see them flitting by,
Hear the dancers bones clicking horribly!

Pat! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be:
All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee!

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg-Gary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is as pure and sympathetic that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"Dot, or the Cricket on the Hearth," with John E. Owens as 'Caleb Plummer,' drew a good house. Mr. Owens was warmly welcomed and heartily applauded throughout the evening by an appreciative audience. The play itself is one of Chas. Dickens' dramatizations, and by its very simplicity appeals directly to the human heart, and interpreted as it is, by a star like Owens, is a treat every lover of good good acting ought to enjoy. The poor Toymaker's Home, in the second act, and the transformation scenes were well put on the stage and elicited much applause. Taken altogether it was a most enjoyable performance. Same bill to-night.

Grand Opera House

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" was revived last night to a good house. In the present cast Miss Ada Deaves assumes the character of 'Topsy' and our old acquaintance, 'Marks' the lawyer, has been assigned to Mr. L. Belmore, the rest of the principal characters in the cast remain the same as when originally produced. The Jubilee Singers continue to be a prominent feature in the drama, and with the beautiful scenery our theater-goers are already familiar. On Monday, April 8th, the Evangeline Company will make their first bow to a San Francisco audience.

Baldwin's Theater

This hijon place of amusement has at last on its boards a company who has made a most favorable public impression. If the rest of the repertoire be equal to 'A Celebrated Case' and 'Agnes,' the management will have cause to be perfectly well satisfied with the public patronage.

Emerson's Opera House

Those of our amusement seekers who neglect to interview "Uncle Joshua Whitcomb," during his present stay in this city, will miss a most enjoyable entertainment. The dress circle of this small theater is comfortably packed every evening and there is nobody seen to make a move homeward until the curtain falls on the last act.

Bush Street Theater

Nick Roberts' "Humpty-Dumpty" Company started on their second week to a good house and deservedly so, for no actor in the United States can be found a company of that character, where each individual member is so efficient as this company has proved to be. Grimaldi, as 'Humpty-Dumpty,' has no equal in that line, and by many is considered to be superior to the late Geo. Fox, and as for the 'Columbine' (Miss Boshell), she is grace and agility herself. In fact the whole performance is nothing but a series of pleasing tableaux and spirited acting and ought to be seen by everybody that wishes to enjoy a good laugh. To-night the same bill.

Tivoli Garden

The pleasant evenings now will enable promenaders to reach this fashionable free Concert Hall, at corner of Sutter and Stockton Streets. The Vienna Lady Musicians continue the chief attraction, and the orchestral selections are interpreted by them in a finished and artistic manner. Concert every Sunday evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

F. C. BANGS will return East to-morrow. JOHN HOWSON is a success at the Folly Theater, London.

A CREMONA violin was recently sold in Paris for 22,000 francs.

PATTI is reported to have already earned the large sum of $2,500,000.

SOTHERN has been playing to good houses at Hooley's, Chicago.

MONJENKA's favorite autograph inscription is, "Think of me in your prayers."

JOHN E. OWENS' first inquiry was for a FOOTLIGHT when he arrived at the Palace.

CHAS. RICKABEE, the agent of the Evangelical Company, is stopping at the Palace.

MISS KELLOGG is reported by Boston Society to be growing both in purse and person—fat.

We look for a visit from Haverly's Minstrels soon, who are much praised by Eastern reviewers.

GILMORE'S BAND of 60 pieces will leave New York on the 4th current for Liverpool and London.

MISS ADA WARD, and her agent, Mr. Richmond Thatcher, will leave for New York on Wednesday morning.

FRANK MAYO, Pauline Markham, and Maud Brandson are playing at The Folly Variety Theater, Chicago.

Our Eastern exchanges, in their dramatic notes, dwell more on the good looks of Marie Roze than on her vocal ability.

THE Troubadours are on their way to this city, from Australia, where they have been reaping good opinions and English gold.

MISS ELLIE WILTON will leave for Paris May 1st. Eighteen Saratoga trunks are required for her baggage, not counting all the hand-boxes.

AFTER "A Celebrated Case" has been for three months on the boards of American theaters, it is to be brought out as a novelty in London.

BARNEY is negotiating with the Connecticut Legislature to travel with his menagerie. Could not Forepaugh take a hint and engage Bones.

THE members of the California Theater Company, who are making "A Trip to the Moon" tour, appeared last night in Chicago, at Haverly's Theater.

"A CELEBRATED CASE" is drawing crowded houses at McViekar's Theater, Chicago, and will continue one week longer. The scenery is magnificent.

ONE of the Jubilee Singers in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is said to have developed a tenor voice of such purity that Manager Kennedy intends to send him to Milan to study.

FOUR actresses, who married "wealthy," and retired, have returned to the stage within the space of a month, viz.: Dickie Lingard, Ida Savory, Mollie Mader, and Ada Monk. The retiring business is always of a short duration.—Boston Society.

THE California Dramatic Company is the name of a new company formed lately, under the management of Wm. H. Edwards, to play throughout the interior on their way East. They will leave San Francisco on or about April 10th. The following are the principal performers: Miss Annie Pixley, Miss Belle Dopglass, Miss Georgia Swanson, Mr. Robt. Fulford, Mr. Ward, Mr. Wallace, etc.

To the Dramatic Profession

I respectfully intimate, that after this date, I shall decline to play for Sunday benefits. My friends will, therefore, not subject me to the pain of refusal.

California Theater,
March 31, 1878.

PLUNDER

Dumas fil., don't want to swear. He refused to give sworn testimony to a commission sent to Paris from New York to take it in regard to the authorship of "The Exiles," now in litigation there. Dumas plainly told the American delegation that his word alone in the matter must be taken, just as it would be in a French court, and that he would not humiliate himself by swearing to his statement.

THE only equivalent in the Japanese language for the English word baptism or immersion is soaking. A ludicrous illustration of its application is the following from the Baptist translation of the Bible into the Japanese, which the Alliance says greatly astonished the Japs: "In those days came John the soaker, preaching the soaking of repentance. Repent and be soaked, every one of you." This is extremely old, but it won't hurt any of our soakers to be told it again.

THE CHARITY TRICK.—Breshu, a celebrated juggler, being at Canterbury with his troop, met with such had success, that they were almost starved. He repaired to the church-wardens, and promised to give a night's conjuration to the poor, if they would pay for hiring a room, etc. The charitable bait took, the benefit proved a bumper, and next morning the church-wardens waited upon the wizard to touch the receipts. "I have already disposed of dem," said Breshu; "de profits were for de poor. I have kept my promise, and given de money to my own people, who are de poorest in dis parish!" "Sir!" exclaimed the church-wardens, "this is a trick." "I know it," replied the conjurer, "I live by my tricks."

THIS is told of Moritz Gran's ingenuity: That little bundle of wickedness, called Aimee, took it into her vicious head, some weeks ago, that there was more money in Mexico just now than in the United States. So she coolly cancelled all her dates in this country, and folding her baggage, silently stole away. Moritz, with tears in his eyes, went about recounting the bad faith of the little prima donna, and begging managers to let him off his engagements. "He was a refined man; who would have thought this of a woman he had made, etc.," was his complaint, and he wept when telling it. Managers felt for him, and let him off. Everything fixed. Moritz sailed for Mexico, to laugh in his sleeve with Aimee at the innocence of American managers, and to give her another proof of how fortunate she is to be connected with so smart a young man as himself. Nothing like being sharp in business, you know.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

Eccentricities of Junius Brutus Booth

Junius Brutus Booth was born in London, May 1, 1796; and in 1811 acted in opposition to Kean till he was driven from the stage by a riot. He then came to this country, and made his first appearance at Petersburg, Va., in 1821, as 'Richard III.,' and in 1822 came out at the Park Theater, in New York, in the same character. His success there was great, and afterwards, with varying fortune, he kept possession of the American stage until his death, which took place on board a steamer on the way from New Orleans to Cincinnati, in 1863. Small in stature, not well formed, and with bad points in manner and habits that were exceedingly irregular, he had many personal disadvantages to contend with in his profession, but such was the electric quality of his mind that he overcame them all. An actor less gifted would have forfeited his popularity beyond redemption. He lost himself in the part he was performing to such a degree that it became a sort of insanity. It was considered somewhat perilous to play 'Richard' to Booth's 'Richard III.,' particularly if he was in liquor. During the combat on Bosworth field he was apt, in his excitement, to consider himself in reality the King, and ent and thrust with the fierceness and ferocity of a man in an earnest and life-depending trial of arms. At such times it was necessary to disable him, and it was in one of these "crazy spells" that his face was disfigured for life by an imperiled actor, the bridge of his nose being broken by the blow delivered through self-defence. No one who ever saw the man in his great character of 'Richard' will be likely to forget his peculiar impersonation of the part. It is said he once played 'Orinoko' with bare feet, insisting that it was absurd to put shoes on a slave. On another occasion, he actually made his appearance in Philadelphia performing the part of 'Richard' on horseback! While supporting Forrest on a certain evening at a theater in Pittsburg, instead of going upon the stage at the proper time, he walked out and took the cars, dressed and made up for the character of an Indian chief. One night while performing 'Mr. Edward Mortimer,' in the "Iron Chest," in Philadelphia, the manager perceiving his unfortunate condition, advised him to "finish as quickly as possible." Booth quickly walked forward and observed: "Ladies and gentlemen, I have been directed by the manager to finish this as soon as possible, and so I'll finish it at once. Here, Wilford, catch me," saying which, and throwing himself into his arms, he "did the dying scene," and the curtain was rung down amid roars of laughter.—Troy Times.

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street.

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of G. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Collateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Store).

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

The "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danichoff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICCO, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Oral Jewelry, he could not be equalled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in design of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

Maiden and Lover

watch her as she sits and sews,
And hums a merry ditty;
mark the smile that ceaseless glows
Upon her face so pretty.

know her thoughts this hour go out,
Devoid of all endeavor,
o one whose love she cannot doubt,
Whose presence haunts her ever.

o one who years since went away,
His heart with hope dilating;
he will come back some day—some day—
To win his bride now waiting.

he calls to mind his words of praise (Because of her fair graces);
he muses on his loving ways
No tape of time effaces.

o wonder while she sits and sews
She hums a merry ditty!
o wonder each a sweet smile glows
Upon her face so pretty!

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines age) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the
Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 900 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Richie's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

- 3 Dance Macabre.....St. Saens

Zig-a-zig-a zig! Death with cadence gay,
Beating with his heel on a tombstone gray,
Death at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,
Zig-a-zig-a-zag! on his violin.

Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the willows comes cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Running, leaping high—each one in his shroud.

Zig-a-zig-a zig! see them flitting by,
Hear the dancers bones clicking horribly!

Pat! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be;
All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee!
—HENRI CAZALS
- 4 Overture, William Tell.....Rossini

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

rejoicing of the Slaves. Tavern on the Banks of the Ohio. Escape of George and Eliza on the Ice. Floe baffles the Pursuers. Thrilling Tableau.

ACT II—The Tavern by the River. Geo. Harris fleeing from bondage.

The Pursuit. The Kentuckian. "That's my mind" Meeting of George and Eliza. "Friend thee's not wanted here." Exciting Tableau.

ACT III—Superb Picture of a Southern Home. Miss Ophelia's first appearance in the South. "How Shiftless." Topsy's History. De child

dear neber was born. I see so wicked. Sunset on the Lake. Eva and Uncle

Tom. "I see a band of spirits bright." Eva's bed-chamber. Death of Little Eva. Solemn and impressive Tableau. Hymn. "Passing Away," by a Grand Chorus of One Hundred Jubilee Singers.

ACT IV—Topsy and the stockings. "I ain't half so wicked as I used to was." St. Clair to Eva in Heaven. Topsy and Aunt Ophelia. Death of St. Clair. Slave market in New Orleans. Song, "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," (by the slaves). Uncle Tom sold to Legree. Young Shelby searching for Uncle Tom. A lawyer's information never gets. The Red River at Sunset. Great Plantation Scene, by Strauss, introducing all the Freedmen, over one hundred, to illustrate the labor of Cotton Picking.

The Passing Flatboat. To be followed by a genuine Plantation Festival, in which Mr. George Reynolds (late of Reynolds Bros.), Mr. Chas. Cogill

(late of Cogill & Cooper), and Mr. Geo. Thompson (the Happy Old Nig), together with the Jubilee Singers, will appear in Songs, Dances, Choruses, Camp-meeting Hymns, etc., and the old-time Nigger Jolification. Walking for the Cake (thus affording a realistic picture of Southern life before the war, that has never been equalled). Arrival of the Steamboat. Leg-

ree, Eviline and Uncle Tom. The Flogging. Legree's House. Cassy and Legree. The lock of hair. The workings of a guilty conscience. "Do you know that I have made up my mind to kill you?" The last blow.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

John E. Owens' interpretation of 'Caleb Plummer,' in 'Dot,' is an exquisite bit of character acting well enjoyed by the large audiences which fill this house nightly. The support is excellent in every particular, embracing the full cast of the theater, including Mr. Barton Hill in the character of 'John Perryhingle,' who, in order to dress the part more effectively sacrificed even his 'moustache imperiel.' The Grand Fairy Transformation scene beginning the play is a marvel of mechanical execution and creates nightly great applause. "Dot" again to-night.

Grand Opera House

The scenic illustrations in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the melodious chanting of the colored gentry (many of them formerly slaves), the now perfect acting of the cast, all contribute to make this play as attractive as ever; and really seems, to judge from the houses here, that "Uncle Tom's Cabin" could be played another six months and still draw big houses. However, these are the last few nights that it will be played, as it will have to be withdrawn Monday, April 8th, as Manager Kennedy intends to treat us to a season of "Mirth, Humor and Fun," and for that purpose has engaged the Evangeline Company, which are said to be the best company of the kind in America. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" again to-night.

Baldwin's Theater

The cornet solos of Levy are received nightly with much applause. "Agnes" will be continued during the week and Saturday matinee.

Emerson's Opera House

"Our Boys" has been played every night continuously for the past three years in London. We begin to wonder if 'Uncle Josh' is destined for a proportionate long run in San Francisco.

Bush Street Theater

In order to accommodate the juvenile portion of theater-goers a special matinee of "Humpty-Dumpty" will be played this afternoon commencing at 2 o'clock sharp, and it will be as much of a treat to see the audience as the performers, for every little one from the baby on wants to go (and for that matter ought to go) to see this beautiful play. The skipping-rope dance of Miss Miano is the very best ever seen here, likewise so the acrobatic exercises of Miss Ashton and Miano. Taken all in all it is a most enjoyable performance throughout. "Humpty-Dumpty" again to-night.

Metropolitan Temple

One of the gems of orchestral music—Rossini's overture to William Tell—is the fourth number on the Herold programme for the matinee performance this afternoon. In the whole range of musical composition, it will be difficult to find a subject more full of harmonic beauties. The celebrated "Dance Macabre" of St. Saens, and a Clarinette solo are other numbers in the programme, and we may look for a large gathering within the walls of this elegant Temple, of our advanced amateurs and lovers of music in general.

The Fountain

Free concert every evening. Refreshments served after theater hours. Ladies' entrance from Kearny Street, Thurlow Block. The most popular music rendered by first-class musicians. Cornet solo by Savinier this evening.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

JOHN E. OWENS will leave for Australia by the Zealandia, April 15th.

An English actor recently swallowed his false moustache and was nearly choked to death.

STRAKOSCH is just raking in the stray cash of the New Yorkers with the Kellogg-Roze-Cary attraction.

For the past twenty-seven years Janaschek has been on the stage, and never once disappointed an audience by non-appearance.

'JULIET' is to be presented to Eastern audiences in the person of a young lady with the euphonious name of Grubbs—would not Mariposa sound better.

THE Paris Grand Opera will be grand in fact, during the coming Exposition. A constellation of stars will appear such as has never before been seen or heard in the musical world.

It is said that Max Strakosch (through his agent here) has entered snit against Mr. Fitzgerald, who at present is playing 'Mr. Stray Cash' in "Agnes," for "imitating and personating him."

FOREPAUGH exhibits in San Jose, April 11th, and business must be rather dull there, for one of the dailies tells us in an editorial article that peanuts have been reduced to five cents per cup.

A TELEGRAM from Chicago to Manager Locke states that, "A Trip to the Moon," with Tom Keene, Alice Harrison, and company, drew the largest house of the season, and created a general furore. So much for California.

CARL ROSA has revived "The Lily of Killarney" with success, at the London Adelphi. An Irishman named Ludwig sang 'Danny Man,' and was pronounced the equal of Mr. Santley, for whom the music of the part was originally written.

MR. STRICKLAND, the agent of Haverly's Minstrels, is expected within a day or two. This company of able performers are on their way to this city now, having left Chicago last Sunday. They will play in Salt Lake, Virginia City, etc., and arrive in time to open as the next attraction at the Bush Street Theater.

MADAME CHRISTINE NILSSON's success during her recent tour in Russia has been extraordinary. She has never before been received with such enthusiasm in that country, and the presents made to her have been of enormous value. Among others were a superb silver service, necklaces, brooches, bracelets, etc., from the Emperor and Empress, literally blazing with diamonds, rubies, sapphires, emeralds, and other precious stones.

ROYAL CRITICISM.—A well-known pianist recently played some of his most astonishing pieces before the Grand Signor. At the conclusion of the performance the Sultan, who had been observing him with great apparent admiration, said to him: "I have heard Thalberg" (a low bow of the artiste, and modest smile). "I have also heard Liszt" (a still lower bow and profound attention); but not one of all who have played before me perspired as much as you do."

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

BUFFALO, March 24, 1878.

ED. FOOTLIGHT:—Mr. John A. Stevens, with a good company, has been here for the past week playing "Unknown," a drama founded on items culled from the press, by Mr. Stevens. It borders slightly on the sensational, but notwithstanding is a very interesting play, and merited the favorable reception it had in Buffalo. The character of 'Jack Salt,' by Mr. Sidney Smith, is the most deserving of mention, as a finer personation of an old weather-beaten sailor could scarcely be conceived. Their genial manager (at present we can't recall his name) says he is now corresponding with a view to opening in San Francisco.

Theatricals, as well as business, very dull just now, and probably will be until after Lent.

Camilla Urso, assisted by Miss Wandesforde, soprano, Mr. Towers, tenor, and Mr. Randolphson, basso, gave one concert in St. James Hall, on Wednesday, to a fair but not large audience, those who stayed away missed a very great treat. Criticising her playing on the violin would be both presumptuous and superfluous. It was, in our estimation, simply grand.

W. H. W.

A CORRESPONDENT writing to an Eastern exchange from Paris says:

"Did I tell you in my last letter of an incident which does the greatest honor to Baron Alphonse de Rothschild's wife? Poor Prevost Paradol was always intimate with several Jewish families here. He was for years a private tutor in the family of Halevy, the composer, and Ludovic Halevy, the composer's nephew became his bosom friend. When poor Prevost Paradol committed suicide, Ludovic Halevy became as a father to his children. It was in Ludovic Halevy's house that Prevost Paradol's son committed suicide. It was in this way that Prevost Paradol made the Rothschilds' acquaintance. When he became a brilliant writer on the Journal Des Debits, this acquaintance ripened into intimacy, for the Rothschilds are zealous Orleanists. The ladies of the Rothschild family became warmly attached to Prevost Paradol's wife and children, and when his poor son shot himself the other day, and his poor daughter, Theresa, determined to bury herself in that living tomb, the cloister, Madame de Rothschild no sooner heard of the ill-starred girl's resolution, than she went to her, and said, that if her resolution was taken because she feared her inability to secure always a comfortable support, or to provide a dowry sufficient to warrant a prudent man to marry her, she (Madame de Rothschild) begged her to dismiss all such apprehensions, for she was ready and eager to place at her disposal $60,000, which would yield her an income of $3,000 a year. Mile. Theresa thanked her, and said that no apprehensions of the future led her to take the step she contemplated; her only motives were weariness of life and knowledge of the emptiness of all earthly things; so she begged Madame de Rothschild to let her decline the generous offer."

PLUNDER

BRIGHAM'S widows are to bring out a book. It will be called "That Husband of Ours."

THE flowing reporter who wrote with reference to a well-known belle, "her dainty feet were encased in shoes that might be taken for fairy boots," tied his wardrobe up in a handkerchief and left for parts unknown when it appeared the next morning, "her dirty feet were encased in shoes that might be taken for ferry boats."

A LIVERPOOL theater has a beautiful Italian danseuse, who gives her orders to a sister danseuse, who understands French. The orders are conveyed in French to the only gentleman in the company who understands it, and he uses good English to the stage-manager, who, however, has to indulge in Scotch dialect, to make his musical director understand what is going on. The maitre de ballet is an Irishman.

An original genius in Reggio went to Parma for the express purpose of hearing "Aida." The opera not being to his liking he wrote to Verdi demanding indemnification for his traveling, hotel and theater expenses. Verdi's good nature led him to pay the bill, but he requested his too candid critic to keep away from all the future performances of his operas. The citizen of Reggio returned a receipt in due form accompanied with an agreement to never listen again to one of Verdi's operas.

A San Francisco actress asks the Mercury if the most intelligent New Yorkers are not the victims of flunkeyism. After enumerating several instances of cringing toadyism to titled nincompoops in private life, she says: "Now turn to the stage. You have a live count, whose claim to nobility cannot be questioned, yet, because he is a naturalized citizen, your press and people treat him as a buffoon. Then we sent you an actress, who is good but never great, and because she asserts her rank of Countess Bozenta, several of your critics and all noodleloms have become ecstatically crazed. If America cannot furnish as good 'Canilles' and 'Adriennes' as Modjeska has proved, then its stage is in a pitiable condition. In this city Modjeska was fairly successful on her first visit, and barely escaped failure when she returned for a second engagement. Will New Yorkers ever practically demonstrate the truth of the European boast that a title has the same effect on Americans that a red flag has upon a mad bull?"

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICCO, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, upstairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equaled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser.

A Song of Spring

"Coming, coming, coming!"
The Spring's deer voice is heard,
From upland, vale and wildwood,
In trill of happy bird.
"Coming, coming, coming!"
She whispers from the hills,
And sings it to the flowers
Asleep by tripping rills.

In haloed grace she cometh
With smiles and frowns to-day,
But wooing, golden anbeams
Kiss all her tears away.
Lo! answering her greeting,
Each with a rainbow crown,
In crowds the grasses gather
And hide the meadow brown.

Soft listening, half-way dreaming,
Their feet the flowers stir,
Impetuous for their robing,
Reech royal tree to her.
The hooded ferns are waking,
The sweet-brier reddens nigh,
And violet and pansy
As rival comers vie.

The willow's beads are glistening,
A bee on idle wing
His busy tune is humming
In welcome to the Spring
And listening, waiting, listening,
For each cadence of her voice,
How every heart with Nature
Doth gratefully rejoice.
—Boston Transcript.

DURING the recent conjuring performance of Herr Basch, at Koenigsberg, a gentleman rose in the body of the hall and addressed the conjurer as follows: "Herr Basch, your next trick, as I see from the programme, is to make any person disappear who is pointed out to you. There sits my runaway spouse with her paramour. Pray make them disappear." The lady turned alternately pale and red, and the couple left amid the roaring laughter of the public.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ball

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes. Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to F. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

 - d Allegro Assai

Part Second

- 1 Overture, Flying Dutchman.....Wagner
- 2 Fantasia, Souvenirs de Bellini.....C. Berlioz

Solo for Clarinet, with Orchestral Accompaniment
Mr. JOSEPH WREDA
- 3 Dance Macabre.....St. Saens

Zig-a-zig-a-zig! Death with cadence gay,
Beating with his heel on a tombstone gray,
Death at midnight plays, 'mid the horrid din,
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! on his violin,
Blows the winter wind, dark and black the night,
From the willows comes cries and groanings loud,
Through the darkness troop skeletons in white,
Running, leaping high—each one in his shroud,
Zig-a-zig-a-zig! see them flitting by,
Hear the dancers bones clicking horribly!
Pat! the dance is o'er, sudden though it be,
All must now away—cock-crow bids them flee!
—HENRI CAZALIS
- 4 Overture, William Tell.....Rossini

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co., Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Only three more nights of "Dot," when it will have to be withdrawn in order to bring out some of the other pieces Mr. Owens excels in—also the three last nights of Miss Ellie Wilton, as on Monday night the new leading lady, Miss Eleanor Carey, will assume her position, which simple announcement ought (and no doubt will) fill this Theater for the remainder of the week. "Dot" again to-night.

Grand Opera House

The season of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is drawing to a close, and all those that have not yet seen this beautiful play (if there are any) ought to go by all means, as it may be a long time ere it will be put on the boards again. Miss Ada Deaves' "Topsy" is a splendid piece of character acting and deserves much praise. "Uncle Tom" again to-night, and the balance of the week, including the matinee. Sunday night, April 7, Mr. Jas. Barrows, the young rising actor, who earned the sobriquet of "Don't you think so Bill" for the peculiar manner in which he pronounced that sentence in the "Tour Around the World," will have a benefit, when a monster bill, with some scenes from the "Tour Around the World" will be presented—and as his friends count legions, early application for seats is necessary.

Baldwin's Theater

"Agnes" still continues to attract very good audiences, and will be continued during the week and Saturday matinee.

Bush Street Theater

"Humpty-Dumpty" is drawing good houses and has scored another success for Manager Locke in the selection of his attractions. The cast and the specialty artists engaged therein are masters of their art. The slack wire performance of Miss Boswell is the very best of the kind ever seen here. The management announces that during the "Humpty-Dumpty" season, children will be admitted in the evenings at half the usual prices, in order to accommodate those who were unable to gain admission at the regular matinees, which liberality on the part of the management ought to draw crowded houses. "Humpty-Dumpty" again this evening and every evening until Monday evening, April 8th, when volume 2 of "Humpty-Dumpty," with entire change of tricks, scenery, etc., will be presented.

Emerson's Opera House

Mr. Denman Thompson has found a bonanza in "Uncle Joshua Whitcomb." The picture of New England life he places before his audience nightly is far more attractive and better appreciated than has ever been any imported French translation in this city. Unlike the general run of trashy translations of doubtful morality, "Uncle Josh" is healthy and happy throughout. "Uncle Joshua" every evening and Saturday matinee.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

Miss ELLEN CUMMINS is supporting our John in his dramatic tour through the Western States.

The "Kerry Gow" Combination of Joe Murphy close the season at the Globe, Boston, on May 4th.

Miss IDELENE COTTON and father Ben. have been successful at the New National Theater, Philadelphia.

"THE COMING STRUGGLE" is the subject of a lecture by Henry George, announced for next Saturday evening, at the Metropolitan Temple.

MR. STRICKLAND, the agent for Haverley's Minstrels, arrived last night to prepare the way for his company of "ebony" actors to appear at the Bush Street Theater as the next novelty.

THE many friends of Miss Ellie Wilton are agitating the matter of a Grand Farewell Benefit to her, in return for the many pleasant hours derived from her conscientious acting. It will be a "humper."

WONDERFUL how taste differs. "The Exiles" has been very successful at the Walnut Street Theater, Phila. Getz, the scenic artist, is credited with having achieved a complete success in that department.

MISS ELEANOR CAREY, the new leading lady of the California Theater, is stopping at the Cosmopolitan Hotel. She will make her first appearance next Monday night in "The Heir at Law," supporting Mr. John E. Owens.

THE Evangeline Company passed Omaha yesterday morning and will arrive here Sunday night. John Rickabee, their agent, is flooding the city with photographs and other pictorial advertisements, denoting a galaxy of talent such as never was centered in one company before.

ADDITIONAL dispatches from Chicago state that the second appearance of our California Team, Mr. Tom Keene, Miss Alice Harrison, etc., was greeted by a still larger house than the first night, notwithstanding all the other counter attractions. Mr. Frank Lawlor, who is in charge of the company there, will soon be relieved by Manager Locke, who intends to go East shortly to engage new attractions for his theater here.

THE N. Y. Clipper of March 30th tells us that Dumas finds found among his father's papers after his death, a five act drama founded on "Joseph Balsamo," written by the dead man; Dumas the younger, overhauled it to such an extent that until its production in Paris there was some question as to whether the dead man or the living Dumas was the author.

The decided failure of the drama has now placed beyond doubt that question—Dumas the younger claims it.

BARROWS' Benefit at the Grand Opera House next Sunday evening will afford another opportunity to theater-goers to witness two acts of the drama that laid the foundation of the successful and long runs that this place of amusement has since enjoyed. So much of a "Tour Round the World" will be given with a cast equal to the original. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Courtaine, as well as Messrs. Bradley, Billings and Edmonds, have volunteered to assist in rendering the benefit a substantial one. "A Lottery of Life" is underlined for the opening piece, to be followed by an olio of songs and dances by Messrs. Cogill, Reynolds and others. In a "Tour Round the World," Mr. Barrows will assume his original character of "Don't you think so, Bill." Harry Courtaine is cast for "Phineas Fogg," and his valet, "Passepartout," will be taken by Mr. W. A. Fitzgerald. Misses Nellie Holbrook, Elsie Moore and Ada Deaves appear in the cast; also Messrs. Bradley, Arnold, Belmore and others. A new local sketch, written by Mr. Archie Gunter, will be introduced in the San Francisco scene. As a finale, Mr. John Leach will appear in his "Heavenly Chinese," and no doubt the performance as a whole will be one of the most enjoyable ever offered in this city.

THE Cincinnati Commercial says: "Miss Roze is a very beautiful woman, with fine, dark, expressive eyes, and bright mobile features. She is a dramatic artist in the highest sense of the word. Her dramatic conception of the character of 'Mignon' seems to approximate more nearly to the ideal in the mind of Goethe, and later in the imagination of Thomas, than that of any other operatic artist upon the stage. Take, for instance, the scene in the dressing-room, when 'Guiglielmo' is pouring his tale of love into the ears of the coquette, 'Fidina,' while the page, 'Mignon,' sits in the big arm-chair by the fireplace. Some artists, in this scene, have made 'Mignon' exhibit a pettishness and pretty spitefulness, which was very taking to the audience, and very amusing, but was utterly at variance with the character of 'Mignon,' and false in principle. 'Mignon' loves her master tenderly and devotedly. Her nature is an intense, and loving, and reverent one. She has been subdued by sorrow and chastened by adversity. She is not a spiteful little school girl, angry at her big lover for paying court to another school girl, and feeling in a mood and evincing a desire to pull her hair or scratch her. Such a conception is unworthy of a great artist, and belittles the pure, sweet, intensely womanly ideal in 'Mignon.' Miss Roze is worthy of the part, and is the poet's ideal incarnate, so far as depth of feeling and earnestness in execution are concerned. Her 'Mignon' is true to herself. She is the daughter of a nobleman. She is never guilty of meanness or littleness. In the fire scene she awakens sympathy and provokes admiration. She does not challenge laughter or merriment. In the toilet scene there is still some suggestion of one receiving and handling luxuries to which her birth entitles her, rather than of a foolish, ignorant Gypsy girl. In the more exacting scenes, her acting is fervid, passionate and earnest, while her vocalization is pure, superb, and intensely sympathetic. Her 'Mignon' is a thing of power and beauty, and is, upon the whole, the noblest, most poetic, and truthful illustration of the ideal 'Mignon' our people have ever had the opportunity of enjoying, and it stamps her as an operatic artist of rare power and fine accomplishments. She, for one, has read the part aright. Her 'Mignon' is the 'Mignon' in this respect."

"DIPLOMACY," Bolton and Saville Rowe's London version of Sardou's "Dora," is to be produced at Wallack's Theater, New York, April 11th. This play has made a great success both in Paris and London, and, of course, it will score another hit in Gotham when the time comes. Sardou, as a general thing, is very lucky with all his dramatic productions.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to L. TOEPLITZ, 225 Dupont Street, second door from Sutter. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely: The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. CONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pailen Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, as no description could do them justice.

Parties having anything to buy, sell, or trade, or business of any kind to be transacted, should call on CHARLES H. WHEELER, 220 Kearny Street. See advertisement.

Those who love their Coffee uniformly PURE, RICH, DELICIOUS and WHOLESOME, are respectfully invited to try our Pure Compressed Article. We desire that the proof of its quality be a trial. The Future of Patti Difficult to answer is the question: "What becomes of all the prime divas?" It is well known that these talented and fascinating artists do not flourish in eternal youth. They have not drunk from Ponce de Leon's fountain, and some day or other, they reach the end of their career. Take Madame Patti, for instance, who was born a prodigy and now that she is nearing the fatal age of forty, sings as marvelously as she did in her youth. This merely proves that she is a vocal miracle. She was an infant phenomenon, and has continued a phenomenon through the twenties and thirties. She is sustained by a wonderful physique, and in spite of all the sensation stories as to her dying of consumption, has nerves like steel, and a tough vitality that will sustain shocks to which most natures, even those of the sterner sex will succumb. Yet a shadow has already begun to fall over her! What is it? The dread of approaching age, and with age the decay of the voice and the thinning enthusiasm of the public! She has had a phenomenal career since, eighteen years ago, at the age of eighteen, she made her debut before the Parisian public, as 'Amina' in 'La Sonnambula.' Truly it was a baptism of fire. Totally unknown to that stage audience, not a hand was raised to applaud her. But her conquest was speedy, and long before the first act was over, the theater echoed with plaudits, bouquets rained upon the stage, and a height was achieved from which she has never retrograded an inch. But, nevertheless, the beginning of the end is nigh. Every soprano, who is nearing the age of forty, must be quite aware that her sovereignty will be at an end; that some day or other, within the next few years, the artist will discover that some of her notes are going or gone; that she uses the tremolo to conceal the ravages that time has made; and, in short, the hour has come in which to depose the goddess and set another up in her place. Have you ever thought what a frightful discovery this is to an artist? Picture to yourself the change from a life of adulation, where you are greeted with deafening applause, rained upon with exotic bouquets, and weighed down with jewels an empress might envy, to a life whence all these glorious things have vanished forever more, and where you are pointed at as the "singer that used to be."

The "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danished Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

'Hamlet' Massacred

ABOUT six hundred people witnessed three acts of Master Wood's massacre of "Hamlet" last Saturday evening, and the affair closed. Master Wood and W. B. Cahill appeared before the curtain, and the youthful 'Hamlet' spoke, saying to the audience that his managers, Messrs. Hyatt and Guest, had incontinently skipped, forgetting to pay the actors, but remembering to walk away with the receipts of the evening. A shout of derision greeted this speech and Mr. Cahill indignantly exclaimed: "Ladies and gentlemen, Master Wood is not to blame. Messrs. Hyatt and Guest, his managers, engaged the people and have not paid them." Derisive shouts from the gallery greeted this burst of indignation, and Cahill's noble form swelled and his face grew redder at each euphonious remark from the peanut gods, and at last he stammered: "Place yourselves in the position of the ladies and gentlemen behind the scenes; work a week expecting pay and not get it, and how would you feel?" The people dispersed quietly, but with expressions of disgust. Neither Mr. Guest nor Mr. Hyatt can be found at the time of writing. —Phila. Mirror, March 23.

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish large area of water-shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Pigs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

RICHIE'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc., apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

WEBER ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.
Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.
Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the act on meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.
Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.:
Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg-Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"Dot, or The Cricket on the Hearth," has proved an attraction at this house, and could be played another week if Mr. Owens' time would permit it, but as his engagement is of short duration, it will be played at the matinee, and to-night for the last time, and as this will be likewise Miss Ellie Wilton's last appearance, we expect to see a crowded house.

Grand Opera House

"Uncle Tom's Cabin," with all its beautiful scenery, the Jubilee Singers, and other attractions, will be shelved after to-night, having had one of the most successful runs this house has ever witnessed. The "take" for the matinee indicates a big house, and as to-night will be the very last performance, we anticipate two big houses. To-morrow (Sunday) night, Mr. Barrows' benefit, when a choice and well-selected bill will be presented by "Don't you think so, Bill?"—a selection of more merit than the average "benefit" performances generally possess—and as Mr. Barrows has greatly contributed to the pleasure of theater-goers of this house during the last year, they in return ought to show their appreciation of his conscientious acting and strong efforts to please by a full attendance.

Bush Street Theater

"Humpty-Dumpty" has made a hit—a veritable hit—and rightfully so, for it is the best pantomime company ever seen here. Grand matinee to-day at 2 P. M.; and the two last performances to-night and to-morrow (Sunday) night, as volume II. of "Humpty-Dumpty," with an entire change, will be presented on Monday night.

Emerson's Opera House

Denman Thompson as 'Joshua Whitcomb' has reached the public heart, and his success is unqualified. Matinee this afternoon.

Baldwin's Theater

Sunday evening will be the last performance of "Agnes." On Monday evening "One Hundred Years Old" is announced, as the third of the present series.

Tivoli Garden

Now that Spring blossoms are appearing on the shrubbery that surround this semi-suburban villa, and the grounds carpeted with green grass, small family parties will find here a most suitable place to enjoy a quiet picnic, and during the coming moonlit evenings, no doubt the place will be crowded with pleasure seekers, and lovers of music, who can enter free, and listen to the selections rendered by the orchestra of the Vienna Ladies.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

The Evangeline Company will arrive in a special palace car to-morrow (Sunday) night.

LEVY, the Great, is blowing his trumpet at Woodward's Gardens—"how have the mighty fallen."

HENRY GEORGE will discourse on "The Coming Struggle," at the Metropolitan Temple this evening.

FOREPAUGH'S Circus and Menagerie will open here this day week, April 13th, for a short season of nine days.

MISS JEAN BURNSIDE, an Eastern actress of some repute, is to be a member of the regular stock company of the California Theater.

MISS ELLIE WILTON may possibly play a short engagement in Paris during the Exhibition, as John McCullough is going to "star" there at the time.

COL. TOOLE, of Forepaugh's circus, reports that the Southern country everywhere is a picture of beauty, and prospects of a most successful harvest are everywhere apparent.

AFTER James Barrows' benefit to-morrow night, at the Grand Opera House, the orchestra of that Theater headed by Prof. Widmer, will serenade the "Evangeline" Company at their hotel.

MR. CAZACRAM, the manager of the Union Square Theater Company now playing here, went East last Wednesday to add new novelties, as it is rumored that this company is going to be a fixture here.

DENMAN THOMPSON who is making such unqualified success of "Joshua Whitcomb," wrote that play himself, from actual experience, and is now engaged upon another new play which he intends bringing out ere long.

MISS ELEANOR CAREY will make her first appearance next Monday night, in Byron's comedy of "Our Boys," in which she will take the character of 'Mary Melrose,' "one of the girls," in which character Miss Bella Pateman made quite a hit when it was played here some two years ago.

An item of Gotham gossip is to the effect that John McCullough in conjunction with Jarrett & Palmer, has taken Booth's Theater for the months of Sep., Oct., Nov., and December, and that for the first two months "Coriolanus" will be given, with immense spectacular additions to its usual manner of stage production. Then will follow Henry Irving, the English tragedian, and play-goers can then compare the merits of the two artists.

LOUIS AIBISHER is no more—his troubles are over. A week or two ago he married a young lady of this city without the knowledge of his father, and being financially embarrassed, he asked his father yesterday for $200, which was refused. His father handed him fifty cents in the place of it, with which amount young Aibisher bought some strychnine, and, tired of the world and the many obstacles laid in his way, swallowed some and died last evening.

To-morrow evening at the Grand Opera House is the time and place chosen for the benefit tendered to Mr. J. O. Barrows. The host of first-class artists who have volunteered, ensures a programme worthy of the occasion. We trust that the public will respond in a liberal manner and make the benefit a substantial financial success. "The Lottery of Life" will be given as the opening piece, embracing in the cast the principal members of the Grand Opera House Company. The song and dance stars, Cogill & Reynolds, will appear in a favorite act, also Martin & Podd and others in their specialties. The two principal acts of a "Tour Round the World" will be given introducing some new local business, and the celebrated "Don't you think so, Bill."

PLUNDER

MR. SAMUEL TILDEN, being one of the recognized old bachelors of the metropolis, has been invited to preside at the dinner which is to be given to Robson and Crane, at Delmonico's, New York. It is said that with a single exception—that of the ancient William Warren, of Boston—there are no actors who are unmarried and available for the purpose. Hence the choice.

A SUBSCRIBER of a Texas paper urges the editor to "pour red-hot thunderbolts right into the teeth of the leeches and sharks that are sucking the life-blood from the people." The editor says he will not do it unless his subscribers pay up more promptly. "Red-hot thunderbolts," he adds, "are expensive; and all the money he can lay his hands on goes for bread and meat and potatoes, which are poured into the teeth of his wife and children."

ALL women play cards alike. Watch a woman at a game of whist and you'll get a pretty correct idea of how all women play whist: "La me, Henry, is it my play? Let me see—second hand low—that's the second time round of that suit, ain't it? Well, I'll play—no, I hardly think I will—now you stop looking in my hand—did you see anything—of course I'm going to play, but I must have time to think—what's trumps—spades—I thought 'twas clubs—well, I'll—no—yes—well, there! Then she will clap an ace on her partner's king, and insist upon keeping the trick for fear she will be cheated out of it in the final count.

"Is Mr. McKee in?" The gentleman who asked the question was a mild-mannered individual, and resembled a clergyman in appearance. Mr. Tusch, of whom the question was asked, replied in the negative.

"Will he be in soon?" asked the meek one.

"I think not," answered Mr. Tusch.

"I have not seen him in some time, and I'm afraid I wouldn't know him."

"He's no doubt changed a great deal since you saw him last," returned the monosyllabic Tusch.

"Do you know where I would be likely to find him?" asked the visitor.

"He did not say where he was going."

"Is there any place that he frequents?"

"He is no doubt in one of two places, but they're a good ways from here, and he probably would not like to be disturbed."

"Can I sit down and wait?" asked the gentleman.

"Oh, certainly! John, give the gentleman a chair."

The gentleman waited for two hours, and then became uneasy; finally he asked:

"Is there any possibility of his being in to-day?"

"No, I think not."

"How long since he was in?"

"Six months."

"How is that?"

"He's dead."

"Why the devil didn't you say so?"

"You didn't ask me."

Then the gentleman pulled out two quarts of hair, kicked over a table, and fired two darts at Tusch. John fell off the office stool, struck the floor with his school end, and made a dent the shape of two butter-crackers in the floor, and Mr. Tusch, remarking that "some people didn't know enough to ask what they wanted for," went into executive session with the man.

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from wait employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

Piper's Opera House, Virginia City

A VIRGINIA CITY correspondent of the New York Clipper gives the following description of Piper's Opera House;

"The building is a handsome structure of wood and stone. The lower part of the house will seat 550 persons, and the gallery 450; but in case of a crush 1,200 people can be accommodated. The seats are furnished with high backs, upholstered with red leather. The decorations are elaborate in finish and design, and very pleasing to the eye. The ceiling and walls are handsomely frescoed, and the privacy of the boxes is secured by rich drapery. From pit to dome the distance is 48 feet. The stage is 60 feet wide, 38 feet deep, and 42 feet high. The scenery is by W. T. Porter, late scenic artist of the California Theater, San Francisco, Cal. A fine portrait of Shakespeare adorns the centre of the arch above the curtain. The arch and sides, together with the boxes, are decorated in blue and gold. The dressing-rooms are eight in number, and it is safe to say that for room and convenience no theater on the coast is better supplied. The whole cost aggregated $30,000. The officers of the theater are John Piper, manager and proprietor; J. H. Vinson, stage manager; W. T. Porter, scenic artist; and John Langer, musical director. The following compose the stock company: F. G. Maeder, leading man; P. S. Sullivan, heavy; Frank Kilday, juvenile; J. H. Vinson, first old man; W. C. Crosbie, low comedian; P. C. Howard, light comedian; Murray Woods and King Hedley, general utility; Mary L. Young, leading lady; Mrs. Norton Bush, heavies; Katy Mayhew, soubrette; Georgie Woodthorpe, juvenile; Cecil Gray, first walking lady; Mrs. J. C. Osborne, first old woman; and Mrs. Johnson and Peters, utility."

CHEAP OPERA GLASSES at Muller's, No. 135 Montgomery Street

Parties having anything to buy, sell, or trade, or business of any kind to be transacted, should call on CHARLES H. WHEELER, 229 Kearny Street. See advertisement.

Visitors to the city and pleasure seekers in quest of a quiet nook, to retire from the sunshine and enjoy an hour's rest and refreshment, will find a suitable retreat at the TIVOLI GARDEN, Northwest corner of Stockton and Sutter Streets. Our German citizens and their families resort here every evening and Sunday afternoons to drink their national beverage and listen to the orchestral selections of the music of their fatherland, performed by the celebrated Vienna Female Musicians. All kinds of refreshments served to order and free concert every evening.

PHILIP OFFENHEIM importer of ARTISTS and WAX FLOWER MATERIALS, No. 219 Post St. Free Art Gallery. Works of Local Artists on Exhibition and for sale. James Hamilton's last works on exhibition.

A SEALED BAG OF THE NEW COINAGE from Philadelphia has just been received, and samples can be had at either of the money exchange offices of O. W. ANTHONY & CO., on Kearny Street, corner of Post Street (late Collateral Bank), also corner of Bush Street (the Old Corner Cigar Stand).

LOVERS of Music, who wish to enjoy a Concert of classic composition, will find at The Fountain a first-class orchestra, between the hours of 8 and 12 every evening.

BAROMETERS and THERMOMETERS at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

Go to the "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVE STORE, No. 3 Kearny Street (entrance on Geary) and select your Gloves

The leading establishment on the Pacific Coast for ALL STYLES OF ENGRAVING, will be found at 120 POST ST. The proprietors, Messrs. Geo. M. Wood & Co., are prepared to execute orders for dies, monograms, visiting cards, etc., at the most reasonable rates. A large assortment of fine stationery always on hand.

An extensive assortment of SPRING STYLES OF HATS has just been imported and opened for inspection at the stores of C. HERRMANN, 402 Kearny Street and 910 Market Street. Large reduction on prices of last season, and superior articles for sale.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 310 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

The "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. ERICCO, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equaled by any in this city, and the samples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purchaser

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre,

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

KITCHEN'S FRENCH HOTEL, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

—FOR—
WASHING AND SHAMPOOING

No Housekeeper Should be Without It!

The best thing known for washing Flannel; superior to anything for cleaning Silk and Velvet; the most cleansing for the body; for healing eruptions of the skin; when used as a shampoo, will cleanse the scalp and prevent the hair from falling out, when mixed with starch used for glazing shirts and other linens. By washing shelves or cupboards with this solution, ants and cockroaches and other insects will be driven away. Borax is the best thing known for curing Rheumatism.

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st 1877.
Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. Gentlemen—The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, and, with a view to edacious contingencies—by a whale.....Miss Florence Ellis Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait.....Mr. Harry Josephs

Eulalie, Evangeline's 'confidante,' confidently hoping Woman's for Rights.....Miss Lizzie McCall

Queen Booriboolo Gha, the King's much better adviser and supervisor of his whole conduct.....Miss Viola Barnes

Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid.....Miss Hattie Richardson

Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo.....Miss Lizzie Webster

Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shiest' 'shyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark.....Mr. Sol Smith Russell

Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercenary cuss.....Mr. George S. Knight

The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach.....Mr. Harry Hunter

Beall, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection.....Mr. E. S. Tarr

King Booriboolo Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near,' occupies 'an ear' trumpet.....Mr. Edwin S. Tarr

Hans Wagner, a spirit-us 'corporal' with undue 'corporeal' proportions.....Mr. Chas. Rosine

The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the 'qui vive'.....Mr. Horace Frail

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

Byron's delightful comedy of "Our Boys" will be presented at this theater to-night for the first time in two years—Mr. Owens of course playing 'The Retired Butcherman,' supported by full cast of the California Theater Company—and as this play made quite a sensation when played here last, we expect to see a big house. The new leading lady, Miss Eleanor Carey, will make her first appearance as 'Mary Melrose.'

Bush Street Theater

"Humpty-Dumpty," Volume II., will be the attraction here to-night, which is said to be even more amusing than the first volume. Grimaldi, the clown, has no equal in the United States, and is ably supported by a good cast.

Grand Opera House

The new spectacular American Opera Bouffe Extravaganza entitled "Evangeline," original music by Mr. E. E. Rice, and text by Mr. J. Cheever Goodwin, and judging from its success, the best musical extravaganza ever placed before an American audience, will be produced here this evening by the celebrated Evangeline Company. Eastern reviewers speak of it as possessing a text free from immodest illusions, much really good music, and that it may be set down as one of the jolliest productions of this class. Eastern and Western opinions do not invariably run in the same groove, but in this case we expect to have to coincide, vous verrons.

Emerson's Opera House

The Denman Thompson Company enters on its fifth week with the greatest prospect of continued success. The matinee tendered the dramatic profession during the first of the season was a masterly stroke of policy in the management. It was a novelty, and as such drew attention to the company, and may be said to have laid the foundation of the present run. In the transaction it is difficult to decide which to admire most—the friendly offer, or the friendly manner in which the profession responded to that offer—and the complete absence of any jealous rivalry on either side, judging from the success, the management must be in excellent hands; all the points possible to be made to reach public notice, have been brought to requisition and with a most triumphant result. The entire company, at both ends of the house—all the way from Mr. Denman Thompson to the colored gentleman in white gloves and swallow-tail, who, with so much grace and politeness, hands the Footlight to patrons as they enter the dress-circle—work together in perfect harmony, and each fits the position assigned, as if they had been manufactured to order. Denman Thompson is the author as well as the actor of "Joshua Whitcomb," which in his hands is the best purely American comedy on the stage to-day. The great secret of his success is in his perfect naturalness—the man is lost in the character—it is not Denman Thompson we see on the stage, but a veritable New Hampshire farmer, a true type of his class, warm-hearted and trusting, quaint and humorous in his ways and speech; not quite at home in the parlor of his Boston friends, where his mistakes are of a kind which we might reasonably enough expect to see happen, although the base use he upon one occasion puts a parlor ornament to, stretches our credulity to the utmost extent. In the selection of persons to assume the secondary characters of the cast, the manager has evinced a shrewd knowledge of human nature. The parts are not at all exacting, but require special fitness to play them with effect. This is most noticeable in the characters of 'Tot' (Miss Julia Wilson), and 'Roundy' (Master Alfred Klein), which are rendered in a manner impossible to be excelled. From the success of this American comedy, our native dramatists might take a hint. Sensational translations are only for the hour, their only attraction lies in their novelty, the drama of every day life that reaches the heart, and elevates and tends to make better human nature, is always good, and will put money in the purse of those managers who are competent to place them on the stage in the careful manner that has ensured the success of Uncle "Joshua Whitcomb."

Baldwin's Theater

In the drama of life there is a constant ebb and flow. Theatrical managers experience this quite as much as any other part of our social ocean. In the whole world there is probably no other manager who has had more vicissitudes, more ups and downs, than Mr. Tom Maguire. We trust that the present flood-tide in his affairs may lead him once more to fortune, and that when he gets there he will anchor and stay. The Union Square Company bring out number three of their series of novelties, "One Hundred Years Old," this evening.

Herold Matinee

St. Cecelia can number many of her lovers and disciples in this Golden City of the Far West, and they can be found assembled within the walls of the Metropolitan Temple, on Wednesday afternoon next, to enjoy the elegant language of Harmony dissonated by the musicians under the baton of Professor Randolph Herold. Programme of selections made will be found on third page.

The Fountain

If Bacchus was alive to-day, no doubt Mr. Casimer, the proprietor of this establishment, would engage him to preside over his lunch table, and hand round the sparkling juice to thirsty visitors. The wine is there and just as good, and more of it—without the presence of Mr. B. who might possibly take more than his share—and those who visit will find a first-class restaurant with all the delicacies of the season, cooked to order, and orchestral selections performed between the hours of 8 and 12 P. M., every evening. Admission free.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

Mlle. Bonfanti went East this morning.

Barrows benefit at the Grand last night was a success.

Fred. Lyster has assumed the "baton" at Baldwin's. Fred. is a thorough musician.

The character of the 'Lone Fisherman,' in "Evangeline," is spoken of as the most original creation in dramatic art that the stage has seen for years.

Mr. Charles Arnold, of the Grand Opera House Company, who appeared at the Barrows' benefit last night, left for Halifax, Nova Scotia, on the C. P. R. R. this a. m., to fill an engagement.

The Pacific Coast Hotel Register Co. are sending their patented registers all over the country. The last steamer that sailed for Australia took several volumes for the use of the principal hotels in Sydney and Melbourne. Collectors of autographs of our dramatic celebrities might make a good spec in buying up the old copies.

The second volume of "Humpty-Dumpty" will be opened to the public this evening. Its pages and illustrations are announced to be entirely different from those of volume I. An entire change of business will be given, embracing novelties in spectacle, new tricks by Grimaldi, and a programme more complete and attractive than that of the past week.

The Red Stocking Troupe—another female institution—will arrive by to-night's overland train. The following are the names: Miss Lu Sanford, Miss Mahel Pearl, Miss Nettie Rowland, Miss Rosa Doyle, Miss Lotta Russell, Miss Minnie Ayles, Miss Ruby Thornton, Miss Ella Clifton. Seats in front row of orchestra reserved six days in advance.

"Our Boys," placed on the California stage this evening, must certainly possess a drawing power equal to more than four hundred persons, for London play-goers appear never to get tired of it. Only think! it has been going on there for over three years, every night, and expected to run for at least three years more. We could almost imagine that the members of the London company would after a while lose track of their identity, and be in doubt whether they were themselves or the characters in the play.

The Cheyenne Daily Leader of March 26th gives the following notice of a gentleman well known to the dramatic profession of the Pacific Coast:

"Mr. James McDaniel, the Barnum of the West, returned from Deadwood Sunday, whither he has been sojourning for the past three weeks. On his arrival here it was determined by his many friends to welcome him to his home in a spirit commensurate with the high esteem in which he is held. Accordingly, the gentlemen comprising his excellent band of music turned out in full force, with a large number of other citizens, about ten o'clock, and proceeded to his residence. The band played in most excellent style a couple of well-chosen pieces. This was followed by an appropriate selection, 'Home Again,' by the quartette composed of Messrs. Dillon, Dunne, Barry and Morris. After another selection by the band, Mr. McDaniel made his appearance. He was completely surprised, but was not confused. In a few well-chosen words he bade his visitors come within. The invitation accepted; a moment more found his guests and friends seated around his table. The band played again, champagne sparkled, and several gentlemen present indulged in songs and recitations. Dillon sang several of his songs, to the great amusement of all present, and Mr. Fred. Barry favored those present with some of his choice ballads. During the evening Mr. J. W. Dunne offered a toast in behalf of the theatrical profession: 'To the health and prosperity of Mr. James McDaniel, our host and manager,' which was greeted with much applause. Among Mr. Dunne's most pleasing recitations were the 'Letter of Death' and 'Meg and I.' Professor Joseph Quigley's cornet solos added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. Mr. McDaniel was quite weary on account of his long journey, but was ably seconded by Mrs. McDaniel in his successful efforts to make all feel 'at home.' It was an occasion the enjoyments of which cannot fail to be indelibly impressed upon the memory of all who were present. After singing 'Auld Lang Syne,' the party dispersed, leaving behind many wishes for the happiness of Mr. McDaniel and his better half."

PANORAMA LENSES just received at Muller's Optical Depot, 135 Montgomery St., near Bush.

BEFORE MAKING THE PURCHASE OF A PIANO, visit the new warehouse opened at No. 31 Post Street, Mechanics' Building, and inspect those of Chickering & Sons, on exhibition there. They will speak for themselves. For elegance in design, purity and power of tone they cannot be excelled.

If your WATCH needs repairing, take it to 1 TOEPLITZ, 235 Dupont Street, second door from Sutter. Work first-class, and prices reasonable.

The attention of our lady friends and the fair sex of San Francisco is directed to an event of much importance to them, namely: The Spring Opening of the MILLINERY of MME. GONSTANT, at No. 314 Sutter Street. A new style of French Pattern Bonnets has just been received, which require to be seen and tried on to be appreciated, as no description could do them justice.

PLUNDER

JOHN McCULLOUGH, Billy Florence and Lawrence Barrett the ladies of Washington enthusiastically pronounce "perfectly splendid."

ADAM RICHMOND, Marie Bates and Nellie Larkelle are severally paraphrased by an Eastern dramatic correspondent, week after week, as brilliant vocalists and beautiful young women. Dates, if you please, sir!

In all the many plays written by Philip Massinger there is only one character entitled to any consideration, and that is 'Sir Giles Overreach,' in "A New Way to Pay Old Debts," and this character made the play, which in itself is not of very great account. It is a strange fact that, after a playwright had failed with so many characters, he should finally sketch one destined to hold the stage as long as the English language lasts.

WAGNER's latest outbreak is in the form of a musical newspaper called The Bayreuther Blatter. To keep it from the profane hands of those who are not of the Wagner faith, it will be sold only to those who subscribe to the first performance of the "Parsifal" at Bayreuth, in 1880. The price of seats for this delectable treat (?) will be $10.50, but as the funds of the Wagnerites are rather low, this sum may be paid in three annual installments.

MARIE ROZE is about to go into training to reduce her weight, so that Tom Karl can carry her out of the burning building in "Mignon." At present she is much too heavy for him. During a recent performance of the opera, Karl rushed into the flaming house after her, but did not emerge with her when he should have done. The stage waited, and still he came not. Gottschalk, the sturdy baritone, at length went to his assistance, and presently appeared bearing the lovely and heavy Roze, while the "Apollo tenor" followed them sad and lonely.

FOREIGN choirs of musical societies desiring to give concerts at the Paris Exposition can have the aid of the Exhibition Orchestra, if they desire it, but said orchestra will be allowed to play only French music. The admission fee must be lower than that charged for the French concerts, and the programmes must be made up, in the first place, of works by living authors of the same nationality as the person giving the concert, and, in the second place, of works by all authors. Few foreign musicians would care to appear under such petty restrictions, and the only bands not French which have signified their intention of being heard are Gilmore's Band, of New York, and the Philharmonic Society, of Vienna.

Latham Art Collection

In noticing the Latham Art Collection, recently sold in New York, and Eastern critic thus describes "La Cigale" and its author:

"The eye is at once rivetted by Lefebvre's 'La Cigale,' which is probably one of the strongest and most delightful creations that has ever left that artist's hands. Lefebvre was the pupil of Cogniet and took the prize at Rome in 1861. He also received medals in 1865, '68, and '70, and was decorated with the Legion of Honor in 1870. The present painting is from the Salon of 1872, where it formed number 970. Its size is 75 by 35, and the theme is inspired by La Fontaine's graceful and pathetic fable:

The grasshopper so blithe and gay
Sang the summer-time away
Pinched and poor the spendthrift grew
When the sour northeaster blew

It represents a young girl, absolutely nude, standing erect, full facing the observer, her back leaning against a wall. Her hair falls around her neck and bosom in a black-purple tangle. Her right hand, pendant, holds a strip of clothing; her left is raised to her mouth and chin in a manner expressive of brooding and pensiveness. The figure is deliciously drawn. The girl is extremely young, not more than fifteen or sixteen, but has that mature and sensuous development that belongs to southern climes. The flesh-tones are perfect, and we do not wonder that crowds of gentlemen and ladies surround it admiringly nine parts of the time."

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 510 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

The "P. CENTEMERI" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style

JEWELRY is like everything else, it will by constant use get out of repair, and, unless placed in the hands of an artist, will meet with misfortune in the mending. A visit to the studio of Mr. F. A. EBRICO, at 230 KEARNEY STREET, up stairs, convinced us that, as a skilled artisan in his special line of repairing Coral Jewelry, he could not be equaled by any in this city, and the examples of Filigree Work he had on exhibition and for sale were of the most elaborate character, in designs of endless variety and at prices to suit the capacity of every purse-bearer

E. BUTTERICK & Co's Spring Patterns, the most reliable, stylish and popular. Agency 144 Post Street. Send stamp for Catalogue.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $1—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

Pacific Newspaper Publishing Co.

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the
Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

one-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight percent per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which run through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre; also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Riche's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land, to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877.

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co.
Gentlemen:—The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it at once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of impulse and an impetuous pet, pursued through love's impatient prompting, by Gabriel, and, with a view to edacious contingencies—by a whale....Miss Florence Ellis Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wait.....Mr. Harry Josephs Eulalie, Evangeline's 'confidante,' confidently hoping Woman's for Rights.....Miss Lizzie McCall Queen Booriboolah Gha, the King's much better adviser and super-viser of his whole conduct.....Miss Viola Barnes Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid.....Miss Hattie Richardson Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo.....Miss Lizzie Webster Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shiest' 'shyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark.....Mr. Sol Smith Russell Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a Dutch-mary case.....Mr. George S. Knight The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach.....Mr. Harry Hunter Bazil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection.....Mr. E. S. Tarr King Booriboolah Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African diamond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near,' occupies 'an ear' trumpet.....Mr. Edwin S. Tarr Hans Wagner, a spiritual 'corporal' with undue 'corporeal' proportions.....Mr. Chas. Rosine The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequent ly always on the 'qui vive'.....Mr. Horace Frail Grab.....a couple of the King's 'cop'.....Mr. H. Voss, Jr. Runemin.....per colored 'Copp'.....Mr. Wm. Bullock Ringbolt.....a brace of conscientious deserters who { G. Everett Deadshake } left their ship simply because they { S. E. Morse } couldn't take it with them The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any 'appeal' a prisoner might make, "Lucas a non," and all that sort of thing.....Mr. H. E. Dixey Lo, the poor Indian, the 'loest' and 'lonest' savage of them all.....Mr. D. E. Steele The Headsman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off 'blockheads'.....Mr. S. M. Crane The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R. R. Miss Annie Lee The Heifer, specially imported from 'Cowes'.....Fishermen, Sailors, Soldiers, Acadiau Peasants, Africans, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"Our Boys" was played here last evening, and it is needless to say with the greatest success. Miss Eleanor Carey, as 'Mary Melrose,' met with a most flattering reception, and appears very much improved since her engagement at the Grand Opera House. "Our Boys" to-night, and "The Heir at Law" to-morrow evening.

Grand Opera House

The opera bouffe extravaganza "Evangeline" drew an immense audience last evening, the lower part of the house was positively jammed. For a first performance everything passed off remarkably well. Regarding the merit of the piece, it is more than doubtful if San Francisco will endorse the opinion of Boston; "The Exiles" was a disappointment, and whether "Evangeline" will meet with the success anticipated remains yet to be seen. The character of the 'Lone Fisherman,' who appears on the stage in every act, and remains silent and unnoticed during the entire play, is an original conception, and the most interesting character in the cast.

We defer further notice until the company are more at home on the large stage of the Grand and more in sympathy with our theater-goers.

Bush Street Theater

The second edition of "Humpty-Dumpty" drew a good house at this theater last night. It is, if anything, more startling in its effects than its predecessor, possessing all the original merit which characterized "Humpty-Dumpty," Volume I., with novelties added, and an entire change of play. As this and next week will conclude the performances of this mirth-provoking company, parents should take their little ones to see "Humpty-Dumpty." Grand matinee to-morrow, at 2 P. M.

Emerson's Opera House

The house here last night was crowded as usual. Other engagements will prevent this company remaining here much longer, and those who have not yet interviewed "Uncle Joshua Whitecomb," had better secure their seats early, or they will miss one of the best entertainments that has ever been offered in San Francisco.

Baldwin's Theater

The present is the sixth week of the Union Square Company's engagement, and it is probably the most successful that has yet held possession of this theater. "One Hundred Years Old" was given last night, and with the same success that has attended the preceding numbers of this company. We defer notice.

Herold Matinee

Schubert's symphony in C major, also Anber's overture to Fra Diavolo, will be given as part of the orchestral selections, to-morrow afternoon, at the Metropolitan Temple. All the numbers on the programme are up to the usual standard of excellence of the Herold Matinees. A quartette for French horns is underlined, which will probably be a feature in the concert, and those who find leisure to attend will find no cause to regret the time spent.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

Miss ELSIE MOORE left for the East this morning.

ADELAIDE NEILSON made her debut in London, as 'Juliet,' in 1865.

AFTER his present engagement, Rignold goes to England to raise chickens.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" will be brought out at two of the London theaters early in May.

THE Red Stockings switched off at Reno yesterday, to hold a reception at Virginia City.

THE Heifer Dance introduced in "Evangeline" is an improvement on the goat scene in "The Exiles."

WILLAMSON and Maggie Moore will strike oil at the Grand Opera House, New York, on the 15th current.

MISS ELEANOR CAREY, the successor of Miss Ellie Wilton, as leading lady of the California Theater Company, met with a warm reception last evening.

MASTER LEOPOLD LICHTENBERG, pupil of Wieniaski, the celebrated violinist, will arrive in San Francisco about the 12th current. His first concert is announced for Monday evening, April 22d, at Platt's Hall.

MISS CATHERINE LEWIS will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit at Platt's Hall on Thursday evening. A number of volunteers, including Messrs. Levy, Hyman, Sauret, and others, will unite in rendering a programme worthy of the occasion.

Polite Slang

A young lady sat beside the window, sewing, when her brother lounged into the room and reposed his manly form on the sofa.

"Bud," said our heroine, looking up from her work, "papa says that Frank was on a jamboree last night. What did he mean?" and a deep blush mantled her seraphic countenance as she spoke the name of the man she loved.

"A jamboree, sis," was the answer, "is a tare."

"A tare?" she inquired with a puzzled look in her starry eyes. "What is a tare?"

"Why, it is a bender."

"I cannot understand you."

"Well, then, sis, he meant to say that Frank had it up his snoot."

"Why, Bud, have you forgotten how to speak English? What is the use of perplexing me in this way?"

"Well, to be plain, then, he was yoked—corned, you know."

"No, I don't know. Do tell me what was the matter."

"I have told you. Frank took too big a fly in his lemonade, and it made him how-come-you-so, or, in other words, he was half-seas-over."

"Half-seas-over?"

"Yes; three sheets in the wind, you see."

"Bud, what makes you so provoking? That kind of talk is all Hebrew to me. What did happen to dear Frank?"

"Didn't I tell you? Didn't I just as much as say that he was shot in the neck, and—"

"Shot in the neck! Oh, I know it killed him! Oh, Frank! Frank! Oh! Oh!" and after a succession of wild, piercing shrieks, that might have been heard over at Newark, our heroine began to lay her plans for catching a bean in another quarter.—Ex.

PLUNDER

An old "Salt" says that his war-life was very "spicy," for the enemy gave him "pepper" while in it, and his friends caused him to be "mustered," out of it.

"Ma, are we cannibals?" asked a little Eighth street girl of her mother the other morning. "Why, my child, what do you mean?" "Oh, nothing, only I heard you say to Bridget, 'Boys legs for breakfast.'"

THE Germans call the telephone the "Doppelstahlhelzungen Sprecher," which means "a double-steel-plated-tongue-speaker." And a man would want such a tongue in his head to pronounce its Dutch name.

SWAPPING WIVES.—When Sir Samuel Baker, the African traveler, was taking leave of Kamraro, King of Unyoro, that potentate asked him as a particular favor to leave Lady Baker behind. This cool request raised Sir Samuel's ire, and in high indignation he told the King that if he ever made such a request again he would shoot him. Lady Baker, too, who overheard and understood the offer, felt that a word from her would not be out of place, and gave the monarch a piece of her mind in the strongest language she could command. His Majesty for awhile was greatly astonished, being unconscious of having given any offense. At last, seeing that his guests were really angry, he said, in a deprecating tone: "Don't be angry: I did not mean to offend you by asking for your wife. I will give you a wife if you want one, and I thought you would have no objection to give me yours. It is my custom to give my visitors pretty wives, and I thought you would like to exchange. Don't make a fuss about it; if you don't like to do as others do, there's an end of it."

Charlotte Cushman's Life

A biography of the late Charlotte Cushman, written by her intimate friend and companion, Miss Emma Stebbins, will be published in a short time by Messrs. Houghton, Osgood & Co., of Boston. It is a most fortunate circumstance that Miss Stebbins has had the physical strength to undertake and complete this story of the life of her great friend. She has the culture and the literary talent needed for the work, and as she was her constant companion during many years, in Europe and America, she is unquestionably better fitted to write it than any other person who might have undertaken it. The two women were not only bound to one another by the strongest sisterly affection, but they were sympathetic in their literary, artistic, and social tastes.

The private life of Miss Cushman was as noble as was her professional life. True, the latter was, for many years, a life of struggle and study and toil, and of this period she was fond of conversing, and did so in a most interesting manner, during her later years. It can easily be believed that Miss Stebbins, whose memory is charged with the facts and anecdotes thus narrated, will make judicious use of the materials of which she thus became the possessor. The great actress was a charming letter-writer, and her correspondence with relatives and friends which has been preserved will afford much valuable material for the biographer. But the chief value of the work will consist in its being a faithful record of the artistic life of the most distinguished American woman that has ever adorned the stage. It was a life begun in poverty and was long beset with trials and obstacles. But a noble courage and ambition and an indomitable will enabled her to overcome all and to win finally all the honors of fame and fortune. Such a life will be a most valuable study and example for gifted and ambitious young women, and Miss Stebbins is the one person among Miss Cushman's near and old friends who is best able to prepare it. The biography will be the only authorized one, and it will contain many facts not accessible to other writers. Its publication will be the most important literary event of the coming spring, in this country at least.—Phila. Evening Bulletin, March 25.

THE Cincinnati Commercial in speaking of the immoral and degrading tendency of that class of modern American printed matter, designed for the amusement of our young people, and its pernicious effect in forming the character of our future men—a parcel of stuff which is positively a national disgrace—reviews as follows:

"The Weekly Fire-Proof Burglar is in some respects probably the most remarkable sheet that ever was printed, alike execrable in English and morals. It is so thickly studded with oaths, bad grammar, slovenly sentences and slang of the vilest sort, that on some pages it would be hard to find a correct paragraph. It makes heroes of boys who run away from home and join circuses, or rascally newsboys who steal by the small, and play tricks on policemen and on honest but stupid tradesmen. If a mischievous college boy fills a teacher's coat-skirt pockets with bad eggs, or puts pins in a tutor's chair cushion, or steals the college Bible off the president's stand, or chloroforms a professor or two, and shaves the hair off their heads, and leaves them bald as the back of your hand, or even shoots a student whom he suspects of being an "informer," the Weekly Fire-Proof Burglar exalts him into a demi-god. That is the kind of boys, bless you! who are worth copying by Young America—boys of some spirit. The Fire-Proof Burglar is said to have a large and growing circulation. It sells like tickets to a variety show.

The titles of the serials in the "Boys Story Papers" are altogether suggestive to Christian parents who desire to bring their boys up in a proper manner. A number of such titles taken at random, are as follows: "Red Leary, the Bill Poster, or the Murder on the Pier;" "Shorty on his Ear, or Always on a Rack-ety;" "The Boy Clown;" "Jim Jams;" "The Crazy Detective;" "The Boy Bohemian, or the Adventures of a Young Reporter," wherein the boy reporter is pictorially represented in the heroic attitude of putting a bullet through the husband of a pretty ballet girl whose dress is low at the top and very high at the bottom. Then come "The Dare-devil Detective;" "Under the Gallows," and "The Brotherhood of Death;" "Branded, or the Detective's Terror;" "The Dark Corners of New York;" "Dead Man's Point;" and finally, the most suggestive of all, "Around the World on Cheek," a very startling title, indeed.

It is not too much to say that almost every species of crime and recklessness, under a canopy of the most gorgeous lying that human ingenuity is capable of, is made familiar to the boy's imagination in the popular story papers, circulated by the thousand, every week. Still there is nothing like a thirst for knowledge and a taste for reading. Of course all this is of the nature of economy and reform. "Jim Jams" and "Around the World on Cheek" are an immeasurable improvement on the old-fashioned Sunday-school book, wherein impious youths went bird's-nesting on the Sabbath day and fell out of a tree and broke their ungodly necks. Still there are old-fashioned people who do not think so.

THE FOOTLIGHT office removed to No. 320 Sansome Street, Halleck Block, Room 33, next door to Wells, Fargo & Co.

Alexander Dumas

ALEXANDER DUMAS, the younger, lives in a magnificent house, in Paris, crowded from ground-floor to roof with objects of art. He is fond of pictures, and is the intimate friend of M. Meissonier. He has a handsome fortune, and is very generous to needy authors. He writes slowly and painstakingly on blue, highly-glazed paper, with a quill pen, the "scream" of the latter on the surface of the former being particularly soothing to his nerves. On his desk lies an object which he is said to look upon as in some sort a talisman that brings him good fortune—it is a cast of a hand, large, yet shapely, with a broad palm and fleshy but tapering fingers—the hand of his father. Dumas' wife is a Russian lady, and they have two daughters, M'lles. Colette and Jeannine, who are said to be charming, witty and intellectual.

PERFECT PEBBLE SPECTACLES only at Muller's, 135 Montgomery Street.

A very extensive selection of all kinds of BROOMS, BRUSHES and FEATHER DUSTERS may be found at 310 Sutter Street. The brothers LEVENSON have opened a place of business there, and offer their merchandise at the most reasonable rates.

The "P. CENTEMER" KID GLOVES are pronounced by all to be the cheapest and best on the Pacific Coast.

WHEN YOU REQUIRE GLOVES FOR THE OPERA, visit the Danicheff Manufactory at 114 1/2 Post Street, where you can have them made to order, and cut in the latest Parisian style.

MARTIN'S RESTAURANT, so long known to the bon vivants of San Francisco as the place par excellence, where the best meals, cooked and served in a style unsurpassed, can always be obtained, is now located in St. Ann's Building, corner Eddy and Powell Sts., opp. Baldwin's Hotel. The dining saloon is one of the most elegant in this city, and the interior culinary arrangements are much ahead of those in the old location on Commercial St. Much of the patronage of the house was derived from mint employees, and the removal of that establishment to Fifth St. induced the restaurant proprietors to accommodate their patrons by also moving Westward. The establishment has gained by the change, as patrons will find upon paying it a visit.

ADVERTISERS

WILL FIND THE LIST OF 110 PAPERS, GENERALLY known as "Patent Outlets," one of the cheapest and best means of reaching the people in all parts of the Pacific Coast. On the aggregate these papers are read by a quarter of a million people, and our advertisements are placed near well selected reading matter. As one side of these papers is printed in San Francisco, only one cut is required in illustrated advertisements, when it would require 70 to send the order direct to the publisher of each paper. An advertisement occupying one square (10 lines agate) will be inserted one time in the entire list for $7—only 10 cents per paper.

An ordinary circular can be printed in this list, set in the space of one-fourth of a double column, and inserted once for One Dollar per paper. By this method circulars are more likely to be read and preserved, and the cost is not more than one-fourth of what it would be to print and distribute the same number through so many sections. For list of papers and further information call on or address

WANTED—Twenty Young Ladies for the Ballet

THE CELEBRATED Cucamonga Rancho

CONTAINING 13,000 ACRES

is now being surveyed and subdivided into ten, twenty and forty acre farms, and will be sold at $25 to $30 per acre.

WITH WATER FREE

sue-sixth Cash, balance in one, two, three, four and five years, with interest on deferred payments at eight per cent. per annum.

LOCATION

Midway between Pomona and Colton, San Bernardino County, California. Soil unsurpassed in fertility. Climate best in the State—no injurious frosts ever known in the Valley. Water in abundance from San Antonio Creek and Cucamonga Creek, which runs through the land. Fifty families already located in the valley, and many orange orchards already set out. The Southern Pacific Railroad, from San Francisco to the Colorado River, runs for about three miles through the tract.

Artesian wells can be had upon any portion of the land. San Bernardino Valley is the best naturally watered of the State of California. It is worthy of mention, however, that artesian wells are numerous, as the valley is bounded on the northeast and south by high mountains, partly snow-capped the year round, which furnish a large area of water shed; superficial and subterranean water is therefore abundant. The surface streams we have already described, and it now remains to give particulars of the wells. Formerly the artesian wells were only of two-inch bore, and the water was always obtained at a depth of 45 to 150 feet. They are now of larger bore, and water in abundance is obtained at a depth of 100 to 150 feet. On the north side of the Santa Ana River the average depth of artesian wells is 100 feet, while on the south side the average depth is greater.

At an elevation of 100 feet above the level of the valley there is a well which, at a depth of 132 feet, produces sufficient water to drive a turbine wheel.

There are now over 200 flowing artesian wells in San Bernardino Valley, and we are convinced that their number can be increased at the option of the inhabitants, not only for irrigation, but also for manufacturing purposes.

Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Olives, Almonds, Walnuts and all semi-tropical fruits grow abundantly. Arrangements can be made to plant any number of Orange Trees, three to four years old, four to five feet high, seventy trees to the acre, and guarantee them, for $100 per acre, also for planting other fruit or shade trees at a reasonable cost.

Rich's French Hotel, one of the best in the southern portion of the State, is located upon the tract, and settlers will there find a pleasant economical home until they get their houses built.

For full particulars, maps, circulars etc. apply to E. P. NORWOOD, Agent on the land; to C. E. CHUBBUCK, Agent at Colton, San Bernardino County; or to the

Decker Brothers' PIANOS

PHILADELPHIA, June 17th, 1876

The DECKER BROTHERS' Grand Pianos used by the Musical Congress at their Grand Opera Concerts and Musical Festivals, recently given at the American Academy of Music, were remarkable for their superior quality of tone and extraordinary power. Few instruments in every respect we have never heard.

WEBER PIANOS ARE THE BEST

San Francisco, October 1st, 1877

Messrs. Sherman, Hyde & Co. Gentlemen: The artists of the Kellogg Cary Opera Company feel it once a duty and pleasure to express their unqualified admiration of the magnificent WEBER PIANOS used by us during our stay in San Francisco. The tone of the WEBER PIANO is so pure and sympathetic, that it sustains the voice to a wonderful degree, and the action meets every requirement of the most exacting musician. We honestly commend them in the highest terms.

DISTRIBUTION OF CHARACTERS

Evangeline, our heroine, a creature of im-pulse and an im-petuous pet, pursued through love's im-patient prompting, by Gabriel, and, with a view to edacious contingencies—by a whale.... Miss Florence Ellis Catherine, the very mildest type of ante-nuptial mother-in-law—but wist.... Mr. Harry Josephs Eulalie, Evangeline's 'confidante,' confidently hoping Woman's for Rights.... Miss Lizzie McCall Queen Boorioboola Gha, the King's much better sd-viser and super-viser of his whole conduct.... Miss Viola Barnes
Mary Ann, Evangeline's waiting-maid.... Miss Hattie Richardson Gabriel, our hero, a fascinating and perambulating young lover—in point of fact a 'roaming' Romeo.... Miss Lizzie Webster Le Blanc, a lawyer of the 'shyest' 'shyster' stamp, with a 'will' and a 'way' equally dark.... Mr. Sol Smith Russell Capt. Dietrich, a Dutch mercenary in the British ranks, who shows no mercy, being a mercy-nary cuss.... Mr. George S. Knight
The Lone Fisherman, a patient and singularly taciturn toiler of the sea, with a natural tendency to 'hook' whatever comes within his reach.... Mr. Harry Hunter Basil, Evangeline's sire, whose vacillating mind is divided between the 'rental' of her prospective husband and his own 'parental' affection.... Mr. E. S. Tarr
King Boorioboola Gha, royal proprietor of the mid-African dismond fields, who, not being able to hear anything 'near,' occupies an ear trumpet.... Mr. Edwin S. Tarr Hans Wagner, a spirit-ual 'corporal' with undue 'corporeal' proportions.... Mr. Chas. Rosine
The Jailor, never without his key, vocal or instrumental, consequently always on the 'qui' vive.... Mr. Horace Frail Grab.... a couple of the King's 'cop'.... Mr. H. Voss, Jr.
Runemin.... per' colored 'Coppes'.... Mr. Wm. Bullock Ringbolt.... a brace of conscientious deserters who left their ship simply because they couldn't take it with them.... S. R. Morse
The Policeman, called by some a peeler, possibly because he was never known to heed any 'appeal' a prisoner might make, 'Lucas a non,' and all that sort of thing.... Mr. H. E. Dixey Lo, the poor Indian, the 'loest' and 'lonest' savage of them all
Mr. D. R. Steele
The Headsman, not a mimic of stupid people, but very clever at taking off 'blockheads'.... Mr. S. M. Crane
The Conductor, though given to much punching, better acquainted with the P. R. R. than the P. R. Miss Annie Lee
The Heifer, specially imported from 'Cowes'....
Fishermen, Sailors, Soldiers, Acadian Peasants, Africans, etc.

DRAMATIC RESUME

California Theater

"Our Boys" last night drew another good house, and it is only lack of time which compels the management to withdraw it as it would surely have proved a winning card. To-night the "Heir-at-Law" will be produced, in which Mr. Owens has more real opportunities to show his abilities than any of the plays produced so far. As these will be the last few nights of Mr. Owens' engagement—he leaving Monday for Australia—those that wish to see him in his great characters ought not to stand on the order of going, but go at once.

Grand Opera House

"Evangeline" moved more smoothly last night and seemed to be much more in accord with the audience than at the opening night, and although the play itself has not met the expectation San Francisco had formed of its Boston reputation, the acting and singing and dancing are all so very good, that one cannot help but being pleased—where there is so much good quality in the actors, one can easily forget the faults of the play—as it is, the mind is not occupied at all, and not being occupied, is allowed full freedom to enjoy all the bon mots and other witty doings with which this play abounds, without any serious after-thoughts. "Evangeline" to-night.

Bush Street Theater

Grand matinee of "Humpty-Dumpty," Volume II., to-day at 2 o'clock, for the special accommodation of all the little ones who cannot attend in the evenings. The performance is really a good one and ought to be seen by everybody that wishes to enjoy a good laugh. The acting of Griualdi is, if anything, more amusing, and some of the tricks more startling, than its predecessor. "Humpty-Dumpty" this evening.

Emerson's Opera House

"Joshua Whitcomb" still continues to attract full houses, but the season must soon draw to a close, as the Red Stocking

Blondes, now playing in Virginia City are under engagement for this house. We will say good-bye to Uncle Josh with much regret, and trust that he may meet with as hearty a welcome everywhere as he has received in San Francisco.

Baldwin's Theater

"One Years Old" is not equal to either "A Celebrated Case" or "Agnes" in plot or interest, but the character of "Jacques Fauvel" is better drawn than any character in either of the others, and as rendered by Mr. F. F. Mackay, is the best sustained and most artistic portrayal yet given us by the Union Square Company.

The Fountain

Other attractions do not seem to affect the attendance at the promenade concerts held here every evening. The cornet solos of Savanier still continue to be a principal feature in the programme, and the rest of the selections given are as usual excellent.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP, Etc.

AFTER "Joshua Whitcomb" a season of "Red Stockings."

VAL VOS, the ventriloquist, is playing at the Bella Union.

JOHN E. OWENS is worth a million and a half in solid coin.

FOREPAUGH will be here with his elephants on Saturday.

THE Red Stocking Blondes play this evening at Piper's Opera House, Virginia City.

FRANK GOODWIN, the business manager of Baldwin's Academy, left yesterday for the East.

THE language of "Captain Dietrich," in "Evangeline," is the funniest part of that extravaganza.

ZITELLA, another 'change artist' a la Viola Clifton, has arrived, and will soon exhibit herself.

MISS ANNIE PIXLEY has been offered a year's engagement by Mr. Rice, of the Evangeline Company.

"THE Serpent and the Dove," is called by an Eastern word twister, "a triple back-action melo-drama."

A concert is announced for Monday evening next, at Pacific Hall, by Herr Charles Goffrie, solo violinist.

THE photos, by Moro, of Miss Lizzie Webster, exhibited in the windows on Kearny Street, are very handsome.

THIS afternoon, at the Metropolitan Temple, Herold's Orchestra will hold their fourth matinee of the present series.

THE California Theater, Kiraly Ballet, Trip to the Moon, Harrison, Keene, Mettayer Company have made a hit in the East.

BISHOP, the comedian, is rusticated at Santa Cruz; he was getting so thin that the doctors thought that sea-bathing would enable him to pick up somewhat.

JOHN McCULLOUGH has reached, through honest ambition and hard work, the top round of the ladder, and is to-day the leading tragedian on the English stage.

MR. WOODWARD, of Woodward's Gardens, has secured the "Dancing Heifer," now appearing in "Evangeline," at this Grand Opera House, for his Sunday performances—they will no doubt thrive in this climate.

KELLOGG, Cary, Roze and the tenor Frapelli are singing in Boston; and the Hess English troupe—of which Miss Emilie Melville is a member—is also there, with the "Chimes of Normandy" as the chief feature.

COUNT JOHANNES is reported to have made $10,000 this season, besides benefiting in an equal amount the dealers in eggs and cabbages in those towns where he has performed. What must the ghost of "Hamlet" think!

THE Troubadours, expected shortly from Australia, will occupy Baldwin's Academy for a season of four weeks, while the Union Square Theater Company go starring throughout the circuit, to return when the Troubadours have finished their engagement.

FOOTLIGHT CORRESPONDENCE

New York, March 30, 1878.

Ed. FOOTLIGHT.—In the Italian Opera at Booth's Theater, the prominent feature of "Lucia" might be characterized as emotion with roudade sauce. The heroine palpitates in cadenzas, and where an unoperatic maiden would shed tears, she sheds trills and gruppetti. In her wildest frenzy she is irreproachable in starched muslin, and her ravings of despair are wafted forth in melodious accord with an intricate accompaniment of fondo obligato. It stands to reason that Miss Kellogg sang the title role last night admirably, and even in places gave token of an emotion not noted in the score. Her whole performance was one triumph of skilful and brilliant vocalism, and was welcomed with the usual rain of bouquets and enthusiasm. Sig. Frapelli made an excellent "Edgar," and Sig. Verdi sang better than hitherto. When he recovers from the painful throat disorder which has impeded his efforts, we may hope to see this young artist do himself more complete justice—a result which his naturally fine voice makes especially desirable.

On Monday next, Mr. Lester Wallack will produce "Diplomacy" at his theater—a play of which the highest expectations have been formed. It is now the reigning success in London, where seats for it are booked three months ahead.

John C. Williamson and Maggie Moore return to New York about April 11th, and will appear at the Grand Opera House.

Agnes Robertson will visit this country next Fall, and star in several new plays written especially for her by Tom Taylor. Geo. Fawcett Rowe has indulged in another play, the scene of which is laid partly in Colorado and partly in England.

Mr. John McCullough will open about the 22d of April, at the Grand Opera House, for a season of three weeks, and will first appear as "Spartacus." It is doubtful if he will produce "Coriolanus" at all, as the expenditure would be too great for the short season anticipated.

A complimentary benefit will be extended to Manager Martin W. Hauly, of Harrigan and Hart's Theater Comique, soon.
